New Parleys May Unite Or Divide Big Powers

Marshall Plan, Ruhr and Revision Of British Loan Are Among Issues

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

Secretary of State Marshall and other Government officials will begin a new series of international conferences this week which some authorities here consider may be decisive in uniting or dividing the world.

At some point in these conferences the Truman Administration may face a decision on whether to call a special session of Congress to take emergency action on Europe's financial crisis. There is still considerable uncertainty here whether key European countries actually will be able to survive economically without outside assistance pending Congressional action on the Marshall Plan in the regular session beginning next January.

The Marshall Plan envisages United States financial aid to Europe based on an inventory of how much Europe can help herself.

Fresh information on Britain's ability to hold out is expected to be forthcoming in an Anglo-American conference due to begin this week. This meeting, probably in Washington, will deal with possible revision of the agreement under which Britain last year received a $3,750,000,000 loan from the United States.

British Propose Changes

The British are proposing changes in the loan agreement which they hope would allow them to conserve their diminishing supply of dollars. However, any substantial modification of the loan provisions would require action by Congress.

Similarly, congressional action would be necessary if the British formally proposed and the American Administration agreed that the United States should assume part or all of the cost of maintaining the civilian economy in the British zone of Germany.

This latter issue probably will arise, diplomatic authorities say, in a conference of Anglo-American economic and technical experts opening here tomorrow to consider means of raising the output of the Ruhr coal mines of Germany. More coal is needed from these mines to meet the fuel demands of Europe as a part of the Marshall recovery program.

British Delegation Arrives

[A delegation of British diplomats and mining experts arrived by plane from London yesterday for the Ruhr coal conferences.

[State Department officials have emphasized that the talks will be confined to problems of increasing coal output in the Ruhr Valley, but Sir William Strang, chief of the British mission, said that it "remains to be seen whether we will take up any other subjects on the side."

[The British delegation encountered several delays in its flight from London. Its chartered plane was grounded at Goose Bay, Labrador, by mechanical difficulties. The delegates were flown to Montreal in an American Air Transport

Man-Eater Takes Bite of Circus Attendant's Arm

Chicago, Aug. 10 (AP).—A 43-year-old circus usher, Raymond G. Watson of Marion, Ohio, was bitten severely today by a Bengal tiger billed as "man-eating."

Physicians said Watson's right hand or forearm might have to be amputated.

Watson said he had reached into a cage to pet a 3-month-old tiger cub at the Ringling Bros. and Barnam & Bailey Circus when the cub's male parent, named Soungel, seized Watson's hand and then his arm.

The 9-year-old tiger, weighing 500 pounds, was forced to loosen its grip when another circus employe, Francis Hogan, 41, of New Kensington, Pa., used a crowbar to pry open its mouth.

Strange Twist to Triangle

Alexandrian Confesses Killing Husband of His Former Wife

Walter Mathis Shot Md. Man 'in Scuffle,' He Tells Va. Police

The Washington Post
WALTER RAY MATHIS

An Alexandria building contractor yesterday confessed to police he shot and killed the man who "stole the love" of his divorced second wife.

Walter Ray Mathis, 40, of 424 E. Glendale st., Alexandria, said he shot his rival Saturday night in a fight at their first meeting, although he had divorced the woman on the victim's account more than a year ago.

Killed was Kenneth Eugene Colbert, 31, steelworker, of 30 Victoria rd., Victoria Villa Gardens, Middle River, a suburb of Baltimore, Md. Police said he had bled to death after a bullet from Mathis' 45-caliber automatic severed a main artery in his right leg.

The fight and shooting occurred in Colbert's home, where he lived with Mathis' former wife, the former Ruby Bondurant, 30, one-time Alexandria telephone operator. Police said she and her infant child by Colbert were in a nearby tavern at the time.

Mathis, a respected businessman and former wartime pilot in the China-Burma-India theater, was formally charged with the murder and agreed to waive extradition, police said. Extradition hearing, however, was scheduled for 10 a. m. today in Alexandria Police Court "just to keep the record straight," Alexandria police said.

Mathis remarried his first wife after divorce ended his second marriage and has lived with her, their 14-year-old son, and an 8-year-old son by his second wife, at the Glendale st. address.

He admitted, however, that he had a date to meet Ruby on a street corner near her home and only ran into Colbert when she failed to show up for the rendezvous.

Mathis told reporters yesterday

Turkish Arms Shipments To Begin Soon

Highway Building Machinery Slated To Start This Month

By The Associated Press

The United States is driving for a start this month on the shipment of American arms and equipment to Turkey to reinforce her against Soviet pressure.

The first actual shipment—a $553,000 lot of modern road building machinery to repair strategic highways—is about ready, officials disclosed yesterday. Contracts were closed last week for immediate dispatch of some two-score tractors, scrapers, rock crushers and the like.

This is to be followed by ammunition, aircraft, radar equipment and other munitions which make up the major part of the 100-million-dollar Turkish aid enterprise.

Assistance to Turkey has lagged weeks behind the 300-million-dollar related effort to strengthen Greece, because Turkey's need was deemed less urgent. With the return of an official mission headed by Maj. Gen. Lunsford E. Oliver after a two-month survey on the scene, it is expected now to go ahead full steam.

Oliver's Findings Studied

President Truman, in asking Congress on March 12 for this backing for Greece and Turkey, said it was his belief that it must be our policy "to support free peoples who are resisting attempted subjugation by armed minorities or by outside pressures."

Detailed findings on Turkish needs submitted by General Oliver have been under study at the War and State departments. Officials indicated they fit in with the following preliminary breakdown of the main purposes for which the aid funds are to be spent:

Heavy and light ordnance, $51,750,000. Included are ammunition costing $5,750,000; ordnance equipment such as artillery, anti-aircraft weapons, motor vehicles and tanks to replace obsolete equipment, $44,500,000; torpedoes, depth charges, mines and mine sweeper gear, $1,500,000, to bolster defense of the Dardanelles Straits.

Machine tools and technical equipment, 22 million dollars. This includes modern arsenals, repair shops, tools and spare parts for ground and Air Forces and Navy; $15,500,000; communication and electronic equipment, five million dollars; engineering equipment, one million dollars, and weather forecasting equipment, $500,000.

Air Forces, 12 million dollars, including new and replacement military planes, 10 million dollars,

At Tea Party

Poison Killed Princess, Army Told

Berlin, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—The United States Army announced today it would ask the Russians to investigate fully a report that the late Princess Hermine, widow of Kaiser Wilhelm II, might have been poisoned at a tea party by the thieves who stole two million dollars' worth of the German crown jewels.

As the ramifications of the case grew, the Army's Criminal Investigaton Division disclosed that it had questioned one "Fraulein Herbst," a shapely brunette, who is an intimate friend of Prince Ferdinand of Schoenaich-Carolath. The CID said it probably would question Fraulein Herbst again. She was at the tea party.

Prince Ferdinand told a photographer at his home in Berlin that he and his pretty blond wife, Rosa, were getting a divorce. Ferdinand posed for pictures, but Princess Rosa ran into her bedchamber and locked the doors.

It was Prince Ferdinand who complained that 29 pieces of the crown jewel collection, worth two million dollars, had been stolen. He said the crown jewels, worth a total of five million dollars, had been smuggled from his mother's home in Frankfurt-on-Oder, in the Russian zone, to his home in the American district of Berlin 10 weeks ago.

The princess, who was 59 and the Kaiser's second wife, died at her home last Thursday. According to the Mayor of Frankfurt, she had suffered from a throat abscess. She had held a tea party last Tuesday.

A spokesman for the CID said that it was particularly interested in that tea party. An informant, whose name was not disclosed, had told the CID that he attended the party and suspected that the princess might have died of some poison slipped into her teacup.

This informant said she possibly was killed because she knew who had smuggled the jewels out and who had the opportunity to steal part of them.

He said the suspicious part of it was that the princess was well and happy within 48 hours of her death. Further, he said, he had not heard any report that she had been in ill health since she moved to Frankfurt in 1945.

Just after her death, a report from Frankfort said she had complained of difficulty in breathing and had collapsed and died inside her home.

It was believed that the Russians would be asked to exhume the body of the princess and test vital organs for poison.

After Block-Long Chase

Two AB&W Bus Operators Capture Man Robbing Soldier

Two A. B. & W. Transit Co. bus drivers were accredited yesterday with capture of a 28-year-old Arlington man who lifted $91 from a sleeping Fort Belvoir soldier.

The two drivers were identified by A. B. & W. as Robert M. McDonald, 104 W. Monroe ave., Alexandria, and Jack Duff, 107 W. Masonic View ave., Alexandria.

The two had pulled their Potomac Yards-Arlington Ridge rd. buses about 4:30 a. m. to the west side of the old Postoffice Building, 12th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Noticing the man ransacking the pockets of the soldier, who was sleeping on steps of the old postoffice, the drivers, after a block-long chase, finally caught him.

Brought back to the terminal, the man, who told police he was a machinist, handed $91 in cash over to the soldier, whom police named as James C. Coleman, 29, and then broke loose and fled a second time.

Again the two A. B. & W. drivers gave chase, capturing him this time near the National Museum.

The man was being held at First Precinct station pending charges. Police said the soldier apparently had fallen asleep on the steps while awaiting a bus.

An A. B. & W. official to whom the drivers reported the incident said the man submitted without struggle each time they caught him.

Attlee Rejects Outside Aid As Solution

Declares Austerity Program Must Be Endured, Regardless Of Any U. S. Help

London, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Clement Attlee called upon his people tonight to stand upon their own feet and told them that only through harder work and common self-sacrifice could they pull themselves out of a crisis as serious as any Britain had faced in its long history.

He said that his emergency "work more and eat less" program had to be endured, regardless of what the United States might do to help Europe under the Marshall Plan.

"The people of this country have always risen to their greatest height when the peril was greatest," he said. "The harder the trial, the stronger has been their courage and determination. I cannot tell you how soon we shall emerge into easier times. That will depend partly on the world situation, but mainly on our own exertions. But I am certain of victory . . ."

Speaks From Chequers

Attlee spoke by radio from the Prime Minister's country home at Chequers, in a sort of fireside chat. He outlined in cheerless words the state of near bankruptcy that the nation was in and told the Britons that help from the United States and the dominions was not the answer—Britain must be put back on its feet again so it can pay its own way.

Attlee emphasized that a reduction in imports was "only a partial and temporary remedy," that the essential thing was to increase production and concentrate on things "which are essentially vital."

"We must increase our home production in food," he said.

"We must increase our production of coal and steel.

"We must make our transport fully efficient.

"We must produce more goods for export.

"We shall need longer hours of work for all."

Dramatics Absent

His speech was almost totally lacking in dramatics. In fact, he seemed to have said the whole thing more forcibly to the House of Commons last Thursday, when he proposed this super-austerity program and called it a new Battle of Britain.

"I have no easy words for you tonight," he said. . . . I have heavy responsibility upon me, but you have, too. . . . The problem that faces us can only be solved if every one shares in the sacrifices necessary and joins in the work required for success.

" . . . The way out of our difficulties is hard, but there is no alternative. We cannot rest upon the help which our fellow members of the Commonwealth have been and are giving generously. And even though plans may be put forward by our friends in America to help bring prosperity to Europe, we must stand on our own feet."

He explained the economic situation of the home islands. Trade, he said, had been their lifeblood. Britain imported food and raw materials and paid for them with coal and manufactured goods, and by the earnings of shipping and foreign investments.

Foreign Assets Sold

But he said the first World War hurt the nation's position seriously. In the second World War, "when we stood alone," Britain

Pepper Sees Politics in Plane Probe

Hughes Defended As 'Sincere Young Man'; Senator Asks Other Investigations

By the United Press

Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) said yesterday that the Senate War Investigating Committee decided to make the politically-hot Howard Hughes inquiry its "big case" for 1947 and charged indirectly that Republican members had their eyes on next year's presidential election.

Pepper, ranking committee Democrat, said it was a "strange coincidence" that other cases of alleged fraud against the Government were passed over in favor of the Hughes probe in which the late President Roosevelt and his son, Elliott, were involved.

Describing Hughes as an "earnest, sincere young man" who is "deeply hurt" by charges made against him, Pepper said in a radio interview on Ed Hart's Forum (Station WINX) that the inquiry has "done nothing" to increase the prestige of Congress and has failed to prove that fraud or corruption was involved in the 40 million dollars of Government contracts obtained by the West Coast plane builder.

Meyer Still Sought

Meanwhile, the subcommittee's investigation of the Hughes contracts entered its third and probably final week with Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) still looking for rotund Johnny Meyer, free-spending Hughes press agent who testified earlier that he spent $164,000 in five years entertaining big shots in Hughes' behalf.

The subcommittee wants to ask Meyer some more questions and slapped a subpena on him to force him to appear. But United States marshals thus far have been unable to find him and Hughes flatly refused to help in the search.

Ferguson said he had no further plans to force Meyer to appear and would rely on the subpena to get results. He intends to wind up the hearings in another two or three days.

The feud between Hughes and Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) which threw the committee into turmoil last week, had all but subsided tonight. Brewster, chairman of the full committee, has left town for a four-weeks' vacation in Maine and Hughes appeared ready to let the issue drop.

Fulton Talk Scheduled

But Hugh Fulton, former chief counsel of the committee who later served as an attorney for Hughes, was to appear on the radio last night to discuss further his charges Brewster was guilty of "deliberately stating and restating falsehoods." He originally made the accusation at a news conference after Ferguson refused him permission to testify before the subcommittee.

Pepper, who directed friendly questions at Hughes during his four days on the witness stand, was asked during the radio interview whether he felt that the subcommittee's hearings "were held to embarrass the Democrats in 1948."

"It seemed to me," Pepper replied, "that it was an unusual thing that a contract of such little moment—40 million dollars altogether, involving two different contracts—should have been singled out and spread on the front pages of all the papers of the country.

"It seemed to me that it was due to the fact that Elliott Roosevelt was connected with one of them

President Reads And Sleeps Late At Md. Retreat

Thurmont, Md., Aug. 10 (U.P.).—President Truman spent a quiet Sunday in seclusion and strictly at ease at his Shangri-La hideaway high in the Catoctin Mountains. He and Mrs. Truman, who drove here Friday, plan to return to the White House tomorrow morning.

For the second straight day Mr. Truman slept late—for him. He arose at 8:30 a. m., three hours past his usual time, and breakfasted with Mrs. Truman about a half hour later.

The day was cool and overcast, and Mr. Truman spent most of his time reading indoors. He passed up his usual hike through the estate's wooded trails and a dip in the bone-chilling waters of his private pool.

The first family's privacy was complete. There were no callers, no paper work for the President, and probably the most pleasant of all, no telephone calls.

Pravda Hits 'Unilateral' Meeting on Jap Pact

Moscow, Aug. 10 (AP).—Pravda, Communist Party organ, today called "unilateral" the United States' convocation of Washington discussions on Japan's future, and made it clear that nothing but a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers would satisfy the Soviet Union. Pravda said the Council of Foreign Ministers had been "created specifically for preparatory work on the peace treaties."

1 Dead, 25 Injured As Two Sections Of Train Collide

Jacksonville, Ark., Aug. 10 (U.P.).—The second section of the Missouri Pacific de luxe train, The Texan, plowed into the rear of the first section before dawn here today, killing a mail clerk and injurnig between 25 and 30 other crewmen and passengers.

Both sections of the flyer which originates in San Antonio, Tex., were northbound, the first to St. Louis and the second to Memphis. The crash occurred 14 miles northeast of Little Rock, where the train splits up for the two northern terminals.

Railroad officials said the 16-car first train, the main section of The Texan, had been flagged down because of a grade crossing collision between a southbound freight and a pickup truck. The 10-car second train either was not flagged or its engineer missed the signal.

Most of the injured were riding in the last Pullman of the first train which was partly telescoped by the locomotive of the second. One couple sleeping in the telescoped Pullman was not even awakened by the crash.

The injured included the firemen and engineer of the second train, who jumped when they saw the crash was inevitable.

Odom and Bombshell Wing Around World In 73 Hrs. and 5 Mins.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
HAPPY LANDING—Pilot Bill Odom, who set a new round-the-world solo flight record, gets a kiss from his wife, Dorothy, after he landed at Chicago municipal airport

Lone Flier Lands At Chicago After Record-Breaking 19,645-Mile Trip

Chicago, Aug. 10 (AP).—William P. Odom, 27-year-old veteran airman, today completed the fastest trip ever made around the world.

When his blue and silver 4000 horse power former Army bomber, the Reynolds Bombshell, flashed past the control tower of Douglas Airport at 1:58 p. m. (EST) he ended a 19,645-mile solo global circuit trip he had started just 73 hours and five minutes earlier.

Three minutes later, at 2:01 p. m. (EST), he glided to earth at the Chicago Municipal Airport, 22 miles farther south, and climbed from his cockpit before a shouting crowd without showing visible signs of fatigue.

Odom was pilot on the previous record flight, which he made in the Bombshell with Milton Reynolds, Chicago manufacturer, and Flight Engineer T. Carrol Sallee last April in 78 hours 55 minutes.

Breaks Post's Record

The former solo record was established by the late Wiley Post when he flew the single-engined monoplane Winnie Mae around the globe in 186 hours and 49 minutes in 1933.

Odom's new record cut 5 hours and 50 minutes from the former bombshell record and beat Post's mark by 113 hours and 44 minutes.

His wife, Dorothy, 26, among the first to greet the tall blond flier, cried: "Bill! You look wonderful!" A moment later, he embraced her and their two children, Ronnie, 3, and Rochelle, 5.

Clean-shaven and natty in a gray business suit as he grinned at his milling welcomers, Odom did not look as though he had gone nearly sleepless for more than three days.

Yet a few hours earlier while flying over the mountains of northwestern Canada, he related, fatigue nearly cost him his life.

Headed Toward Peak

He said he dozed for an hour and 40 minutes while using the manual controls of the plane—his automatic pilot was disabled—and awakened to find his altitude had dropped from 20,000 to 16,000 feet and he was heading directly toward a 19,000-foot mountain peak.

"It made me sick for a few minutes," he told a reporter.

Odom said that during his nearly disastrous nap the plane apparently flew in a circle, and "I found myself flying nearly due north at practically the same place I dozed off."

It was this experience and icing conditions north of Edmonton, Alberta, which prevented a nonstop flight from Anchorage, Alaska, to Chicago, he said. He landed at Fargo, N. Dak., at 11:46 a. m. (EST) and replenished his fuel supply.

Odom's average speed for the flight, including his 9 hours and 50 minutes on the ground, was approximately 269 miles an hour.

During the 63 hours and 15 minutes of flying time, he averaged 310.59 miles per hour.

Odom took off on his flight from Chicago's Douglas Airport at 12:53 p. m. (EST) Thursday. His first stop was Gander, Newfoundland. From there, he flew to Paris, Cairo,

NLRB Ready To Function as 'Labor Court'

Staff Is Reorganized Under Taft Law With Two New Top Posts

By the United Press

The National Labor Relations Board, which becomes a strictly judicial tribunal on August 22 yesterday announced the completion of the staff reorganization required by the Taft-Hartley labor law.

The five-member board created two new top positions to prepare for its function as a "labor court."

Frank M. Kleiler, former NLRB regional director at Pittsburgh, was named executive secretary of the board, to direct the flow of cases through the decision-making process. Herbert Fuchs, now assistant general counsel, was appointed to the new office of solicitor and will be the board's chief legal adviser.

Denham to Take Over

Under the Taft-Hartley law, the board will be divorced from its nonjudicial functions August 22, when the new general counsel, Robert N. Denham, takes over field administration. This includes the investigation and prosecution of cases arising from labor-management disputes. The board cannot act on a case unless the general counsel brings it before the tribunal.

Under the Wagner Act, the NLRB performed both judicial and administrative functions, and critics charged that the board served as "prosecutor, judge and jury" in labor-management cases.

The board also announced the reappointment of Louis C. Silverberg as director of information. Silverberg also will serve as information director for the general counsel, and is Denham's first appointee.

Two big labor unions meantime clarified their attitude toward the Taft-Hartley law.

Denies Evasion Attempt

Lee Pressman, general counsel of the CIO Steelworkers, denied any attempt to evade the law in new steelworkers' contracts.

He said, "There has been a great deal of misunderstanding and confusion," about CI unions' effort

Bar of District Acts Against Illegal Arrest

Hopes to Prevent Cases as Charged By War Veteran

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

A new effort to protect Washington residents from illegal arrest, and detention such as a Negro war veteran claimed to have suffered last week, was begun yesterday by the District Bar Association.

Attorney John Wattawa was appointed chairman of the Bar Association Committee on Civil Rights by President George E. McNeil.

He was instructed to continue the work begun by the previous committee, which sought a "working agreement" with Metropolitan Police in connection with a study of the practice of holding suspects for indefinite period in jail without placing specific charges against them.

Julius Willie Clegg, 26, 1106 21st st. ne., a Coast Guard veteran who was injured at Normandy, was arrested at 6 a. m. Saturday, August 2, while returning to work at The Washington Post. He was held incommunicado for 34 hours without any charge being filed against him. And he accused two detectives of beating him after a police line-up at which no one identified him as a criminal.

Clegg identified the two detec-

Friday, Robert Bruskin, Post reporter assigned to cover the story of Clegg's charges of police brutality, received two anonymous threatening calls in connection with the case.

The Washington Post Poll

Unemployment or Fear of It Touches 14% of D. C. Families

In June of this year actual unemployment, or fear of it, was a reality to 14 per cent of families in the Washington area, The Washington Post Poll revealed yesterday.

At that time, the chief wage earners in an estimated 44,000 families expected to be unemployed within the next 12 months. The chief wage earners in an additional 28,000 (9 per cent) Washington families were uncertain of their job prospects.

At least one member was unemployed and looking for work in 8 per cent of the families interviewed.

Total unemployment in the Washington area was estimated by The Washington Post Poll to be 25,000 immediately before the end of the fiscal year for the Government when additional Government employes were laid off. Four per cent of the total labor force in this area was unemployed. This is close to the national average of 3 per cent reported by the Census.

(A sample survey made by the Bureau of the Census in April, 1947, estimated unemployment in the Washington metropolitan area to be 21,000.)

2 Cub 'World Tourists' Stop Off at Labrador

Goose Bay, Labrador, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Two former U. S. Army pilots landed their 100 horsepower Piper Cub Supercruisers here this afternoon, ending the second leg of their leisurely flight around the world.

One of the small planes touched ground at 2:54 p. m. (EDT) and the other landed four minutes later.

The two pilots, Clifford Evans, jr., 26, of Washington, D. C., and George Truman, 39, of Los Angeles, Calif., said they probably would spend the night here. They plan to take off for Reykjavik, Iceland, tomorrow morning.

This flight around the world—the first attempted in a plane of less than 575 horsepower—contrasts sharply with the record-breaking flight of William P. Odom. Odom's 4000-horsepower A-26 circled the globe in 73 hours, and President Franklin D. Roosevelt was indirectly connected with the other one—although neither is shown in any sense of the word to have been guilty of any improper conduct in respect to either one of those contracts."

Sen. Pepper Sees Politics Behind Hughes' Plane Probe

Pepper said it was "an unusual coincidence that this case should have been singled out after months of preparation to be the big case which this committee would have this year . . .

"In the case of the big cargo plane," he continued, "Mr. Hughes put nearly $7,500,000 of his own money into it—that is, as lost money—and a great deal of his own time and effort. He therefore derived no profit, and derived no excessive profit, out of the few million dollars which he was to get for building the other three planes."

Further Investigation Favored

Recalling that when President Truman headed the committee it usually filed unanimous reports on similar investigations, Pepper said there was "considerable doubt" that a unanimous report would be issued this time. He did not say whether he planned to issue a minority report.

Pepper emphasized that he favored an extensive investigation of all charges of war contract fraud in the steel, aluminum and aircraft industries with the emphasis on the "most grievous cases of wrongs to the Government."

Many of them, he said, were "more important than a few expense accounts."

Hughes told the subcommittee that he started a program of lavish wartime entertainment for Army procurement officers, including Elliott Roosevelt, because his previous failure to do so had made him unpopular with Army "brass" and had hindered his war contract activities.

Hughes also said that he "probably would leave this country and never come back" if the still earthbound 200-ton plywood flying boat he built for the Government proves to be a failure.

Brewster Says Inquiry Is Only Curtain-Raiser

Dexter, Me., Aug. 10 (INS).—Senator Brewster (R., Me.) declared today that the Senate's current investigation of Howard Hughes' wartime contracts is "only the curtain-raiser" for investigations that may involve many high in Government circles.

Brewster, chairman of the Senate War Investigating Committee, made the statement while vacationing here.

He predicted that "generals and admirals" may be involved in the committee's probe of war contracts. He said many prominent persons will be called before the committee "sometime in September of October."

"The day of the 'little black bag' is gone," Brewster said, referring to the manner in which bribes and "gifts" were transferred in the days of the Teapot Dome oil scandal.

"Today, we have the poker games where $1000 bets are made and where a procurement officer or other person whose favor is sought is always allowed to win.

"In this connection, I know that there are two million of $1000 bills in circulation. That means two billion dollars. . . . And I know that some holders of these $1000 bills are willing to 'sell' them for $500 in smaller bills. It's too hard to explain where you get $1000 bills.

"Then, again, we find that low-salaried procurement officials suddenly become "invaluable" to certain contractors and secure jobs with them at salaries many times in excess of the Government pay."

Brewster disclaimed any political motive behind the current investigation.

D. C. Bar Takes Step to End Illegal Arrests and Detention

tives Friday. An investigation of charges of illegal arrest, detention, and police brutality, filed by his attorney, Roger Robb, is being conducted by Chief of Detectives Floyd A. Truscott. The Bar Association committee which went out of office last month declared in its report that "a working agreement was reached . . . with the Police Department" on the problem of holding for investigation persons suspected of crimes or held as material witnesses. But soon after the agreement Police Superintendent Harvey G. Callahan became ill and later died.

This "agreement," a member of the committee said yesterday, was that Callahan would keep the Bar Association advised as to the extent of the practice of holding prisoners for investigation, without specific charges, and also explain the reasons for such detentions.

Part of a Study

The information which the police superintendent was to provide was to be part of a fact-gathering study being made by a subcommittee of the Civil Rights Committee, the member explained. This was to be used in the committee's consideration, as explained in the report, of "the desirability of an amendment to the (District) code directed toward insuring an immediate preliminary hearing before a judge for all persons arrested or detained."

The new Civil Rights Committee is expected to attempt a similar agreement with Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett.

The present law provides that police "shall immediately and without delay, upon such arrest, convey in person such offender before the proper court, that he may be dealt with according to law."

Ruling by Court

Sometimes "it's pretty tough" to abide by that law, said Police Inspector John Fowler, head of the Police Academy. That is particularly true in "serious crimes," such as murder, where not all the evidence is immediately available, or where a prisoner is suspected of numerous crimes.

But, he added, there are only a few exceptions, and generally "every one arrested is released the same day or brought to court the next day."

The United States Supreme Court in 1944 interpreted the District law for immediate court action in a case involving James H. Mitchell, accused of 30 housebreakings.

Mitchell was held eight days by police while evidence was being assembled, although he confessed to several housebreakings immediately after his arrest.

Curbs Third Degree

The effect of the decision, and a previous one in the case of Benjamin McNabb, was that confessions of crimes obtained after an undue delay in bringing the criminal to court, were not admissible.

Justice Felix Frankfurter declared in the Mitchell case that the District legislation for immediate court arraignment "constitutes an important safeguard—not only in assuring protection for the innocent but also in securing conviction of the guilty by methods that commend themselves to a progressive and self-confident society.

"For, this procedural requirement checks resort to those reprehensible practices known as the third degree which, though universally rejected as indefensible, still find their way into use," he added.

40.3% Held in 1939

"It aims to avoid all the evil implications of secret interrogation of persons accused of crimes. It reflects not a sentimental but a sturdy view of law enforcement. It outlaws easy but self-defeating ways in which brutality is substituted for brains as an instrument of crime detection."

There is no indication how widespread is the present practice of holding persons under indefinite arrest. The Bar Association in 1939 reported that 40.3 per cent of prisoners held by three precincts checked were being held for investigation, without any charges placed against them. This percentage was arrived at after excluding traffic violations and those held for drunkenness or disorderly conduct.

Black Honored By Old Friends Before Game

Cleveland, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Cleveland Pitcher Don Black was honored before today's Cleveland-St. Louis doubleheader by members of Alcoholics Anonymous in the first such ceremony ever sponsored by the society to which the Indians hurler attributes his comeback in baseball.

Black, who pitched a no-hitter against Philadelphia July 10, received $2000 in cash and a testimonial fro mthe society. His teammates gave him a gold watch. The 41,374 spectators drawn by the ceremony, set a new season attendance record of 1,063,613 for Cleveland, but St. Louis marred Black's day by defeating him, 4 to 2.

Naval needs, $6,550,000. Of this $5,500,000 is for torpedo boats, minecraft, anti-aircraft defense, radar and fire control. Nets and booms call for $300,000, and various naval tools and supplies $750,000.

Ports and highways, four million dollars, including port unloading facilities and equipment for strategic roads.

Miscellaneous, $3,700,000, of which $450,000 is for medical equipment, $500,000 for fuel oil and $2,750,000 for training of Turkish personnel both at home and in United States military, naval and air schools.

Most of the arms will come from American surplus or Army current stocks. Some purchases are expected, however, to be made from Britain.

All estimates have been based on the working arrangement that Turkey should be allotted one-fourth of the 400-million-dollar Greek-Turkish aid fund. Officials said, however, this division should not be regarded as final.

Pravda Assails Poster Incident As 'Impudence'

Moscow, Aug. 10 (AP).—Pravda said today that the nailing of anti-Soviet posters on trees in front of the Russian Embassy in Washington was "unexampled for impudence."

The Communist Party paper professed to view this July 31 incident as the natural consequence of "a general offensive by reactionary forces presently characteristic of the political life of the United States."

(The State Department announced Saturday it had taken steps to bring about the prosecution of "certain individuals" who placed the posters.)

Pravda mentioned the State Department's apology, saying:

"A representative of the State Department emphasized that the Government of the United States categorically deplores such actions."

to protect themselves against damage suits under the Taft-Hartley Act. The unions have been seeking clauses in contracts to "prevent employers from securing huge money damages against the union," he said.

"The sole purpose is to maintain the liability of parties to collective bargaining agreements upon the same basis as it was prior to the passage of the Taft-Hartley Act," he said.

The International Association of Machinists, one of the world's largest independent unions, announced that its locals had been instructed to seek NLRB services "in cases of necessity."

Will Not "Run Away"

"The IAM will not try to run away from the law," the union statement said. It "does not intend to devise ways and means to defy and violate the new law," but will try to "live within the act."

However, the IAM emphasized that its attitude should not be interpreted as indorsement of the Taft-Hartley Act as a good law.

Textile Union Seeks Wage Rise in South

New York, Aug. 10 (AP).—Emil Rieve, general president of the Textile Workers Union (CIO), announced today the union would move for wage increases for its 125,000 members in the Southern cotton and rayon weaving industries.

Rieve said the action followed successful conclusion of negotiations with Northern mills which resulted in a 5-cent-hourly wage increase for 90,000 members in New England, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

New Parleys May Be Decisive in Uniting or Dividing World

Command plane, and were transferred to a Royal Canadian Air Force transport which brought them here. They arrived at 5:45 p. m. (EDT), almost 24 hours late.

[Sir William Strang is chief political adviser to the British high command in Germany. United States delegates will be headed by William L. Thorp, Assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, and by Secretary of War Kenneth C. Royall.

[The conferees reportedly hope to find a way to boost the Ruhr's coal output from 225,000 to 350,000 tons a day. Before the war, the Ruhr produced 440,000 tons daily.

[Although Britain and the United States agree that raising German coal production is a key move toward getting Europe back on its fet, there has been a sharp disagreement as t othe methods to be used.

[American officials have objected to British plans for socialization of the Ruhr mines. The British argue that low food rations, and not mismanagement, are to blame for the insufficient mine output. They strongly oppose turning the mines back to "the Krupps and the cartels," and insist on public ownership.

France looks with extreme distrust on all proposals to restore German industry, which are regarded in Paris as a step toward revival of an aggressive Reich.

[Secretary of State George C. Marshall Saturday reassured France that she will have an opportunity to make her position known on any plan for raising Ruhr output which may emerge from the Washington conference.—Editor's note.]

Secretary of State Marshall is due to leave by plane tomorrow or Wednesday for Rio de Janeiro, where he will head the American delegation at an inter-American defense conference.

While the Rio meeting is essentially a Pan American affair, it will be held against a background of world political conflict centered around the differences between the U. S. and Russia.

In fact, every important international meeting between now and the end of the year will influence or be influenced by this fundamental condition of international relations. Here are the main meetings in prospect:

1. The Anglo-American coal conference opening here tomorrow.

2. The Inter-American Defense conference opening in Rio on Friday.

3. Tre Anglo-American loan revision meeting, the time and place for which have not been exactly fixed.

4. A meeting of American and British representatives with French officials to discuss French views on raising the level of industry in Germany. The State Department disclosed Saturday that the United States had agreed, evidently after reaching an understanding with the British, on this conference. The French have objected to Anglo-American plans for reviving German industry up to an annual production of 11 million or 12 million tons of steel.

5. A preliminary 11-nation parley (10 nations if the Soviets fail to attend) to begin work on a Japanese peace treaty. This may be held in Washington beginning in early September.

6. The United Nations General Assembly meeting in New York September 17.

7. A possible Council of Foreign Ministers meeting in New York simultaneously with the Assembly sessions. This will depend on whether Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, British Foreign Minister Bevin and French Foreign Minister Bidault, as well as Secretary Marshall, all go to New York for the Assembly gathering.

If the Foreign Ministers do meet, they may be primarily concerned with trying to complete an Austrian treaty. Their success or failure in this regard would indicate their prospects for success in a meeting later in the year on a German peace settlement.

8. A Council of Foreign Ministers meeting at London in November. The main purpose of this session will be to try once more to reach some agreement on a German treaty and a German economic and political organization.

The schedule of conferences is such toward the end of 1947 the governments of the world should know the answers to two questions now basic to all great diplomatic problems.

These questions are:

First, can the Western democracies and Russia continue with any hope of success their efforts to make peace jointly?

Second, can the economically hard pressed countries of western Europe survive on the resources available to them until the Marshall Plan can become effective, assuming that Congress eventually will appropriate billions of dollars necessary to put the plan over?

The problem of European economic recovery is deeply involved in official American estimates of the world future with the problem of relations with Russia. This is true not only because of Russia's outright opposition to the Marshall Plan but also because top officials here believe that the Russians are counting on progressive economic deterioration in western Europe to give political advantage to the Communists in some key countries at least.

The progress made by the Communists toward seizure of power in those countries, particularly France and Italy, may in turn vitally influence Russia's attitude toward a settlement for Germany.

If the Russians could succeed in outflanking Germany politically by gaining decisive Communist positions in Italy or France they doubtless would be much less likely to consider making agreements on Germany which would be satisfactory to Washington and London than if Italy and France remain relatively independent of Communist controls.

Ambassadors Quit Paraguay Capital

Rebels Believed Pressing Attack On Ascuncion

Formosa, Argentina, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—A group of diplomats accredited to the Paraguayan government by President Higinio Morinigo arrived at this border town today after fleeing from Asuncion, the revolt-torn Paraguayan capital.

Argentine army authorities would not permit newsmen to talk with the diplomats, who numbered about 20, but first reports said the Argentine and Bolivian Ambassadors and the Peruvian charge d'affaires were included.

Argentine station wagons which brought the group here from Clorinda, frontier town directly across the Paraguay River from Asuncion, returned toward Clorinda immediately. It was believed other members of the Asuncion diplomatic corps were in Clorinda awaiting transportation.

It was the first time since the Paraguayan civil war began, March 7, that the diplomats had sought shelter. Observers believed they would not have fled had the government been in full military control of the situation.

The diplomats fled after the last dispatches from Asuncion, now more than 24 hours old, said fighting between rebel forces and government troops had taken place within the capital itself.

This was not confirmed, but announcements by the rebel radio station today claimed the revolutionary troops had taken the village of Piribebuy, nine miles north of the capital. For several days the rebel station has been heralding a decisive battle for Asuncion.

Arab Gang Kills 4 Jews In Robbery

Jerusalem, Aug. 10 (AP).—A band of armed robbers killed four Jews, including a woman, and wounded sever others critically with gunfire and a grenade blast tonight after robbing a cafe crowded with merrymakers on a bank of the Yankon River on the outskirts of Tel Aviv.

A Jewish source who described the attack said about 20 Arabs wearing military uniforms took an undetermined amount of money from the place, the "Hawaii Garden Cafe."

Jewish sources said the attack was the biggest Jewish-Arab clash since the Arab revolt of 1936.

The cafe, operated by Jews, is in an Arab-owned building.

Haganah, the moderate Jewish underground group, issued a circular earlier in the day warning that "Arab terrorism will be increased."

Earlier, three Jews were wounded seriously when the premature explosion of a bomb in Haifa wrecked a taxicab that previously had been stolen.

The taxi was stolen in midmorning by four men who forced the driver out and sped away.

London Synagogue Is Target

London, Aug. 10 (AP).—An apparent attempt to burn a London synagogue was reported to police today.

David Leader, an official of Finsbury Park District Synagogue, said burning paper saturated in oil and paint was pushed through a window of the building during the night, but burnt itself out without doing any damage.

Zionists Meet Tomorrow

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Zionists from 17 nations will convene at Karlsbad Tuesday to discuss means of combatting Jewish terriorism and breaking the British immigration blockade in Palestine, it was announced today.

Louis Segal, general secretary of the Jewish National Workers' Alliance of America, said the four-day conference would attempt to establish an over-all Zionist agency for Europe, combining general, labor and religious groups and coordinating their programs.

Raiding Greek Slain, Albania Agency Says

London, Aug. 10 (AP).—The Albanian telegraph agency said today in a dispatch from Tirana, quoted by the Soviet news agency Tass, that a Greek soldier was killed and another wounded in a clash with Albanian border guards last Wednesday.

The dispatch said a group of Greek soldiers crossed the frontier into Albania in the Verkhni Dropul region of the district of Dirocastri and attempted to seize Albanian guards, who resisted. The Greek soldier killed in the clash was buried in Albania, the agency said.

(Brig. Stylianos Manidakos, spokesman for the Greek army general staff, told a news conference in Salonika Saturday that the guerilla army currently fighting in Greece has its headquarters in Tirana, the Albanian capital.)

Midwest Quake Attributed to Shifting Bedrock

Chicago, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—An earthquake which shook five midwestern States last night, overturning furniture and frightening thousands of persons, was attributed today to shifting bedrock in the Great Lakes region.

The Rev. Alphonse R. Schmitt, S.J., chairman of the Loyola University physics department, said the temblor was the "biggest ever experienced" in the five-State area of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Schmitt said the Loyola seismograph recorded a tremor of four minutes duration, but it was felt for only about 10 seconds. It was caused by a shift of bedrock in the earth's inner structure, he said.

The seismograph record indicated that the quake was centered about 200 miles east of Chicago, in the northeast corner of Indiana, the northwest corner of Ohio or southern Michigan, Schmitt said.

No injuries were reported and there was no serious damage.

Chinese Reds Escape Across Yellow River

Nanking, Aug. 10 (AP).—Government reports from Suchow Field headquarters today said the Communist army of Gen. Liu Po-cheng had escaped across the flooded Yellow River in western Shantung province after suffering heavy casualties under government attack.

Independent accounts two days ago said Liu's forces, which had been on an extensive foray in Shantung for the past month or more, had been pinned against the river and lost many men by government bombing of ferries.

Other Chinese dispatches said the government's new Eighth Army, which has been isolated in eastern Shantung for more than six months, had punched its way eastward to Kaomi, 60 miles by rail west of Tsingtao, in an effort to join with outposts from Tsingtao.

Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, continuing his United States mission of inquiry in China, conferred with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in Nanking all morning and stayed for lunch. Wedemeyer's group is due to go to Formosa tomorrow.

Cards to Supplant Visas Urged for American Tours

Panama, Panama, Aug. 10 (AP).—The first inter-American tourist congress has recommended a continental tourist's card, and standard tourist and immigration practices throughout the Western Hemisphere.

All the American republics except Paraguay and Uruguay were represented at the congress which adjourned here last night after a week's session.

The continental tourist card, valid for six months, would eliminate passports, visas and departure permits for inter-American travel. The various governments would require certificates of good behavior, good health, financial solvency and citizenship before issuing these cards, which would be obtainable directly from the governments or from their consulates. The Pan American Union was asked to prepare a model card for distribution among member governments and Canada.

De Gaulle's 'Ambition' Hit By Ramadier

Paris, Aug. 10 (AP).—Premier Paul Ramadier asked the French people today to beware "the danger of a strong-arm state of a strong man who pretends to be the incarnation of the nation."

The Socialist premier's speech, at Agen in southern France, was delivered as General de Gaulle said at Alencon that France could have confidence if Frenchmen were united and "turned toward a great and definite aim, guided by worthy leaders."

Both Ramadier and De Gaulle attacked Communist aspirations, with Ramadier speaking against a "mass dictatorship."

De Gaulle appeared at the Alencon liberation anniversary celebration despite a fall last night that injured his right knee and required him to undergo medical treatment.

Ramadier's speech came while the National Assembly in Paris debated a critical phase of the proposed new Algerian government statute. The issue has threatened to split his four-party cabinet on the eve of a vote of confidence tomorrow over MRP and Communist opposition to Ramadier's proposals for a new municipal electoral law.

The premier, after an obvious reference to Communism, which he said tried through propaganda to change the meaning of the word "democracy," made what his listeners understood as an attack on De Gaulle's "Rally of the French People" movement.

"There is another danger on the other side," Ramadier said. "It is the danger of a strong-arm state of a strong man who pretends to be the incarnation of the nation, predestined to command without control. That is the way to dictatorship."

British Laborite MP Won't Sell Diggers to Russia

London, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—The Sunday Dispatch said today that Richard Stokes, Laborite member of Parliament, had banned all trade between his mechanical excavators manufacturing firm and Russia.

Stokes said he did "not propose to accept offers from Russia until the Baltic states have been freed and the 17 million people of many nationalities held in slave labor camps" have been released.

He said his plant, the largest of its kind outside Russia and the United States, was working to capacity and didn't need the Russian business. "Even if we were nearly bankrupt," he added, "I'd take the same view."

He refused to make equipment for Mussolini in 1935 when Italy invaded Ethiopia. His firm is Ransomes & Rapier, Ltd.

15,000 Scouts Hear Bilingual Church Service

Moisson, France, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Thousands of Boy Scouts from 42 nations worshiped this morning at open-air Catholic and Protestant services as the International Jamboree of Peace went into its first full day.

An estimated 15,000 Scouts and delegates attended a giant bilingual Protestant service conducted by the Rev. Charles Finit of France in an outdoor amphitheater. The sermon was delivered in French and relayed in both English and French by loudspeakers.

An American Boy Scout band played as hymns were sung simultaneously in French and English.

Other thousands among the 35,000 encamped here attended Catholic mass pronounced by Father Forestier, chaplain of French Scouts. Several other masses were said in smaller encampments about the rolling grounds 40 miles west of Paris.

Meanwhile, thousands of visitors poured into the jamboree city and the camp restaurant estimated it would serve 15,000 extra meals during the day.

The jamboree opened last night with a colorful "parade of nations" and a monster camping ceremony. Before church services began this morning, national delegations paraded again and took part in a flag-presentation ceremony.

Also on the program today were Czechoslovakian folk singing and "peace dance" exhibition and a congress of "old Scouts"—persons who have been in the movement for at least 25 years.

One of the most popular Scouts in the camp was Earl Old-Person, a Blackfoot Indian from Browning, Mont.

Kaiser Develops 'Cheaper, Better' Aluminum Sheet

New York, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Henry J. Kaiser today announced development of a new utility type of aluminum sheet which he said would enable aluminum to compete with sheet steel in many uses.

The new product, turned out by the Spokane, Wash., rolling mills of the Permanente Metals Corp., is available now at a price about 15 per cent lower than any comparable aluminum sheet, Kaiser said. It will sell for 21 to 22.5 cents a pound at the mill.

He said it could be fabricated with standard equipment in any sheet metal shop and was "particularly adaptable to residential, farm and industrial applications where bending, lock seam joining, light-weight non-rusting characteristics and ease of handling are desirable."

Bill Odom Pilots Bombshell Around World to New Record

Karachi, Calcutta, Tokyo, Anchorage, Fargo, and back to Chicago.

Questioned while he ate a dish of ice cream and a sandwich in the Chicago Municipal Airport headquarters, Odom said most of the flight was "routine."

"The worst part was flying the hump in Burma," he said. "I flew into a monsoon there and the plane bumped so badly my chair rolled back off its track and cut a cable, knocking out the automatic pilot.

Catches Tail Wind

"The weather was awful. The visibility was bad. And I had a thoroughly bad time until I was near Shanghai where I caught a fine tail wind and decided to fly to Tokyo."

Shanghai had been one of his scheduled stops.

Odom estimated he had slept in the air about two and one-quarter hours during the flight, including the hour and 40 minutes over Canada.

"I had a good nap between Karachi and Calcutta," he said. "I just set the automatic pilot and let it fly the ship."

Odom said he felt that it was better to forgo sleeping periods on the ground, because "you can't relax enough to get good sleep while you're under tension."

Odom, 6 feet 2 inches tall and balding, said it had been his ambition to fly around the world in record speed ever since he met Wiley Post in 1933 in Tulsa as a boy of 13. Post gave him an autographed piece of the Winnie Mae's fabric.

Odom left that fabric fragment in Anchorage this morning attached to a small wreath, a tribute to the earlier airman who died at Point Barrow, Alaska, with Will Rogers in a plane crash in 1935.

The Odoms live in Roslyn, N. Y. During the war he made 36 crossings of the Atlantic Ocean as a British ferry command pilot, and later he flew for the Chinese National Airways.

Here are the comparative figures on William Odom's record globe-circling flight and the two previous flight records which he bettered:

Total mileage flown—19,645.

Total elapsed time—73 hours 5 minutes.

Total flying time—63 hours 15 minutes.

Average speed in flight—310.59 miles per hour.

Total time on ground—9 hours 50 minutes.

Odom's earlier flight with Milton Reynolds and T. Carrol Sallee in April this year:

Total mileage flown—20,020.

Total elapsed time—78 hours 55 minutes.

Total flying time—58 hours 47 minutes.

Average speed in flight—340.52 miles per hour.

Total time on ground—20 hours 8 minutes.

Wiley Post's solo flight in 1933:

Total mileage flown—15,596.

Total elapsed time—186 hours 49 minutes.

Total flying time—115 hours 36 minutes.

Average speed in flight—127.43 miles per hour.

Post Had It Tougher

Chicago, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Wiley Post did it the hard way when he flew around the world alone back in 1933. Bill Odom had things a little easier this time.

When Post made his flight in the Winnie Mae, he had only the standard instruments—air speed and turn and bank indicators, altimeter, compass and clock—and a two-way radio. There were no radic beams in those days and the veteran fliers' navigatng was strictly on a pencil and paper basis.

Odom had little trouble clipping days off Post's record of 186 hours and 49 minutes. The Winnie Mae, with its single 500-horsepower engine, had a cruising speed of only 145 miles an hour. The Bombshell, powered by two 2000-horsepower motors, cruises at 350 miles per hour and has a top speed of 450.

5 minutes and 11 seconds. Evans and Truman said they'll be pleased if they make the flight in 30 to 40 days.

The two pilots made an unscheduled landing last night at presque Isle, Me. They began "bumming their way around the world" at 11:11 a. m. (EDT) yesterday, when they took off from the Teterboro, N. J., airport.

From Iceland the 95-mile-an-hour planes will hop to Scotland, England, Holland, France, Italy, Tunisia, Libya, Egypt, Iran, India, Burma, Siam, China, Japan and back to the United States by way of Alaska.

"We're going to take our time and see the sights—like regular tourists," Evans said.

Filipinos Ask Trade Barriers

Manila, Aug. 10 (AP).—A small but influential group of Manila businessmen was embarked today on a movement to erect trade barriers to safeguard Philippines industry from what it calls "a colonial economy."

Driving force behind the movement is J. Salvador Araneta, acting president of the Philippines Chamber of Commerce. He opposed American equal opportunity as provided in a recent national plebiscite.

The announced aim is to set aside some restrictions of the United States Bell Trade Act, which authorized the presidents of the two countries to reach executive agreement covering trade relations for the next 27 years.

Araneta said "many of us believe that free trade with the United States and tying our peso to the dollar at the high 2-to-1 rate of exchange established a colonial economy for the Philippines."

The Bell trade agreement provides for an unlimited free entrance of American goods into the Philippines while it provides for limited free entry of Philippine goods into the United States, as all the United States principal exports are subject to quotas. Furthermore, the President of the United States is authorized to impose quotas on other Philippines products.

"We believe we cannot successfully industrialize our new industries within the framework of the Bell Act. We lack freedom to protect them with tariffs against powerful American competition."

Siam Merchants Must Sell All Rice at Once

Bangkok, Aug. 10 (AP).—The Siamese government today ordered compulsory sale of all rice in the kingdom, effective immediately, because of the failure of merchants to turn over stocks to the government rice purchasing bureau.

Merchants holding stocks must contract with the bureau before August 18 at present prices. After that they will be forced to sell holdings at a discount of about 20 per cent.

Embattled Red Aide To Leave Stockholm

Stockholm, Sweden, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Greg Michailov of the Soviet Embassy staff told the newspaper Expressen, today that he was returning to Moscow "because my Stockholm assignment is finished."

The Swedish Foreign Office had requested Michailov's recall after he and another Russian spent a vacation in Sweden's forbidden defense zone. Russia rejected the request on the grounds it was not justified.

Mothers Vacation as Diabetic Children Visit Summer Camp

Six District area mothers are enjoying a month's vacation—probably their first in years—as their diabetic children join other happy youngsters at the Christ Child Farm for Convalescent Children near Rockville.

Dr. K. Hammond Mish, who is in charge of the diabetic section of the camp, said the youngsters, aged 6 to 10, have required "constant supervision," which has usually been given by the mothers.

Learn to Gauge Diet

At the camp, the children are being taught to care for themselves by learning to administer insulin to themselves and weigh their diet items. The camp's two trained nurses and Dr. Mish are supervising the instruction.

Dr. Mish said the Rockville camp is the only one in the Middle Atlantic area for diabetic children. Four additional campers are expected before the season closing on August 31.

Established in 1937

In addition to providing the youngsters with the usual advantages of summer camps, the Rockville organization helps them "adjust psychologically" by "showing them that they can do the things that others do and can take care of themselves," Dr. Mish said.

The diabetic section was established in 1937 by Dr. Mish and Dr. E. Clarence Rice. It was continued annually until 1941, when the lack of trained personnel forced its discontinuance. The present session is the first since the end of the war.

The Christ Child Farm, a Community Chest agency, has an additional 28 campers housed in a large rambling house surrounded by several acres of grass and trees.

Attlee Says Spartan Program, Not Outside Aid, Is Sole Hope

sold its foreign assets, reduced production of civilian goods to a minimum, lost nearly all its export trade and much of its shipping.

When the United States entered the war, he said, lend-lease started and that supplied Britain with essentials. But when the war ended, so did lend-lease, and Britain was left to its own resources, with thousands of homes and factories blitzed out, factories not reconverted from war production and thousands of workers, badly needed at home, in the armed forces.

Nevertheless, he said, Britain had made a good start toward recovery and the volume of exports in 1946 was greater than in 1938, the last previous peacetime year. But he said this progress was set back at the turn of the year by insufficient coal and electrical power, and last winter, the worst in 50 years, had hit industry and agriculture alike.

He said Britain had borrowed $3,750,000,000 from the United States and $1,250,000,000 from Canada, hoping these loans would be enough to carry the country through until at least 1949. But because of the world food shortage and the fact that British industry was hampered, he said, they had been largely dissipated.

Attlee did not mention two subjects about which he is being criticized in his own party—his reported decision to delay the nationalization of iron and steel and the size of his proposed cuts in the armed forces to provide industrial manpower. But he devoted one paragraph to answering Conservative Party charges that his bill to give the Cabinet dictatorial powers over industry and individuals was "totalitarian."

"I believe that nearly all will willingly put their shoulders to the wheel, but there may be some who will not," he said in this respect. "It is for this reason that the government has introduced a bill which, while it gives no greater powers than were given to the present government in 1945, enables them to be applied to the present crisis. The government is determined that nothing shall stand in the way of our recovery."

Winston Churchill and fellow Conservatives are scheduled to renew their attack on the bill when it comes before Commons for final action tomorrow. They contend its powers are so broad that the government could take almost any action under them.

General Warns Of Indifferent View on Army

Malone, N. Y., Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, commandant of West Point, warned today that the world was living in an era of suspended hostilities that could be renewed at any time and urged this country not to become indifferent to men in the armed forces.

Taylor

Taylor, speaking at the dedication of a war memorial recreation park here, said that any break in the continuity of U. S. military strength would be a "possible break in the continuity of peace."

"It has been the regular thing in our military history to forget the armed forces as soon as victory has been achieved," he said. "More than the curtailment of material means, the studied indifference of the mass of our citizens and the outright contempt for the men who are content with soldiers' pay have tended to destroy that morale and self-respect from which the stamina of fighting forces is derived.

Taylor cited the lessening of competition for entrance to West Point and the falling off of Army enlistments as evidence of the Nation's growing indifference towards things military.

Russia Finds Rich Oil Field, Austrians Say

Vienna, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—An authoritative Austrian government official said today that the Soviet management of the Zistersdorf oil fields had discovered a "very important and promising new field."

The Russians expect a "considerable" increase in the present monthly production rate of 85,000 tons of crude oil, the source added. He also said that 55,000 cubic meters of natural gas were being erupted daily in the new field.

Austrian authorities wanted some of the gas for use in Vienna, he said, but Soviet authorities turned down the request.

The official said Austrian workers had been recruited "by duress" to work in Soviet-administered industries in eastern Austria. Labor officers have received orders from the Soviets refusing permission to work in their occupation zone to anyone who previously was unwilling to work in a Soviet enterprise, he added.

Egypt to Go Before Security Council With Protest Against Britain

Lake Success, Aug. 10 (AP).—Egypt today prepared another broadside at Britain in the fight to get Tommies off of Egyptian soil.

The United Nations Security Council goes back into session tomorrow and early indications were that delegates would split sharply over what to do about the Egyptian demands. One possible solution was reference of the case to the International Court of Justice.

Premier Nokrashy Pasha continued to maintain that the 20-year Anglo-Egyptian treaty signed in 1936, covering the presence of troops, was drafted while Egypt was under military and administrative control of London. In the eyes of Cairo, the pact has been voided by the U. N. Charter and other U. N. agreements.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, British delegate, outlined another speech to the Council in which he planned to insist again that the treaty was entered into freely and that tossing out of such a pact would undermine the whole structure of international relations.

Elsewhere on the crowded Council calendar there were these developments:

1. A subcommittee seeking some way out of the deadlock over Balkan disorders left the next step up to Russia. A series of proposals covering the range of months of debate were handed to Andrei A. Gromyko to see if any one could be considered by the Soviet Union. Should Gromyko turn them down, the Council will begin debating new and stiffer proposals on Tuesday.

2. The Indonesian Republic asked to be heard in its dispute with the Dutch government. The Netherlands government meanwhile announced that delegates representing East Indonesia, West Borneo and the Chinese community would leave Batavia tomorrow to present their version of the case to the Council. Australia was ready with a demand that the U. N. send a commission to the troubled spot.

U. S. Frees All Of 8 Million German POWs

Berlin, Aug. 10 (AP).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay reported today the United States has released all German prisoners of war and completed destruction of top priority German defense works in the United States zone.

Clay

The American military governor, in a review of demilitarization, said that from May 10, 1945, to June 30, 1947, the United States discharged 8,010,007 prisoners of war.

The Americans are the first of the four occupying powers to release all their German war prisoners. The Russians still hold 900,000. The British have 267,000 in the United Kingdom and 77,000 in the Middle East. The French have several hundred thousand.

Disarmament Progressing

Disarmament of Germany is progressing, Clay said. Captured German war materials are being destroyed or converted for peacetime use. Explosives are being transformed into fertilizer.

The German war potential is being reduced by destruction of war plants or removal of their equipment. Work has been completed on 36 of the 128 war plants listed for demilitarization. The progress report included:

Disposal of war material is anywhere from 43 per cent complete for chemical warfare ammunition to 100 per cent for naval armaments and armored equipment. Priority One installations are 100 per cent destroyed. These include minefields and 1300 defensive construction and U-boat pens.

V-Weapon Sites Destroyed

Priority Two installations are 60 per cent destroyed. These include V-weapon sites, fighter control and radar installations, permanent fortified land obstacles, permanent coastal defense, airfields, underground factories and depots and military research centers. These must be eliminated by January, 1949. Military installations other than fortifications and defense works are 91 per cent disposed.

Revival of peacetime industry has made such limited progress that prospects for the months immediately ahead do not warrant great optimism, the report said.

"The industrial capacity for sustained expansion is available, but until considerable progress is made toward solution of food, coal and transport problems no vigorous resumption of the industrial upswing can be anticipated," it added.

Repair of locomotives and railroad rolling stock lags seriously because of lack of spare parts. Labor shortage is critical.

Crime, particularly thefts of food, clothing and wood, continued upward in June. Illegal border crossings, almost entirely infiltrating from the Soviet zone to the west, continued to mount.

U. S. Envoy to Fly to Jogjakarta in Effort to Settle Dutch-Indonesia Row

Batavia, Java, Aug. 10 (AP).—U. S. Consul General Walter A. Foote said today he expected to fly to the Republican capital of Jogjakarta tomorrow "in connection with the United States offer of its good services" in settling the Dutch-Indonesian conflict.

Foote made clear his departure depended on receiving in time permission from the Republicans to land at their capital.

The consul general sent over the Batavia radio tonight a personal message to President Soekarno and Premier Amir Sjarifoeddin saying when he planned to take off from Batavia. The Indonesian Republic replied that Foote would be welcomed.

Foote's visit would be the first formal one paid to Republican territory by an official representative of the U. S. State Department since the Republic was proclaimed August 17, 1945.

Sjarifoeddin, in accepting the U. S. offer last week, said the Republic desired that the United States' good offices be limited to exerting pressure upon the United Nations and the Netherlands to have the Indonesian dispute settled by an international arbitration commission.

The Indonesian government formally requested the U. N. Security Council to permit a Republican delegation to participate in sessions dealing with the Dutch-Indonesian conflict.

Sjarifoeddin, in a statement broadcast by the Jogjakarta radio and addressed to the U. N., asked that former Premier Sutan Sjahrir and Foreign Minister Hadji Agoes Salim, both now in New York, and three other unnamed Indonesians be recognized as the Republican delegation.

The Netherlands East Indies government announced that delegates representing the Dutch, Chinese and non-Republican sections of the Indies would leave tomorrow morning to present the case before the U. N.

Delegates for East Indonesia will be President Tjokorde Gde Rake Soekawati, Premier Nadjamoedin Daeng Malewa, and Interior Minister Anak Agoeng Gedge Agoeng; for West Borneo, Sultan Hamid II of Pontianak.

The party will include Dr Teunku Dzulkarian, of the "committee for Sumatra's east coast," which the Dutch say has asked for separation from the rest of the Indonesian-controlled island; Raden Rangga Tirtasoejatna, former Republican resident of Bantam, in West Java.

Accusations of truce violations continued from both sides today.

The Republican army commurique said the Dutch launched seven attacks in the past two days, including an unsuccessful attempt to capture Boegis airfield, about six miles east of Malang in Eastern Java. In Central Java the Dutch captured Kedoengdjati and, under an artillery barrage, were attempting to push westward to Gogdaliam, the communique added.

The Dutch announced that their forces on the Dutch-controlled outer islands of the Indies—Borneo and the Celedes—had been attacked in local actions. This was the first report of fighting outside Java, Sumatra, and Madoera since the conflict began July 20.

Reynolds Cuts Price Of Building Aluminum

New York, Aug. 10.—(U.P.)—R. S. Reynolds, president of the Reynolds Metals Co., announced today price reductions averaging 20 per cent on aluminum building materials.

Reynolds said that increased demand and production enabled his company to reduce prices on aluminum shingles, clapboard siding, snap-seal roofing and ceiling panels.

Soviet Drafts Reich Labor, Paper States

Berlin, Aug. 10 (U.P.)—The official American German-language newspaper, Neue Zeitung, reported today that labor offices throughout the Soviet occupation zone had been ordered to draft 20,000 men for work in the uranium mines in Saxony.

The newspaper said the directive was issued in a secret order to labor offices. It calls for men between the ages of 16 and 45. The workers allegedly will be sent to mines in the Erz Mountains of eastern Germany near the Czechoslovakian border.

The article quoted informed quarters as predicting that Germans who do not want to work in the mines will start a new wave of illegal flights from the eastern zone to the west.

Germans returning from the Saxony mine area have described it as under heavy Russian guard, the paper said. There was said to be "feverish activity" in the pits.

The newspaper also said that Russia still holds about one million war prisoners from Romania, Hungary and Yugoslovakia but that the exact number is unknown.

You'll go for it — look, line and sinew!

This is the big one that mustn't get away.

This is the prize catch that's worth all the patience you can muster, because there's never been an automobile quite so full of all the things to make your heart rejoice.

Take the looks of it. The looks of something really good and able — broad, deep-chested, solid in its footing, a performer if there ever was one.

Take the sweeping lines. Clean — fresh — eye-winning wherever you go. Smart now and smart for years to come — because it's plainly the pattern that calls the turn for many a season.

Lift the bonnet. Fill your eyes on that spacious compartment filled to its brim with the makings of thrilling, zinging, winging power.

Here's everything it takes to take you places in effortless ease — eight big cylinders smoothed to velvety action by superfine finish and precision, the matchless flashing action of Buick's exclusive Fireball power.

Watch this traveler stride the roads with the steadiness only ample roadweight and size can give you. Catch its nimble footwork, as four gentle coil springs soak up the bumps, leveling them flat, shielding you against solid jar and annoying ripple with equal ease.

Take the wheel and handle it a while. Feel the "sweetness" of the steering, the firmness of controls, the surprising lightness of a car that's two-tons husky. Check the lean and sinewy toughness that means a long and durable life.

Go for this Buick? Of course you do — with the same eagerness it goes for you when you touch your foot to its treadle.

Then why not do as smart buyers are doing all over the country? Get your order in now — and make sure that you'll drive America's most wanted automobile.

We'll take your order, you know, whether or not you have a car to trade.

Wide Of The Mark

Frank T. Bow's implication that any effort on the part of the State Department to acquaint the people with world conditions which underlie the Marshall Plan may entangle officials in a violation of law should not be permitted to stand unchallenged. It is true that Congress has legislated against the use of Federal funds to influence action by Congress. There was good reason for doing so. Congress found that some agencies were using public money to inspire letters, telegrams and personal calls urging Congressmen to provide more funds for those agencies or to approve some policy in which they were interested. This, of course, is a vicious practice and Congress was justified in prescribing sharp penalties against its continuance.

But to intimate, as Representative Harness apparently did before the adjournment of Congress, and as Mr. Bow, counsel for the House subcommittee which is investigating executive pressure on Congress, does now, that this measure will prevent full and candid discussion of the Marshall Plan by State Department officials is an absurd attempt to negate the processes of democratic government. Democracy can operate, as a whole galaxy of statesmen have said, only when the people are properly informed. To leave the people ignorant of what is happening in the world and leaderless in the present emergency would be an invitation to chaos. It would be an act fraught with such peril that we can scarcely conceive of any responsible person suggesting it.

The distinction that has to be drawn is that between undercover effort to set a bureau-inspired claque at the heels of Congress and free and open appeals by Government officials to the intelligence of the people. So far as our information extends, the State Department is contemplating no effort in support of the Marshall Plan that would not fall clearly into the latter category. In other words, the department is relying upon the age-old democratic practice of informing the people and then listening for the reflection of their judgment. We know of no other method by which popular government can operate successfully. And we can see no means by which the House Expenditures Subcommittee could interfere with this interplay between officialdom and the people without violating the spirit of the law and making itself ridiculous.

Installment Credit

When he signed the bill providing for an extension of controls over consumer installment credit to November, President Truman expressed regret at the refusal of Congress to enact legislation providing for a longer extension of the control period, as urged by the Federal Reserve Board and the Council of Economic Advisers. In spite of the rapid increase that has occurred in the volume of installment credit during the past year and a half, no evidence of unsound developments has yet appeared. But there is danger that, as competition among sellers becomes more aggressive, terms of sale may become overliberal, thus adding to existing inflationary pressures.

Both Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board and the Council of Economic Advisers have warned that competition taking the form of a liberalization of credit terms would militate against competition that tends to lower prices or at least to check a rise in prices. Under present conditions, with most types of goods customarily sold on time still in scarce supply, the danger from overliberalization of terms of sale does not appear to be great. But we cannot count on indefinite continuance of sellers' markets to prevent overexpansion of installment credits—a development that would, as the President says, "inevitably be followed by severe contraction, thereby contributing to unemployment and to reduced production."

In our opinion, the short-term effects of dropping all controls over consumer credit are less to be feared than the long-range consequences of removing this segment of credit operations from control by the Federal Reserve authorities. The effective application of credit-control methods of a general sort that attempt to regulate the supply of credit through changes in the interest rate is becoming increasingly difficult. Hence, there is greater need for so-called selective credit-control policies—of which consumer credit control affords an illustration—to restrain or stimulate specific types of credit operations. We believe that such types of control will eventually come to be increasingly relied upon in this postwar era to correct unsound credit developments that constitute a threat to business stability. The refusal of Congress to pass legislation authorizing permanent control over consumer credits is for that reason cause for deep regret.

Congressional Reform

Gloomy reports on the results of the Legislative Reorganization Act have had wide circulation of late. In part they are undoubtedly well founded. Yet many of them have gone too far. We think the facts abundantly uphold Congressman Mike Monroney, coauthor of this reform, when he says that "Congress has rung up a 50-50 score on performance in its first session under the new rules."

Mr. Monroney finds that 14 changes effected by the act are operating fairly well. These include the realignment of committees, the improvement of committee procedure, reduction of private bills, the strengthening of the Legislative Reference and Legislative Drafting Services, improvement of the Congressional Record, increased pay for legislators and the registration of lobbyists. Only partly successful has been the surveillance of the executive departments, the expert staffing of committees, the proposed elimination of legislation from appropriations bills, the opening of hearings to the public and the confinement of investigations to standing committees. Ten provisions in the reform program are listed as "not working." These include the legislative budget, expenditure analysis by the Comptroller General (for which no funds have been appropriated), proper staffing of the Appropriations Committees and home rule for the District of Columbia.

Mr. Monroney does not join in the wailing that has been heard as to the new committee structure. He thinks that too many of the old subcommittees have been retained and too many of the old committees have been converted into subcommittees. Even so, the present Congress has 31 fewer committees of all types than its predecessor had, and the new main committees, organized along functional lines, have eliminated a great deal of jurisdictional squabbling and duplication of effort. Over the vigorous protests of the reformers, Congress created four special committees in the last session. Without the Reorganization Act, however, Mr. Monroney concludes that special committees would have numbered at least 20.

Private bills have not been completely eliminated, but the number of such bills in the present Congress has been greatly reduced. Settlement of tort claims is now entrusted to the Federal Courts, and questions concerning the building of private bridges and the correction of military records go to the appropriate department. Mr. Monroney thinks that the provision bringing lobbyists under the spotlight of publicity has not yet been adequately tested, but more than 800 lobbyists have registered. That alone is no meager achievement.

"It is generally agreed," says Mr. Monroney, "that about 50 per cent of the committee professional staffs qualify by experience and education." This is a disappointment, although some committees have not yet been able to find the type of personnel they need. Two dismal failures are chalked up to the House Committee on Appropriations. First, it denied itself an adequate staff to scrutinize the 35-billion-dollar Federal budget, and, second, it refused to open its hearings to the public as the law requires and as all other committees did. This stubborn adherence to outworn custom prevented the great majority of legislators from knowing anything about items in the appropriations bills until the day these were reported to the House.

As to the fiscal control provisions, Mr. Monroney feels that they have not been discredited but for the most part ignored. The proposed legislative budget was designed to chart a financial course for the year to be followed as closely as possible, instead of passing isolated appropriations and revenue bills without reference to a guiding policy. A deadlock between the House and Senate left it completely inoperative this year. But Mr. Monroney contends that the lack of advance staff work prior to the opening of Congress and the consequent extravagant estimates of both houses as to possible economies prevented a fair test of this provision. He is by no means ready to discard it.

The provision for policy committees was ripped out of the reform plan by former Speaker Rayburn as the price of securing a vote in the House. Policy committees were nevertheless set up in the Senate. In our opinion similar committees should be set up in the House to tighten up congressional leadership and to provide a joint body that could work with the President in over-all policy planning. Undoubtedly some changes and improvements in the Legislative Reorganization Act will have to be made in the light of experience. But in our opinion it is more and not less modernization of our national policy-making machinery that is needed.

Not Enough Food

Grim is the only word for the international food picture provided in the report of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization. The slight improvement in fruits and vegetables, meat and dairy products this year is counterbalanced by the need for substantially greater grain exports than were achieved in 1946. Fertilizer, too, is extremely critical. Even if these deficits somehow are met, the diet of hundreds of millions of people will remain at a near starvation level. The conclusion from this and every other assessment of world food prospects is that the raising of supplies to a point consistent with demand is a slow, long-term process in which progress often will be heart-breakingly meager.

The FAO report emphasizes what it terms the danger of divorcing the immediate problem of relief for war-devastated nations from the goal of permanently increasing the world's food production. No real solution, of course, is to be found in temporary expedients. In other words, present relief outlays are largely nonproductive unless constructive effort is made by each nation to take stock of its long-term agricultural needs. As the report implies, the end of UNRRA and the growing shortage of foreign exchange make it more imperative to define goals and reasonable means of achieving them.

The FAO rightly takes note of the error of accepting prewar food production as a standard. World population increases by 15 to 20 million people each year. An incidental factor in the present shortage probably is that there is more awareness now of the need in marginal areas than there was before the war. The report has done well to point to the possibilities of Latin America and Africa as "two safety valves for relieving the growing pressure of world population upon the world food supply." One important use being made of such areas is British growing of peanuts in East Africa, thereby increasing the supply of fats and oils.

While it is essential to work toward long-term goals, we hope that the FAO in its forthcoming conference at Geneva will not upset the extremely valuable work done by such agencies as the International Emergency Food Council in allocating available supplies. For it is apparent that the emergency will continue for some time, and it can best be met practically by agencies already coping with it. Furthermore, while some better way of handling surpluses is vital, we hope the FAO will not raise the specter of overproduction when the crying need is for more production. That could be a grave disservice in the same way that too much emphasis on the grain shortage could aggravate distress by touching off speculation on the already outlandishly overpriced American grain market. Where the FAO has a tremendous opportunity to serve humanity is to show how by helping themselves nations can better reconcile world production with their long-range needs and the means to pay for them.

Britain's Movie Tax

Remittance earnings of the American motion picture industry are estimated to amount to 68 million dollars yearly. The gravity of the British crisis warrants stern measures to prevent these scarce dollars needed to buy food and essential materials from being used to entertain British motion-picture audiences. Consequently, the British decision to cut down—virtually ban—imports of all foreign films is, in our opinion, a commendable feature of the new austerity program, even though it deals a severe blow to the American motion-picture industry as well as to the British owners of motion-picture theaters.

However, the method adopted to keep foreign films—chiefly American, of course—from being imported is open to severe criticism. In future all imported films are to be subjected to a so-called ad valorem customs duty that is ingeniously designed to tax away 75 per cent of the earnings of the American industry from the showing of such films. A confiscatory proposal of this kind, that has already resulted in cancellation of further shipments of American motion pictures to Britain, arouses much greater resentment than would a forthright banning of importations. That is revealed by the exasperated comment of Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, who said: "If the British do not want American pictures, that's one thing. If they do they shouldn't expect to get a dollar's worth of films for a quarter. And that is exactly what the tax will do."

Apart from the unwise strategy of this indirect approach, resort to confiscatory taxation in the guise of customs duties to exclude imports open up rather alarming possibilities of discrimination against not only our films but also other goods, as indicated by Mr. Johnston. Our efforts to lower trade barriers taking the form of prohibitive tariffs and restrictive import quotas would be of little effect if these obstacles to freer international trading disappeared only to be replaced by devious, discriminatory taxing devices having equally hampering effects on the movements of goods. For this reason we regret that the British did not resort to direct methods of cutting down or banning the importation of films. Incidentally, the offer of the American producers voluntarily to permit a substantial share of their earnings to be blocked for the time being is not an acceptable alternative dollar economy device. For it would only mean a deferred drain on Britain's scarce dollar reserves, whereas what the British need to do is to reduce definitively their overseas buying for nonessential purposes in order to free funds now and in the future for more important uses.

RAIN

The rain stops at the window; it cannot get by this long glass;
And I like to think of the miles it traveled to get as far as it has,
Over city and stone, over spire and chimney and the tree-damp park,
To leap through the air and come to rest on my sill in the dark.
I sit and look at the shining globes that wait for a gathering force
To bend them away and send them down on an earthward course,
Knowing the land is a dark and tranquil sea
where they will go down,
And deep between rivers of grass and stone will utterly drown.
They are my visitors, these drops on the window's edge and out of the sky,
And I look at their shining selves and salute them as they go by.

Palestine Campaign

Neither your editorials nor the letters of your readers disposed of the vital issue in the Palestine question. What, if any, justification is there for the undeniable fact, that American brains, work and money are participating in perpetrating outrages in Palestine or in provoking such or retaliating for the same?

There is no proof whatsoever for the desire of any considerable group of Jews to migrate to Palestine, but there are strong indications that mass movements like the exodus of Romanian Jews to Vienna are wholly artificially enforced on people who wish to stay in their homeland and cooperate in its reconstruction. There are further hints that non-Jewish persons held in Allied camps in Germany and Austria are forcibly prevented from returning to their native lands. Such violations of rights which we hold are basic, should be a starting point for an investigation by American organizations like the Civil Liberties Union.

Neither should we tolerate an organization like the American League for a Free Palestine which misuses American institutions for a hooded campaign to misguide Jew and Christian in this country and seem to have won a foothold. Its seemingly inexhaustible funds stream from mysterious sources. A thorough screening of the Christian sponsors of this organization in all probability would reveal a highly amusing bed companionship of convinced anti-Semites with the most militant Zionists. Both types of people fight for a perpetual cleavage among Jew and Christian and for mass ghettos.

Congress should outlaw any activity on American territory widening the split into national and religious groups. Organizations serving such purposes then should be dissolved, their alien members deported, and their citizen-members investigated as to their loyalty to the United States and to humanity.

JOHN GEIGER.

Washington.

Brewster's Probe

Although the editors of Harper's magazine probably did not have the present Brewster-Hughes investigation in mind when they printed the following quotation by the author of the Leather Stocking Tales in their August issue, readers who have been following the Senate committee hearings will find it peculiarly apropos:

"It is time to begin to consider our legislators in their true character, not as sentinels to watch the executive merely, but as those of the public servants the most likely to exceed their delegated authority . . . If this Union shall ever be destroyed by any error or faults of an internal origin, it will not be by executive, but by legislative usurpation. The former is easily enough restrained, while the latter, cloaked under the appearance of legality and representation, is but too apt to carry the public sentiment with it."

—James Fenimore Cooper in a letter to his countrymen, 1834.

The truth of this observation is being borne out in the comedy playing on Capitol Hill, for by now it is apparent to the public that Senator Brewster's investigation has been a boomerang. The average citizen can see little difference in an Army officer accepting dinners and night club entertainment from one airplane manufacturer while a Senator accepts airplane rides and football tickets from another. The whole country can be grateful that Mr. Hughes survived his near-fatal air crash of last year and is here to answer the charges leveled at him even though it may possibly turn out to be a case of the pot calling the kettle black.

Every American with a sense of fair play will hope that this spurs an investigation of war contracts all along the line. But until the facts are known, it should not be assumed by any group of Senators that Army officers or civilian procurement officers are any more venal than Congressmen.

Elliott's Round

Your editorial of August 6, "Elliott's Round," is a blow to clean and honest government. Now, anybody in Government can take substantial "gifts" from contractors and privilege seekers with the assurance of editorial support from The Washington Post. I am sure, however, notwithstanding the very low moral standards of your newspaper, that nearly all Americans are decent and will continue to refuse to accept bribes in any form or disguise.

RICHARD E. LEWIS, JR.

Winchester, Va.

Editor's Note: So far from condoning the practice of accepting favors from "contractors and privilege seekers," the editorial said: "That the officers and officials who accepted these favors were guilty of a degree of bad taste amounting to irresponsibility goes without saying." This, of course, is an explicit condemnation of the conduct of Mr. Elliott Roosevelt. However, the editorial did express the opinion that it was from partisan political motives, rather than from those of impartial inquiry into the business ethics of Government contractors, that of all the vast sums spent in such favors, only the money spent by Mr. Hughes on Mr. Roosevelt was made the subject of detailed investigation. Nothing in the subsequent conduct of the inquiry has caused us to alter that opinion.

Navy In The Merger

On July 28 your editorial informed the public that the Navy is "the home of hidebound traditionalists." A blanket condemnation!

On August 1 your editorial column informed its readers that Admiral Halsey's "chief concern now is the glory he missed," and you infer that he is lacking "a sense of responsibility and a recognition of the necessity for teamwork." This, despite the well-known fact that in the South Pacific he inherited a disaster and promptly produced a confident, efficient fighting force unexcelled in teamwork.

On August 5 you indict the Navy for suppression of free comment on the national defense legislation during its consideration by the Congress. Lobbying by military personnel cannot be condoned.

Are these editorials unrelated or are they a coordinated attack? What is your objective? Does the answer lie in the last sentence of the August editorial—"fodder for possible future amendment of the Merger Act"?

If your purpose is future amendment of the Merger Act, would it not be better to proceed openly, directly and aboveboard? If your objective is what you conceive to be a more perfect national defense organization, would it not be better to cease these biased and obviously one-sided attacks which serve only to encourage intraservice distrust and rivalry? Are you stimulating in our armed forces "a sense of responsibility and a recognition of the necessity for teamwork" by this series of editorials?

A careful and unprejudiced study of the three editorials cited will certainly indict The Washington Post and its editorial policies, not the Navy or its leadership. Until its passage, your editorial columns wholeheartedly supported the Merger Act. Why this sudden and inexplicable reversal? What are you up to?

Sudeten Germans

The letter from Johann Rudolph Klinger published on July 23 reminds one of the subtle, whining Nazi propaganda which began in the early 30s and became more abusive and violent as the war drew near.

How can any sane and intelligent person defend the so-called "Sudeten" Germans, and ask that their present plight be considered, when practically the entire population of that border region betrayed the country which gave them more freedom and better livelihood than they could have found anywhere else in the world—including Germany. They wanted to be Germans and not citizens of Czechoslovakia, so they were sent to the country which they longed for so much.

In spite of a greater proportion of schools, utilities, public buildings and highways constructed in the region occupied then by them, and the disproportionate expenditures which the Czechoslovak government made for their benefit—far beyond what was being done for the population in the interior—they were not satisfied, but exercised all means to make their comparatively small minority the masters of the state. They had a large representation in a democratic parliament, and several ministers with various portfolios in the government.

In the United States, long before the war, Nazi propagandists were endeavoring to prove there were 30 million Germans or people of German descent and, therefore, that this country should be predominantly German. Their "Sudeten" German and other groups were scheming and conniving for the overthrow of the Czechoslovak government, and paving the way for the Nazi machine to start rolling long before the war began.

Klinger's claim that Great Britain and France consented to the "Sudeten" region becoming a part of Germany, after Runciman's inquiry into the situation, is erroneous. The fact is that a few misled statesmen who were at the heads of the respective governments at that time, were overly anxious to pacify Germany then, only because their nations were not sufficiently prepared and were willing to sacrifice less (to the detriment of Czechoslovakia) rather than to suffer a great loss. But none of them, I am sure, expected the Nazis to go as far as they did. Runciman, of course, dealt only with the German politicians and large industrialists in that region, from whom he obtained his report and "official" viewpoint, rather than with the officials of the government at Prague.

The Germans from the Czechoslovak border region—so-called "Sudeten"—have now what they always wanted. They were not happy in a democratic state, with freedom and equality for all, so they were sent to their homeland, which they longed for, and where they can cause no harm. The situation they are confronted with now is nothing by far what they caused the Czechoslovak people to go through, and to suffer during seven dreadful long years of terror and oppression when such large numbers of men, women and children were murdered in cold blood.

Fitness And Freedom

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS: A FRAMEWORK OF PRINCIPLE, by William Ernest Hocking. (University of Chicago Press, $3.)

This is an effort by an eminent philosopher to find a moral justification of the First Amendment in the light of contemporary social conditions. It differs from previous reports of the Commission on Freedom of the Press in having been written in a fairly respectable English prose, although the professor's points are blurred by his fondness for epigrammatic definition and by an austere abhorrence of illustrating his generalizations by concrete examples. A further difficulty is created for the reader by the debate, conducted in form of footnotes, with other members of the commission. But then the professor's task, as every reflective person knows, was no easy one; he calls upon Dr. Johnson to testify that "the danger of unbounded liberty and the danger of bounding it have produced a problem in the science of government which the human understanding seems unable to solve." Mr. Hocking indeed finds himself obliged to dismiss as inadequate in the present world most of the traditional defenses of the free press.

Of these the most famous is of course the Areopagitica of Milton, wherein it is set forth in wonderful rhetoric that, "though all the windes of doctrin be let loose to play upon earth, so Truth be in the field we do injuriously by licensing and prohibiting to misdoubt her strength"; in other words since truth is mighty and must prevail, why bother about the fallacies and lies? But even Milton, as Professor Hocking is quick to observe, put limits to freedom; where Lilburne, the Leveler, demanded full liberties for Papists and sectaries, Milton conceded that any indulgence of "Popery and open superstition" would be suicidal to the state. But the authors of the Constitution, distrustful of all government, even a government of their own creation, admitted no qualification. They extended the principle of laissez faire to "the whole range of spontaneous human nature." The nineteenth century liberals held liberty necessary to progress, on the theory, as elaborated by J. S. Mill, that to suppress error is to discourage the discovery of new truths. Thus Mill would place no restriction upon liberty of expression save where it results in demonstrable harm to another. The notion that where there is a free and equal field to truth and error truth will triumph assumes the existence of criteria whereby the conflicting evidence may be tested and the truth determined. But where the criteria themselves are challenged there is no conclusion to the debate. It is all very well to say that men are free to differ and that this very difference enriches life, but is there not a point beyond which this diversity becomes destructive rather than creative? Professor Hocking thinks there is, and that "the very talents of civilization" will "unbuild civilization" unless there remain some common standards of truth, justice and beauty. Thus freedom of the press cannot safely include freedom to repudiate or to debase these standards. Nor can it include freedom to lie or to distort. The professor, happily, would let us retain the right to be mistaken; but he insists that those who are "deliberately in error" must in some way be punished and restrained.

But how are civilization and the standards of truth to be protected against the assaults of cynicism, malice, and licentiousness? To say that the state must protect them is of course no answer at all since it immediately raises the question of who is to protect us from this protector. The state, to be sure, has even now power to intervene, after the fact, in cases involving libel or obscenity, but should it be given power to intervene before the act, that is to say before publication or production, in other words by censorship? Professor Hocking appears to hold that, since the public indignation is no longer to be depended upon, a limited form of state censorship is necessary, despite its obvious dangers. Since "the obscene in press or stage comes forward assuming its own acceptability and does find acceptance among its own and a reliable market," something must be done to suppress "this sly and pervasive hypocrisy of vice," its honorless campaign under cover of fine words against the most fragile defenses of the soul, and especially of the soul of youth." However, the difficulty here has always been to find a formula will exclude pornography without also excluding literature, and the difficulty is complicated by the fact that, as the professor says, that the obscenity "is at least half in the mind of the observer rather than in the thing observed," and this may apply quite as much to the censor as to the rest of us.

In any event, censors or none, the press can no longer escape its responsibility, for the reason that men are no longer free, as they were formerly, to accept it or do without it. The press, it seems, not only reflects "the mind of the Time," it helps to create it. Thus "its faults and errors have ceased to be private vagaries and have become public dangers." It is no defense to say that the customer is apparently satisfied with what he is getting, for unless he is made to realize that something better can be had he will never know that he should want it or why. Precisely because the press has ignored this obligation, "the morale of its readers is low," from having been too long fed on "superlatives and excitements." They have come to believe that the purpose of journalism is to transform "narrative into melodrama." Thus the readers can no longer be trusted to recognize the truth even when they see it, for they have come to "imagine propaganda both where it is and where it is not."

Naval Air Power

A Communication

Your atomic supplement of August 3 should bring you a Pulitzer Prize to add to your deservedly high reputation for foresighted journalistic statesmanship.

THERE ARE implications in Mr. Bernard Brodie's article on the slowness of military adaptation to atomic war, in your atomic supplement of August 3, which go to the root of a major and growing weakness in our military scheme. These implications he failed to bring out, and thereby left ground for misunderstanding.

The Navy, says Mr. Brodie, would not even get started in the 72-hour war of the future. "It would take at least 30 days to unpickle one of our laid-up destroyers," he says. It is entirely true that we may never have time to "unpickle" our great reserve fleet (of which carriers are a more vital element than destroyers). But if that turns out to be true, neither will the Air Force have time to unpickle its factories; it too will have to rely on such organized groups and planes as it has in combat commission when the war starts.

If we are limited to considering active and ready units, Mr. Brodie must certainly be aware that we are maintaining in full active commission our 12 newest large carriers, with all vessels required to support them, and with their air groups ready for battle. This fully and instantaneously ready Navy carrier force is equal in size and striking power to the fast carrier task force that spearheaded the Pacific war. It thus represents the only military arm we have which is kept ready in peacetime at anything approximating full war strength.

MR. BRODIE must know this, though he does not mention naval aviation once in his article. Why then does he ignore it as a factor in his hypothetical 72-hour war of tomorrow? The rest of his article provides a clew. Mr. Brodie, a distinguished student of sea power, refers to the Navy solely in terms of sea power, and never in terms of air power available for the accomplishment of functions not connected with traditional sea power functions.

This is a habit in which Mr. Brodie finds himself in company with the official Navy, i. e., surface Navy, position. Even the new National Security Act, and the executive order issued thereunder, appear to codify the Navy's mission (including therein the mission of naval aviation) in terms which, though fuzzy and ambiguous, do not go much beyond Mahan.

The Navy has in the aircraft carrier and its planes a means of warfare which is not limited in its capabilities solely to the maintenance of sea power for traditional purposes. The Navy's air weapon was, it is true, developed for the support of purely naval operations. And the Navy keeps on talking of it, in a maddening way, as merely one of the many integrated elements of sea power. But carrier aviation has already expanded considerably the concept of what is a purely naval operation.

The concept of amphibious assault developed in the Central Pacific and proved at Leyte, Luzon and Okinawa, for example, grew wholly out of the carriers' ability to perform other than strictly "naval" tasks,—at their chains of land bases hundreds of miles from the scene of the amphibious landings.

The concept of a "naval" operation should now properly be extended further, regardless of the original purpose of carrier aviation, regardless of traditional views of the "proper" function of a navy, to the limits of the carrier forces' ability to contribute to our primary needs in war. Carrier aviation is no longer purely sea power; it is air power operating from bases at sea.

THOUGH THE sea may not be the medium on which are fought the critical battles of tomorrow, it is still a medium from which attacks can be launched. And the sea is still an irremovable obstacle separating our land masses from those of the enemy, with the polar regions as the only dreary alternative. Mr. Brodie glosses over this, but the Air Force must still contend with the distance the sea represents. This distance forces the Air Force to rely on huge, heavy bombers limited in their offensive and defensive capabilities. In a short war the Air Force would no more be able to build bases across the ocean than would the Navy be able to restore inactive ships to duty.

The sea is a major obstacle to the enemy's land-based air force as well as to our own. As such it will force our enemy to put his air force on its shores, to lessen the distance to us. But the sea is no obstacle to our carrier forces. The enemy bases near the shore, used for strategic attack against us, would thereby be exposed to our carrier attacks. This would not be naval war, but air war. Should we therefore forecldse it to carriers, which have proved their ability at this same task (then undertaken for "naval" purposes) in the Pacific war?

The enemy would also have strategic targets within range of carrier-based air attack. Some of these, including factories, oil, power and vital land transportation targets, are more effectively attacked by small carrier planes than by heavy Air Force bombers. And carrier planes could use atomic bombs as well. Must carriers refrain from doing harm to these enemy installations because they are not proper naval targets? Shall we refrain from most effectively developing carrier aviation for these tasks for the same reason?

CAN CARRIER planes really stand up in combat against shore-based planes? Can carrier planes really do effective strategic bombing? They certainly can, and the most dreamy unreality is that two years after the war no one has told the public the facts. Navy fighters far outfought AAF fighters in air combat with Jap planes, throughout the Pacific war. A thorough and honest comparison of the relative bombing accuracy of carrier and Air Force bombers would make the public's flesh creep at the waste and deception practiced on them by the AAF.

Everyone in the Navy knows this, or could if he wanted to take the trouble to find out. Yet we bumble on with sea power. I will not detail what the Navy lacks to carry out these tasks of air power. There is no use telling the Russians. Suffice it to say that these news conecpts have not been adopted nor implemented.

Believing, as does Mr. Brodie, that the "military mind" has in general been greatly libeled, and that intelligence, imagination, and disinterested motives are abundant in the services, I can only suggest that the fault lies in the "exaggerated premium on orthodoxy" he mentions, plus the dominance in the Navy of officers who do not fully understand, or believe in, the compelling preeminence of air weapons in general, or the possibilities of their own air weapons in particular.

THIS CONVICTION is reinforced by a study of Navy Department personnel. Aviation is not adequately represented in high Navy planning circles, such as the office of the Chief of Naval Operations. Aviators are largely segregated in the air division, and only a handful scattered among other divisions —one for every 10 surface officers. The personnel division has one aviator out of 16 officers, and he the junior, yet this division makes personnel plans for the entire Navy. The operations division, which includes strategic planning, has one aviator for every five surface officers, the logistics division one for 18, naval intelligence one for 20, the joint Chiefs of Staff delegation one for 7.

It seems to me very much as if Mr. Brodie should devote his considerable talents to investigating: (1) Whether the United States does not need a new definition of the functions of naval aviation entirely separate from and not restricted by the traditional sea power mission of the surface Navy, and (2) whether the Navy does not need a complete new orientation of its high command, displacing those surface men and "tame" aviators whose lack of faith in the future makes them cling to a shaky status quo, and giving power to those naval aviators who have displayed and still display vision and courage in the development of naval air power to a level for beyond what the surface officers called for or dreamed of.

Leipzig Has Epidemic Of Food Poisoning

Berlin, Aug. 10 (AP).—The American-licensed newspaper Tagesspiegel reported here today that "food poisoning paratyphus B" had hospitalized more than 600 persons and caused at least two deaths at Leipzig in Russian-occupied Saxony. Health authorities, the paper said, attributed some cases to the eating of raw or rare horse meat.

Regulating Transportation

FOR NEARLY 75 years the Federal Government has been trying to regulate transportation. The effort at regulation began when the railroads struck out across State boundaries and the Interstate Commerce Commission eventually came into being to police them.

Childs

Subsequently, other commissions have tried to cope with ever-faster forms of travel and trade. A glance at the record will not encourage those who champion the principle of regulation in the interest of fair competition and reasonable rates.

What happens is that gradually within the bureaucracy intended to do the regulating job a set of vested interests grows up. The interest of the railroads, the airlines, the steamship lines comes to seem identical with the public interest. Sometimes, to be sure, it is. But often the private interest is directly contrary to what is required by the public good.

Two dreary examples are conspicuous at the moment. One is the Maritime Commission. It is a cumbersome, weary bureaucracy that seems to exist merely to ratify the decisions taken by the steamship lines.

This is pointed up by an action which has just come up for hearing before the commission. Wallace Howland, head of the Department of Justice's anti-trust office in San Francisco, has brought a charge of monopoly against a group of shipping companies on the Pacific Coast.

Under a rate agreement by the companies, it is charged, shippers are compelled to sign a uniform contract. If they do not sign, they must pay a higher rate.

THE ANTI-TRUST action has caused a tremendous stir in shipping circles. That is because similar rate agreements cover the companies operating out of other ports. This is done, it would seem, with the blessing of the Maritime Commission.

It is a bonanza for foreign shipping companies. They come in under the rate umbrella, too, and because they pay their seamen much less than we pay ours, their profits are huge.

If the commission should find that the Pacific companies were enforcing monopoly rates, it would cause profound repercussions throughout the shipping industry. Should the commission rule against the Department of Justice, then the department could take independent action in the courts. Whether this is done will be decided after the commission acts.

The second example of decline and decay is the Civil Aeronautics Board. The recently appointed chairman, James M. Landis, is trying to shake up the CAB, but thus far has not been conspicuously successful. The dominant interests in the aviation industry are not so firmly entrenched in this bureaucracy, since it is comparatively new.

There are many obvious reasons why the effort to regulate a powerful industry should be difficult or impossible. To begin with, the men who sit on the Government side of the table are paid far less than the men who want to circumvent or change the regulations in their own interest. Over and over again, when a bright young man has learned his way around on the Government side, he is persuaded by a much larger salary to move over on to the industry side.

Too often political has-beens are appointed to the commissions. A commission appointment is regarded as a political plum. This makes for ignorance and incompetence at the top level.

BUT THERE is another and even more important reason why the effort is so feeble. You can't balkanize the transportation industry in this day and age. The separation of ocean, rail and air under separate commissions is purely arbitrary. They all compete with one another.

The urgent need is for an overall commission or department with powers over all transportation. To do this would mean cutting through the jungle of bureaucracy. It should mean a saving of Government money and the chance at really efficient and effective regulation.

Whether this will ever happen is anyone's guess. Powerful forces both in Government and in industry find the present system all too convenient.

U. N. Oil Authority Opposed

By the United Press

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States last night opposed creation of a United Nations authority to control world oil resources.

Earl O. Shreve, the chamber's president, urged Secretary of State George C. Marshall to "use your good offices" to present the chamber's "absolute opposition" when the proposal is considered by the U.N. Economic and Social Council.

The International Cooperative Alliance of London recommended an authority within U.N. to administer world oil resources and said it first should take up Middle East reserves "by and with the consent of the states involved."

Shreve, in a letter to Marshall, protested that the proposal involved a "delegation of power and control" that is "contrary to policies of the Chamber of Commerce and contrary, we believe, to the spirit and purpose of the Anglo-American oil agreement now before the Senate."

He said the chamber's policy on oils is that "our Government should foster private enterprise of its nationals in foreign exploration, production, transportation, refining and marketing of petroleum and its products.

"It should give the necessary and appropriate diplomatic support under the principles of international law to its nationals engaged in foreign oil operations and should itself refrain from entering directly or indirectly into the oil business."

Under the ICA proposal, he said, "the United States is asked to consent to an international control over its oil resources in a form not only contrary to our established system of free enterprise, but requiring the exercise of an authority beyond the recognized constitutional powers of our own Federal Government."

Matter Of Fact

December Special Session

PRESIDENT TRUMAN, who enjoys his dealings with Congress about as much as a cat enjoys a bath, is still nervously clinging to his hope of avoiding a special session. As might have been anticipated, however, the hope is already growing pretty dim. Already, in fact, the British crisis and the extremely grave reports coming in from the rest of Europe have forced the White House to begin reconsideration of the problem. As of today, the betting is better than even that there will be a special session in December.

This idea has two conspicuous virtues. It fits the time schedule already laid out by the White House. And it minimizes the possibility that the special session will be transformed into a sort of political nightmare.

VERY BRIEFLY, the approval time schedule for the Marshall Plan is as follows. The participating European nations are now at work in Paris on their program of self-help. The Harriman, Nourse and Krug committees, appointed by the President to study this country's ability to underwrite the deficits of European reconstruction, have also begun work in Washington. First drafts will be prepared, on both sides of the water, some time in September. Several weeks will still be needed to iron out details.

Then, as already reported here, the finished plan will be offered to the Senate and House Foreign Relations and Foreign Affairs Committees in October. Extremely detailed and complete arguments are to be offered to the committees. Thus, although hearings will be held without the distraction of other legislative business, the committees will require at least four to five weeks to complete an approval bill. This places the time when a full debate can usefully begin no earlier than the end of November.

Since the regular session starts only a month later, just after the new year, it was originally decided to let the lawmakers finish their vacationing and fence-mending as usual. Now, however, a month begins to seem a long time, when measured against the tempo of European deterioration. Thus the White House is thinking with much more favor of a special December session, to be called, if possible, with the concurrence of the Foreign Relations and Foreign Affairs Committees' chairmen, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, and Representative Charles Eaton, of New Jersey.

The beauty of this device is that although the session will be special, with no other business before it but the Marshall Plan, the Congress can plunge into the debate with no delay for committee hearings. Consequently there will be the least possible risk of "satan finding work for idle hands to do"—a proverb quoted around the White House with a certain glum relish. This largely removes the President's chief objection to a special session, which has been his fear that an unoccupied Congress would degenerate into a sort of Walpurgis-night of election year politics.

Such is the encouraging side of the picture. One does not yet find in the Administration the sense of urgency the situation overseas would appear to justify; but at least the facts are being faced.

THE PICTURE also has its discouraging side, however, when one considers the treatment of the Marshall Plan as a national issue to date. With all his virtues of good sense, honesty and courage, the President has little flair for political leadership. As for the one man who might help Truman to dramatize the plight of this Nation and the world, Secretary of State Marshall unfortunately inclines to confuse political leadership with that bastard art, "public relations."

Under Marshall, the whole State Department attitude toward the most essential task of political leadership—the presentation of great issues to the public—has become even more negative than usual. The line is: "Say nothing; that way you won't get into trouble." Public pronouncements that might have valuably stimulated the people to think about problems have actually been discouraged, as when Secretary of Agriculture Anderson and Secretary of Commerce Harriman returned from abroad. Neither President Truman nor Secretary Marshall has as yet given the country a clear statement of policy to chew on, so that everything else is also unclear.

The intention now seems to be to delay the first such policy statement until Marshall speaks on September 14, just before the opening of the United Nations Assembly. This will allow little time, indeed, for the country to make up its mind on an issue on which, quite literally, the whole future, all that is good and all that matters, quite directly depends.

Even so, however, one can feel confident that the country will be decided by a consideration aptly summed up, recently, by one of the ablest men in the country, in answer to one of the gloomier economizers. "What you ought to study, my friend," ran the remark, "is not what we can't afford to do: what you ought to study is what we can't afford not to do."

U. S. to Distribute 5-Acre Plots Along Alaska Highway

By the United Press

Opening up a new frontier for modern homesteaders, the Interior Department announced last night that it will start giving away 2,750,000 acres of land along the Alaskan highway on October 2.

Five-acre parcels of land will be deeded to eligible settlers free of charge, under an act of Congress recently signed by President Truman.

Veterans will get first choice on the 12,000 acres selected as the best for commercial development.

The Interior Department warned prospective homesteaders that "little, if any," of the land is suitable for farming. The soil is too thin, the ground too wet, the altitude too high, and the frost too frequent.

Minerals and timber, it said, are the chief raw materials awaiting development.

The land to be given away stretches five miles on each sdie of the 338-mile long United States portion of the Alaskan highway. It was withdrawn from the public domain during the war when the Army started building the highway.

The Army will hold a 600-foot right-of-way on each side of the road, but Congress and the President have agreed that the rest of the land now can be distributed to twentieth-century pioneers.

Government officials emphasized that no "mail-order" applications would be received.

Would-be homesteaders were advised to see the land with their own eyes, choose a business or occupation which gives reasonable promise of providing a livelihood, and then arrange for financing their "start."

Once a settler's application has been approved for a particular tract, he must wait nine weeks before taking over his land to insure the "public notice" required by law. After that, the land is his—free.

Travelers from the States will need a Canadian travel permit covering the Canadian section of the road.

Legislation authorizing land-grants along the highway was one of several measures Congress passed before adjournment to aid in the development of the northern United States territory.

Another—opening up the Tongass National Forest to the newsprint industry—was hailed today by a group of Alaskan veterans, the Port Chilkoot Co.

The company is composed entirely of World War II veterans, and is developing a former Army post into a "model town" on the highway.

Italian Workers Kick At New Price Rises

Rome, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—The Communist-controlled Italian Confederation of Labor (CGIL) threatened today to revolt against new government-imposed price increases.

The confederation warned that it would order its members not to pay increased gas and electricity bills unless workers were guaranteed additional wages. They have been granted two "cost of living" bonuses in the last two months but the CGIL said these were inadequate and should be retroactive.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

A report of President Rafael L. Trujillo's successful fight for the liberation of the Dominican Republic's financial burdens. President Trujillo's message to the Senators and Deputies assembled in the national Congress on July 17, 1947, follows:

MESSRS. DEPUTIES:
MESSRS. SENATORS:

I have come to present before the National Congress a project of law by means of which the necessary funds will be appropriated FOR THE LIQUIDATION OF THE ENTIRE FOREIGN DEBT.

The significance of this project is so great that I have wanted to present it personally before the Legislative Chambers. By decision of the Dominican people I will return on the 16th of August to swear before God, by my country and my honor, to sustain and defend the independence of the Republic.

The execution of the Bill that I bring to submit for your consideration will constitute the final step in the process of financial liberation of the Republic and will eliminate the last trace of foreign interference in the management of our finances . . . interference that began in the year 1888 through rights ceded to European banking firm of Westendorp and Company to collect the customs income, which was used to make effective the guarantee conceded that firm for the loan that they made to the Republic.

HISTORY OF THE DEBT

As distant as that date may seem, now that 59 years have passed covering more than half of our independent life, the loans of 1922 and 1926 are intimately linked to this cycle of our national history. Because of the notorious ineptitude of previous administrations, we had to deliver a part of our sovereignty in exchange for foreign economic aid. This condition began to be remedied in 1930.

The first loan negotiated abroad by the Dominican Government was made by the firm of Hartmont and Company of London, in 1869. In spite of the fact that the contract gave the bankers the right to collect customs revenue which came into the Ports of Santo Domingo and Puerto Plata, to guarantee the payment of interest and amortization of the loan, the reverses suffered in the execution of this disastrous operation would not permit bringing into practice the collection by agents of our creditors as provided for in the contract.

This became effective with the loan negotiated in 1888, through the "La Regie" or General Collection Agency, into which there entered only foreigners, of diverse nationalities and without whose permission, as representatives of the bondholders of the loans contracted then and later, the Dominican Government could not modify the excise tax nor name the employes of these offices aside from being unable to make any other dispositions such as were guaranteed and reserved for them by the Constitution of the Republic.

From November 1, 1888, when the Collection Agency began its functions, the finances of the Republic were handled through foreign interference. Under this regime, the country suffered the most painful humiliations. The public debt grew immeasurably.

It passed from one mistake to one even greater, when the administration of Ulises Heureaux, together with the Westendorp group, the Santo Domingo Improvement Co., gave birth to the law of August 9, 1897, authorizing a loan for the conversion and consolidation of the public debt which reached 4,236,750 pounds Sterling.

This same law conceded to the aforementioned company the right to ask the Governments of Holland, Belgium, Great Britain, France and the United States to intervene in the collection and disbursement of customs funds of the Republic. Because of the conditions imposed by the first four of these governments, in practice, intervention could only be asked, as it was later, of the Government of the United States of America.

The debt converted and consolidated in 1897 defaulted on April 1, 1899. Upon the death of Heureaux, the foreign public debt was raised to $23,957,078 and the national debt to $10,126,628, or a total of $34,083,706.

The result of that law and the subsequent financial disorder were causes of the breakdowns from which the Republic suffered in the beginning of the present century. It was the germ from which the instrument known by the name of Protocol grew, subscribed to by the Government of the Republic and that of the United States of America on January 31, 1903. The decree was issued by the Arbitration Commission instituted by the above mentioned Protocol, in which payments were to be made to the Santo Domingo Improvement Co. and were guaranteed by the income through customs in the Ports of Puerto Plata, Sanchez, Samana and Monte Cristi. The American Government was authorized to name a financial agent who would establish an office in Santo Domingo. It was this same decision that authorized the financial agent to take possession of the customs of Puerto Plata.

From this moment, chaos reigned in the Republic. The difficult economic situation and the frequent internal convulsions disturbed the Governments of Italy, France and Germany, whose warships were seen in Dominican waters waiting for the moment to disembark troops in order to satisfy their credits by force of arms. This disturbed the government of the United States because of the menace it signified to its policy in the Archipelago and the Antilles.

January 20, 1905, saw the signing of the first Dominican American Pact stipulating that the Government of Washington would take charge of arranging all the obligations of our government, foreign as well as internal, and would take under its authority the customs income. The Pact of February 7 of the same year reaffirmed these decisions; but since this was not satisfactory to the Congress of the United States because it did not approve the method employed by President Theodore Roosevelt in concluding this Pact, the Dominican Government itself, by the Resolution of March 31, 1905, known as the Modus Vivendi, conceded unilaterally to the United States the same rights that the Covenant had ceded it upon our customs income.

THE COVENANT OF 1907

On February 8, 1907, the Dominican American Covenant was signed. It succeeded in obtaining the constitutional sanction of the Congress of the Republic and of the Senate of the United States.

This Treaty gave to the President of the United States the right to name a General Receiver of Customs to collect all customs taxes of the Dominican Republic until payment and retirement of Dominican Government bonds which were to be issued for the purpose of settling its debts.

The exercise of this right by the Receiver of Customs resulted in a painful situation. Frequently, he assumed the attitude of naming employes of his department without consulting his superiors in the Dominican Government. This instrument also decreed that the Republic could not increase its public debt nor modify the excise and import taxes without the consent of the United States Government.

According to the Treaty of 1907, there were issued in 1908, $20,000,000 in bonds at 5% annual interest from the sale of which foreign and national creditors were paid according to what was called the Adjustment Plan. Creditors were satisfied or payment made with a discount.

THE TREATY OF 1907 SERVED AS A PRETEXT FOR MILITARY INTERVENTION WHICH WE SUFFERED FROM 1916 to 1924. During the time of the military government that was imposed upon us by force, two foreign bond issues were made. One in 1918 in the amount of $4,161,300 destined for the payment of the claims against the state caused previously by the Adjustment Plan. Another in 1922 authorized an issue of $10,000,000 of which $6,700,000 worth was sold that year. In March, 1926, the remnant of $3,300,000 was sold. In 1924, the Goverment of General Horacio Vasquez called a new meeting with the Government of the United States that substituted the agreement of 1907, in which there were maintained the same tight clauses on the national sovereignty which were contained in the previous treaty. This time the purpose of the agreement was to make a loan of $25,000,000 to the Dominican Republic for the purpose of consolidating the foreign debt and to realize certain public works. In spite of the fact that the aforementioned conversion was not put into effect during 1926 and 1928, an issue of bonds of 5½% was floated for $10,000,000.

Contrary to what had been promised, the 1926 loan was made under conditions even more onerous than those stipulated by prior loans. A charge was imposed upon the government for the payment of amortization completely disproportionate to its financial capacity. Beginning in 1930, amortization payments on the 1922 loan were to have been made in the amount of $841,666.66 a year plus 10% of the customs income in excess of $4,000,000 and upon the issue of the 1926 loan there would be paid 10% of its principal or $1,000,000 annually.

THE SITUATION IN 1930

This was the situation I found with regard to the foreign debt when I was elected to the Presidency of the Republic in 1930. The bad previous administration had made such ineffective use of the millions provided by the loans and had demonstrated such evident inefficency in accepting a plan so disproportionate in administration that it left me only the painful glory of a State compromised with a treasury from which it was impossible to make disbursements for even the most essential public services.

I esteem it essential to affirm that the chaotic economic situation that I had to face in 1930 was not created exclusively by the mistakes of the previous administration. Previous administrations and the American Government made errors that contributed to this condition.

The payments that were to be made on the amortization in 1931, or, in the same period in which accent was placed upon the great world economic crisis of that time, came to the sum of $1,841,666 and the payment of interest to a little less than $1,000,000, making an approximate total of $2,841,000. Meanwhile, the National Budget, during the years in which the loans were spent was maintained at a figure of about $15,000,000. It dropped to $7,311,417, leaving only $4,000,000 for public service.

Had not a common-sense policy been placed into effect in the face of this tragic situation, the most intense era of misery and backwardness of our history would have been produced. The credit of the nation would have been destroyed forever. There did not appear to be an alternative other than submitting to the hard conditions contracted for or to repudiate our obligations, exposing ourselves to the humiliation of new military intervention.

THE 1934 ACCORD

The path chosen, however, avoided the grave dangers that menaced us and served on the contrary, to begin the most prosperous period in our finances. Unilateral action was not resorted to as most of the Latin American Governments of this time did, but on the other hand, recognizing fully the obligations imposed upon the Republic, I persuaded our creditors to come to an understanding that later culminated in the Accord of 1934 with the Protective Council of Foreign Bondholders of the United States. This Accord authorized the Government to reduce payment for service of the public debt from $2,800,000 to $957,000, which started financial reconstruction of the government and economic development of the country.

This Accord was publicly lauded by the Protective Council of Foreign Bondholders. A letter dated August 10, 1934, from its president, Mr. J. Reuben Clark, said: "I have instructions from the Council to take advantage of this opportunity to make known to you and to your government its feeling of gratitude for the spirit of tolerance and the adaptability that has characterized the discussions by your representatives and to express to you the felicitation of the Council for the fact that in the face of a world depression, the Dominican Government under your direction, manifests a desire to begin servicing its public debt, not only paying fully the interest, but also effecting in a continuous manner all the payments of amortization, recognizing in this fashion the necessity of confronting both elements in the service of a public debt." The execution of the agreement with the aforementioned Council offered the world a brilliant demonstration of the administrative capacity of this government. Personally assuming the direction of the public treasury, scrupulously balancing income and disbursement, demanding the strictest honesty in handling of public funds and the most efficient investment of the time, the government once more acquired the moral authority necessary to convince the creditors of the Republic that they could have faith in its words and actions.

That was how I could give full development to a patriotic aspiration that was conceived from the very moment that I took charge of my Presidential office.

THE TRUJILLO-HULL TREATY

In letters sent to the President of the United States, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, in 1939, it was made clear by the Dominican people their hope of modifying the instrument called the Dominican American Covenant for the purpose of returning to the Republic its sovereign rights.

The comprehension of the North American Chief of State and his Secretary of State, the Honorable Cordell Hull, made possible, after negotiations, the formation of the Treaty that was signed in Washington September 24, 1940.

It is unnecessary to mention here what the Trujillo-Hull Treaty signified for Dominican dignity and for the ambition of my co-citizens in a harmonious life of a country liberated from the humiliating limitations giving it faith in its destiny.

My patriotism however, not satisfied with this achievement, wished to complete it in an absolute manner and it is in order to announce our total and definite economic liberation and unrestricted rescue of our national sovereignty, that today I appear before you with great civic pride.

THE LIBERATING PLAN

As you will observe by reading the project that is submitted for your consideration, the funds necessary to complete the sum of $9,401,855.55, that is being appropriated for the payment of the foreign debt, is arrived at in the following fashion:

$1,201,855.55 income of the present year, and
$8,200,000.00 that is advanced against the income of next year received from special taxes in force and that at the present moment are being used for other purposes. Besides, it is not amiss to mention that executive power has given its approval in accordance with the law to the contract for the sale of the next sugar crop at a price of 5c per lb.

In the formation of this plan of payment that brings with it a substantial sum, I have been careful not to disturb the public works plan the government is executing. This plan, which in total leaves the sum of $10,192,280.96 will continue to be executed during the rest of 1947 and during 1948. There still will remain at our disposal as a reserve more than $3,000,000.

The plan that I have conceived places no bonds at public sale. The government is planning new negotiations with the Reserve Bank of the Republic, in order to negotiate the bond issue contained in the attached bill, which carries 5% annual interest payable in 1948.

PRESENT FINANCIAL POSITION

The financial position of the Government and the condition of the Reserve Bank demonstrated by its statement of June 30th past, revealed that this operation will be of great convenience to the Treasury as well as to our first banking institution.

The active capacity of the reserve bank shows a total of nearly $35,000,000 with deposits totaling close to $30,000,000, out of which $10,185,000 are government deposits. The reserve bank has on deposit in the Federal Reserve Bank of the United States $29,500,000, of which $8,200,000 will find appropriate location in values that will advance against the special taxes of next year, to which I referred.

Looking into the future and contemplating the insecurity projected by the international situation, the payment of the foreign debt conforming to the plan contained in the attached bill will strengthen our financial and economic position.

Contrary to what has been happening in nearly all the Republics of Latin America, in the Dominican Republic the amount of dollars has constantly increased. These amounts, that are maintained by deposits which the banks established in the country maintained in foreign correspondent banks for Dominican accounts and for United States bills in circulation in national territory, were $4,000,000 in 1936, $10,000,000 in 1941, $40,000,000 in 1945, $42,000,000 in 1946 and the 30th of June of this year reached $60,087,174.

Thus, I have considered this the most propitious moment to effect the surrender of all pending bonds belonging to the loans of 1922 and 1926. Effecting this payment now, we pay funds that we do not need for the development of our economy, leaving us free of amortization and foreign interest charges, with which we strengthen our position in international exchange.

BESIDES, TO PAY BONDS IN 1947 THAT WERE DESTINED TO BE REDEEMED IN 1961 AND IN 1969, WE OFFER THE GREATEST EVIDENCE OF SECURITY THAT THIS REPRESENTS TO FOREIGN AND NATIONAL INTERESTS FOR THE INVESTMENT OF THEIR CAPITAL IN OUR COUNTRY.

THE GREAT TASK COMPLETED

I have traced before you with indispensable detail, because of the importance of this case, a complete picture of the history of our foreign debt from its beginning to the present time. I have shown how, because of this debt, the ineptitude of past administrations and the sentiment of national inferiority that was the inevitable sequel, the Republic saw itself deprived of its most essential prerogatives, until the Treaty that was discussed and signed in Washington, September 24, 1940, recovered for us the scepter of sovereignty that many errors and misfortunes had torn from us.

It was not due in this way out of a desire to censure the men of the past, who, perhaps, were not completely masters of their decisions, tied as they were to desperate situations that mere governmental action of the moment could not instantly remedy. The solution of the foreign debt problem now takes material expression in a financial operation, such as the one now proposed to you on this solemn and glorious day. But, certainly, it would have been infantile to ask any past government, even the best inspired ones we had, for a financial operation of these proportions. Actions of this kind and of such range cannot be improvised. They require long previous preparation, a basis of peace, of progress, of reconstruction and prestige, and an economy that is robust, solid and profound. Because of this, before thinking of the work which we will now bring to a happy ending, my aspirations as Chief Executive are constituted principally in giving to the Republic a basis of such vigor and preparation that not only can the cancellation of the foreign debt be realized easily in all its financial aspects but that, in addition, it will cause not the least depression in administrative activity nor the slightest contraction of our national economics.

The circumstance which makes possible this successful operation is a symbol of the integral potentiality of the Republic in its present era. But it is also something more. It is the most convincing proof of what the will of an administration profoundly interested in the progress of its country, and essentially dedicated to the sacred question of redeeming it from a painful past can do . . . organizing it for a fuller life in the present and future.

I leave in the hands of the National Congress, therefore, the greatest history-making bill that has passed through the hands of the Dominican Legislators.

I hope that, in approving it, you feel in your hearts the same great patriotic emotion with which it was conceived and prepared.

(Signed) RAFAEL L. TRUJILLO.

[THIS BILL UNANIMOUSLY PASSED AND WAS SIGNED THE SAME DAY BY PRESIDENT TRUJILLO. TWO DAYS LATER, A CHECK WAS DELIVERED TO OLIVER P. NEWMAN, REPRESENTING THE AMERICAN BONDHOLDERS IN THE AMOUNT OF $9,271,855.55 PLUS $1,102,625.70 AND ACCRUED INTEREST ALREADY ON CREDIT IN NEW YORK. THE GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, FISCAL AGENTS, PUBLICLY ADVERTISED THE BONDS OF 1922 AND 1926 WOULD BE REDEEMED RESPECTIVELY ON SEPTEMBER 1 AND OCTOBER 1, 1947.]

Nats Break Even With Athletics, 2-3, 5-2; Cards Trim Dodgers' Margin to 3½ Games

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

PROMOTER GOLDIE AHEARN is a teetotaler, but tonight he will strike a blow for Liberty—the Liberty A. C.—with his rematch of Smuggy Hursey vs. Danny Kapilow at Griffith Stadium. Barring rain or the threat of it, Washington fight fans will pay $40,000 to watch Ahearn's latest offering.

POVICH

Even after he splits the swag with the fighters and Partner Al Weill, who gets a double take, counting his managerial end of Kapilow's purse, Ahearn will come in for a nice payday. At any rate, as he always reckons it, it's better than working for a living.

All week Ahearn has been striving to maintain a delicate balance between the ballyhoo for Hursey as a knock-'em-dead left-hooker, and the press releases anent Kapilow, who, to hear Ahearn tell it, is just the type of boxer to beat Hursey. As the day of the fight dawns, Promoter Ahearn is practically stooped from carrying water on both shoulders.

It's Kapilow who is in the best spot this evening. All he has to do is stay with Hursey for 42 seconds to better his record for the course.

AHEARN CAN'T LOSE tonight. Thus far he has picked Hursey to win by a quick knockout, Hursey to win by a knockout anytime within 10 rounds, Hursey to win the decision if it goes the limit, and he also has picked Kapilow to stop Hursey and Kapilow to win the decision.

"This Hursey is just a kid, but he's been fighting a long time," says Ahearn. "I don't mean he's had a lot of fights, but he's been fighting a long time. I gave him his first pair of boxing shoes when he came into my gym three years ago, and said he wanted a job as a sparring partner for anybody.

"He worked with Aaron Perry and Sugar Ray Robinson and Bee Bee Washington before he was old enough to get a boxing license himself. When he got his license he was no green pea. He learned a lot while he was working with good fighters. In Hursey we always had a great sparring partner for whoever came to town."

HURSEY'S LEFT HOOK, the punch that stopped Kapilow last time, was a crude thing when the milk chocolate-complexioned colored boy first put in an appearance at the Liberty A. C. "First thing I noticed was he was left-hook crazy all the time, and we used to laugh at the way he threw it," said Ahearn.

"He'd have his manager, Mel Stevenson, with him and Stephenson would be coaching the kid from a wheelchair. They'd wheel it up near the big bag, and Hursey would start working on it with that left hook. Stephenson used to count for him 'one-two-three-boom' like that, and Hursey would shift three times and almost knock that bag into the ceiling.

"He's quicker with it now. A left hook is the best thing any fighter can have, and Hursey's is a beaut. Before the last Kapilow fight he's working out with Bill Terry, a 145-pounder, and with 16-ounce gloves he stopped Terry with one left hook. It won't surprise me when he stops Kapilow the same way."

THEN IT LOOKED like another quick knockout win for Hursey over Kapilow, it was suggested to Ahearn. He recoiled at that one: "Hey, No! Don't say that. I didn't say that. You can't underrate Kapilow. He's a smart boxer, just the kind to stay away from Hursey and outpoint him. Confidentially, I think Kapilow will lick him."

Now Ahearn was full of confidential beliefs. "Listen," he said, "Confidentially, Hursey hasn't looked so good lately. Yesterday he's in there with Bill Terry, the same sparring partner he stopped a month ago, and he can't catch him. Terry makes him look bad. When Hursey gets mad it's the same thing, he can't land that left hook good."

"And I think he's having trouble making 154 pounds. He's drying out so much it could be leaving him weak. I see him chewing gum all the time when he's working. That's a sign he's trying to start the juices and lose weight so he can save the $1000 forfeit. Confidentially, Kapilow may knock him out." Confidentially, Ahearn will say anything to help the gate.

Scarborough Hit Hard But Wins Second

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—The Nats got a lot for their money today, squeezing five runs out of six hits to trim the Athletics, 5-2, in the second game of a doubleheader.

Except for morale purposes—it snapped a three-game losing streak—the achievement was rather hollow. The Macks had won the first, 3-2, to tumble the Nats into seventh place as the White Sox, whom the Nats dispossessed, moved up to the sixth spot by whacking Detroit.

Shortstop Eddie Joost's first-inning homer was the margin in the first game as Joe Coleman delighted the throng of 19,496 with some fancy pitching to rack up his fourth victory of the campaign.

Rae Scarborough pitched 12-hit ball for Washington in the nightcap and managed to triumph over Jesse Flores, who walked off the loser although he yielded only a half dozen.

He Works Out of Trouble

Scarborough was in a jam in eight of the nine innings, but had enough to pitch his way out of trouble, leaving 13 of Connie boys stranded.

Scarborough was trailing, 2-0, entering the fourth, but when the Nats had finished their turn at bat he possessed a 3-2 lead, which he clung to with everything he had.

Whereas the A's had to use five hits—two in the first and three in the third to get two runs, the economy-minded Nats needed only two to get their three runs in the fourth.

Mark Christman singled and scooted to third on Joe Grace's double. Tom McBride walked to load the bases. First Baseman Ferris Fain chipped in his bit at this point by flubbing Mickey Vernon's grounder and Christ-

Kapilow Still Says Hursey Is No Puncher

By Bill Ahlberg
Post Reporter

DANNY KAPILOW SAT on the edge of a chair in his hotel room yesterday and calmly announced:

"Smuggy Hursey is no puncher."

This is the same Kapilow who was belted out in 41 seconds by Smuggy in their last meeting July 14.

And this also is the same Kapilow who climbs into the ring at Griffith Stadium tonight an 8-5 underdog against Smuggy in a return bout.

He explained it this way:

"I admit I didn't see the punch that stopped me the last time. I should of. I was instructed to watch for his left, and I got paid for being on the alert. I knew his left was the punch he figured to throw throughout the fight.

"It sorta came from nowhere and I stuck my head in the way. But the punch wasn't the whole thing. I fell and hit my head against the rope and that rope had a lot to do with it, make no mistake about that.

"I scored the same type of quick knockout over Gene Burton, who is one of the toughest and best fighters in the business."

"I swung, Burton didn't see it and down he went. I was even more surprised than he was. It was the same thing against Hursey—only this time it happened to me."

"NO, SMUGGY still is no puncher. They're probably looking for me to be a little more cautious this time. But I won't stay away from him. I don't plan a careful fight. He was lucky last time. Anyone can run into one good punch. He won't be that lucky this time."

Danny also pointed to his first fight with Hursey here a year ago.

"Hursey threw all kinds of punches then, he tagged me with a few but nothing that I couldn't handle."

FOR SMUGGY this is rather an important fight, too.

He's up against a tough boy who has fought and won from some of the toughest in the game.

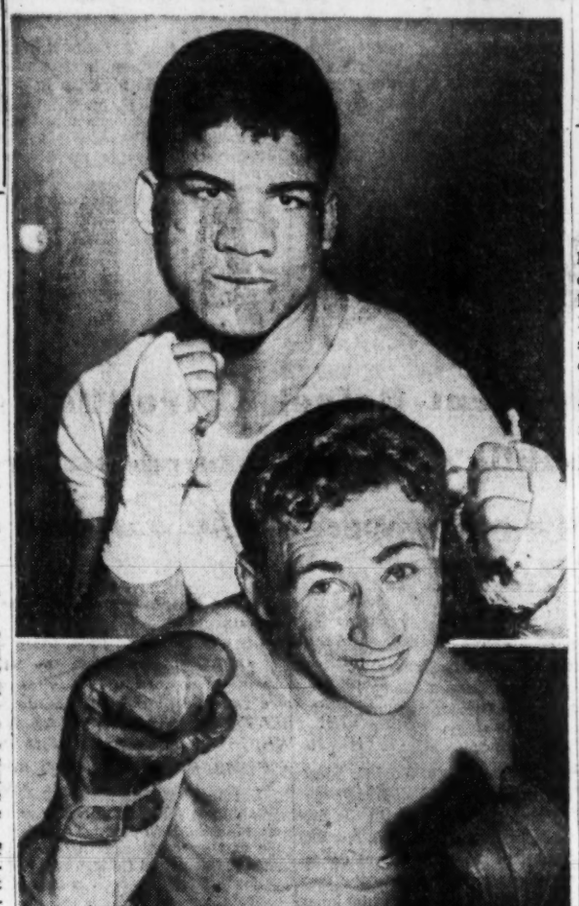
Kapilow has a draw with Rocky Graziano, a draw with Willie Joyce, a decision over Wesley Mouzon and has drawn with and beaten Freddie Archer after Archer had twice defeated Beau Jack.

There're a lot of other people saying that Smuggy's kayo of Danny was a fluke.

Smuggy is standing on the doorstep of the "big time" and to clear it he has to prove that his last outing with Kapilow was the real thing.

In six-round supporting bouts, Sonny Boy West, local featherweight, meets Harry Lasane, New York; Al Edwards, John Carter's heavyweight, fights Bill Landern, 210-pound Virginian, and Al Wright, improving local middleweight, takes on J. C. Wilkins, Kansas City. An opening four to be announced will open the action.

Tickets will be on sale at Griffith Stadium only today.



THEY'RE READY—Smuggy Hursey (top), Washington middleweight, hopes to repeat his recent one-round knockout of Danny Kapilow (below), Brooklyn, in a return bout at Griffith Stadium tonight. It is scheduled for 10 rounds

Birds Take Pair As Bums Win One

St. Louis Defeats Pirates, 5-0, 7-5

St. Louis, Aug. 10 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals edged a half game closer to the league leading Brooklyn Dodgers by outslugging the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7 to 5, in the second game of a doubleheader today after Murry Dickson held the Pirates to four hits for a 5-to-0 triumph in the opener. Dickson relieved Ken Burkhart in the nightcap when the starter got into trouble in the top of the eighth.

The Cards now are within 3½ games of the Dodgers.

St. Louis opened up the second game scoring with two runs in the second frame, adding four more in a big third inning on the offerings of Starter Ernie Bonham with two errors allowing two of the tallies.

The Pirates tried their first comeback in the fourth on four straight hits but a doubleplay helped Burkhart out of that inning after just two runs. St. Louis added a score in the seventh, then Pittsburgh knocked Burkhart off the mound in the eighth with a three-run four-hit attack.

In the first game the Birds scored their first run on Erv Dusak's double and Stan Musial's single in the third. Four more runs developed in the fifth from Del Wilber's double, Red Schoendienst's single, infield hits by both Dusak and Musial and a fluke "broken bat" hit by Whitey Kurowski.

Jim Russell's first inning double was the hardest blow the Pirates could muster against Dickson who struck out six men in the opener and one more in the last frame of the second game.

Joe Hatton Shuts Out Phils, 2 to 0

Brooklyn, Aug. 10 (AP).—Dixie Walker paced the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 2-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies today by batting in both runs as Southpaw Joe Hatten stopped the Phils on five hits in outpitching Blix Donnelly.

Walker drove home Ed Stanky with the Dodgers' first run in the opening frame with an infield single and the popular ballhawk sent Stanky over the plate in the eighth with another one-baser.

Stanky began both Dodger rallies. In the first, he reached base when hit by a pitched ball. He moved to second on a sacrifice and advanced to third on Pete Reiser's infield single. Walker then singled off Donnelly's glove to score Stanky.

In the eighth, the scrappy infielder beat out a grounder and moved to second when Donnelly, covering first, let the throw get away from him. He moved to third on a sacrifice and after Reiser walked, scored on Walker's blow.

Ben Chapman, Philadelphia manager, was ejected from the game in the eighth when he argued the decision on Stanky at first.

Hatten was in serious trouble only in the third when the Phils loaded the bases with one out but he got both Del Ennis and Buster Adams to foul out to Jackie Robinson to end the threat. The win was Hatten's 11th of the season.

Case Goes to Hospital, Hopes To Play '3 or 4' More Years

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—George Case, Washington's veteran outfielder, today exercised a ball player's prerogative by deciding that he may play a few more years after all.

He retired from the game after the first half of a Washington-Philadelphia double-header at Shibe Park, but said his retirement may be only temporary.

It had previously been understood that George was leaving baseball for good because of a back ailment.

Case, sensational base stealer the past 10 years, disclosed that he would report tomorrow to Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore in an effort to see Dr. George Bennett.

Case hopes that Bennett will be able to perform successful surgery that will send him back into baseball.

"I'm only 31 and I ought to have at least three or four good years left yet," Case said.

"I only hope I can get Dr. Bennett to perform the operation, if necessary, or to get him to treat my condition. You know he's a mighty busy man and tough to get to see."

Case diagnosed his condition as a turned vertebrae at the base of the spine. He explained that he has been pained by the condition for the past two years but was under the impression it was recurring pulled muscles.

"I can play about four innings," Case pointed out, "but soon as I cool off my back freezes. Physicians tell me I got the condition from my continued sliding."

The veteran American Leaguer, who reported to the Senators in 1937, said he had been trying to favor his back in sliding during the last year or so.

Case declared that if surgery wasn't the answer to his problem the use of a brace might accomplish a cure.

Hungarian Triumph

Mexico City, Aug. 10 (AP).—Hungary's soccer team evened its internatoinal series with the Mexican teams at 2-tll today, defeating Atlante, 1947 national champions, 3-2, before a crowd of 35,000.

Schneiter and Wadkins Shoot 31s at Spokane

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 10 (AP).—George Schneiter of Ogden, Utah, rambled around Indian Canyon's first nine in 31 and Lloyd Wadkins of Odessa, Tex., turned the corner in 31 indicating that par was in for a blasting today in the final 18 holes of the $10,000 Esmeralda Open Tournament.

Ben Hogan canned his tee shot in the 161-yard fourth for a hole-in-one.

The course standard is 35 on each nine, with the back half rated slightly tougher by the visiting professionals. The sky was partly overcast and the temperature comfortably warm as the field took out in pursuit of lanky Herman Keiser of Akron, Ohio, who has set the pace all the way.

Dillard Stars In Danish Track

Copenhagen, Aug. 10 (AP).—Harrison Dillard, United States hurdles champion from Baldwin-Wallace College, thrilled 11,000 Danish fans today by winning two individual events and sharing in a relay triumph at an international track and field meet featuring visiting American stars.

Dillard won the 110-meter hurdles in 14.6 seconds and the 100-meter dash in 10.5, then ran with an American quartet which won the 400-meter relay in 42.3.

George Guida of Villanova captured the 400-meter run in 47.5, while Fortune Gordien of Minnesota took the discus throw with a toss of 174 feet, 11¾ inches, and Bob Richards of Illinois cleared 13 feet, 9 inches to win the pole vault.

Mattson Takes Dirt Track Auto Race

Bedford, Pa., Aug. 10 (AP).—Tommy Mattson of Wilmington, Del., won the Bedford Fair dirt track auto race yesterday in a close contest which was halted on the seventeenth lap of a 20-lap grind when the racier piloted by Bill Holland of Bridgeport, Conn., caught fire.

Holland, who placed second in the Memorial Day race at the Indianapolis speedway, escaped unhurt.

Close behind Mattson when track officials flagged them were Joie Chitwood of Reading, Pa., second; Frank Bailey of York, Pa., third, and Hank Rogers of Trenton, N. J. fourth.

Peruvian Postpones Channel Swim Attempt

Dover, England, Aug. 10 (AP).—An attempt to swim the English Channel was postponed tonight by Daniel Carpio of Peru for at least 24 hours.

The 35-year-old Peruvian had planned to cross the channel by boat tonight and start his swim early in the morning.

Suggs Shooting For Golf Slam

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 10 (AP).—Defending Champion Louise Suggs, 112-pound swinger from Atlanta, Ga., will be shooting for a double slam in Women's Western Golf Association competition tomorrow as a 167-player field launches the Forty-seventh Western Amateur meet at Evanston Golf Club.

Miss Suggs, who last year won the Western Open nad Amateur and earlier this season copped the 1947 open at Atlanta, can establish W.W.G.A. history by retaining her amateur crown. No other player has ever won both titles two straight years.

Good Time Track Reparing Stands

Goshens, N. Y., Aug. 10 (AP).—The temporary section of the stands at Good Time Park which collapsed on Hambletonian day here last week and being repaired for the running of the George Robson memorial 100-mile National championship auto race next Sunday.

Officials of the Goshen Mile Track Association, operators of the racing plant, announced today that engineers are working on the project and expect the job to be completed well before Sunday.

Auto Racing Director Jim Frattone said that unless he is assured by registered engineers that the new section is perfectly safe for holding a capacity crowd, he will order the section closed Sunday. The permanent stands hold 16,000.

Mauri Rose, Bill Holland, and Ted Horne, one-two-three in finishers in that order for the Indianapolis 500, are entered in the 100.

Keiser Wins Spokane Open

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 10 (AP).—Herman Keiser of Akron, Ohio, dropped a 3-foot putt on the seventeenth hole today to clinch first place in the $10,000 Esmeralda Open Golf Tournament with a 7-under-par 273 after Ben Hogan and Ed Furgol had battled through a drama-packed afternoon in a futile effort to overtake him.

Little Ben, the cool customer from Hershey, Pa., wrote the tourney's only hole-in-one into the scorebook, but missed catching Keiser by a stroke.

Furgol, the Pontiac, Mich., professional, missed his chance on the greens, three-putting two during the day.

In there shooting with a great comeback was John Palmer of Badin, N. C., who had one of the day's three 67s and wound up in a second-place tie with Furgol and Hogan. Hogan had 68 today, Furgol and Keiser each 69.

Keiser, whose game has been none too staunch during the summer, stuck close to the course's par 70 after a first round 65 that got him away in front. He picked up $2000 as the tourney's first money.

Lew Worshaw, Washington, D. C., national open champion, posted a final round 67 for a total of 281.

Spring Lake, N. J., Aug. 10 (AP).—Vic Ghezzi, 1941 PGA champion, added a 70 to his 68 of yesterday for a 138 total to carry off top honors and a $1500 first prize today in the eighth annual Spring Lake pro-member golf tournament.

Herman Barron of Fenway, N. Y., and Claude Harmon of Winged Foot, N. Y., trailed the victor by one stroke with identical 69—70—169s. Sam Byrd, former New York Yankee outfielder, from Plum Hollow, Mich., posted a 71—69—140 for fourth place. Barron and Harmon each received $825 for their efforts and Byrd pocketed $500.

Chisox Club Hutchinson, Romp, 10 to 2

Detroit, Aug. 10 (AP).—Collecting 4 hits including Rookie Dave Philley's three-run homer, the Chicago White Sox beat the Detroit Tigers 10 to 2 today for their seventh victory in eight games. Ed Lopat, White Sox lefthander, won with seven-hit pitching and Freddie Hutchinson was the loser.

Lopat faced only 33 batsmen and had easy going all the way after Chicago ganged up on Hutchinson for five runs in the fourth inning on four hits, a walk and two errors by Eddie Lake.

The Tigers got a run in the second on Ed Mierkowic's first major league homer and the other in the ninth when Eddie Mayo singled, Mierkowicz doubled and George Kell sent Mayo home with a fly ball. Kell, hitless in four times up, saw his average fall two points to .341.

The Sox counted all their runs in clusters. After picking up five —enough to win—in the fourth they put together four straight hits for two more runs in the sixth off Huchinson and made three hits count for three runs in the eighth off rookie Art Houtteman.

Golfing

THE BOYS (AND GIRLS) who get golf's biggest thrill out of sinking a shot to the green, be it a pitch or long iron or wood, had a gay old time yesterday.

At Manor, Roy K. Amick made a hole-in-one, hitting a No. 4 iron into the hole on the 176-yard eighth hole. The ball landed between the flag pole and the edge of the cup and stuck there.

As witnesses, Amick had Don Sullivan, R. B. Wharton and Claggett Stephens, club professional.

At Prince Georges, Pro Al Houghton reported the "most extraordinary run on eagles in my career." Five club members had two-under-par holes. They were:

George Voigt, who sank a No. 8 iron on the 354-yard sixth hole.

Jim Kinder, who holed out a No. 9 iron on the sixth.

Arthur Woodside, whose No. 4 wood shot ducked into the can on the 473-yard seventh green.

Pat Nealis, who holed an eight iron on the 443-yard eighth hole.

Marie Walper, former District champion, whose third shot, a niblick, went into the cup on the 485-yard fourth green.

A WORD FROM Albert E. Steinem, secretary-treasurer of District-Maryland golfers:

Entries for the national amateur championship must be filed today (Monday, August 11.)

Golfers wishing to make late entries can reach Steinem at DI. 6527. He will help you arrange to wire or telephone your entry to USGA headquarters in time to meet the deadline.

The national amateur will be played at the Pebble Beach course, Del Monte, Calif., September 13, with sectional qualifying at the Chevy Chase Club August 26.

YESTERDAY'S results at Manor:

A medal play handicap foursome event was won by the team of J. A. Lee, 87-18—69; S. E. Andrews, 84-9—75; E. N. Slack, 90-14—76; L. D. Connor, 88-14—74, with an aggregate net of 294.

In the women's blind bogey for nine roles, Mrs. O. F. Fancey had 48-10—38 and Mrs. H. E. Davies 42-4—38.

Wake Hall Wins, 11 to 8

Wake Hall defeated St. Cyrian's, 11 to 8, yesterday in a baseball game on the Langston playground diamond. John Johnston, Wake Hall, right fielder, hit a homerun with the bases loaded in the eighth inning.

Barney's Prearranged Plans Work

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Barney Welsh, veteran Washington tennis star, turned the tables on young Jim Thackara yesterday, to win the Middle Atlantic Tennis Tournament before 1200 spectators at the Columbia Country Club.

The scores were 6—1, 6—3, 2—6, 6—0.

It was sweet revenge for Welsh, as only last month he had suffered one of the most humiliating defeats of his long career against this same Thackara in the District of Columbia Tournament.

After that defeat, Welsh summed up his mistakes in strategy and a week ago told some friends how he intended to play Thackara again, should they both reach the finals of the Middle Atlantics.

Yesterday, the cagey Welsh carried out his plans to perfection.

Trades With Thackara

Instead of forcing the play all the way as he did previously, he traded baseline drives with Thackara and constantly changed the pace of his shots. In addition, Welsh was careful to keep the ball away from Thackara's murderous forehand.

When Thackara would hit a short backhand, Welsh smashed deep to the backhand and followed his drive to the net for an easy kill. This strategy worked throughout the match.

Welsh took the first five games in the first set, then dropped one and took the next to win the set at 6—1. Welsh broke Thackara's service four times during the set.

Welsh Controls Play

In the second set, Welsh continued to control the play, and although Thackara broke his service twice, Welsh solved Thackara's delivery three times. Welsh captured the set, 6—3, with the help of three service aces.

Thackara went ahead 2—1 in the third set and Welsh seemed to concede the set at that point. He was content to make Thackara run, while allowing placements to whiz past unmolested. Thackara took the set, 6—2.

After a 15 minute intermission, the players returned for the fourth set.

Welsh again played the careful, deliberate tennis he exhibited in the first two sets, hitting deep, changing his pace, and keeping the ball to Thackara's backhand.

Welsh in Control

Although the set was closely contested, as shown by the stroke chart, Welsh was in control from the start. He broke Thackara's service three times and held his own three times to win, 6—0.

During the match, Welsh scored 35 placements to Thackara's 36, but Thackara scored 15 of these in the third set. In the other three sets Welsh scored 27 placements to Thackara's 21.

Thackara committed 75 errors to Welsh's 44 and double faulted six times while Welsh miscued but once. Welsh scored four service aces to Thackara's none.

Ann Gray won the women's championship, defeating Willie Herbert, 6—3, 6—3, in the final round yesterday morning.

Miss Herbert had a 3-1 lead in the first set, but Ann came back to win five straight games and the set, 6—3. In the second set Ann moved out to a 5-1 lead before Willie rallied to trail 5-3.

Ann then took the final game and the match. Again it was a case of her steadiness and stroking ability being too much for her opponent to contend with.

Tribe, Browns Divide; Feller Takes 14th

Cleveland, Aug. 10 (AP).—Bob Feller limited the St. Louis Browns to five hits today to win his fifth shutout and fourteenth victory of the year, 6 to 0, but the Browns came back in the nightcap to salvage their only win of the five-game series, 4 to 2.

Jack Kramer gave up all the Indians runs in the opener and retired in the seventh during a three-run uprising.

Sam Zoldak won the nightcap, holding the Tribe to seven hits. The loser was Don Black. The Browns got 11 hits.

Grays Win 2; Defeat Paige

Before 5000, the Washington Grays won a doubleheader from the Kansas City Monarches, Negro American League champions, yesterday at Griffith Stadium, Johnny Wright defeating Lefty LeMarque, 3-1, in the opener, and R. T. Walker defeating Satchel Paige, 2-1, in the 7-inning nightcap.

Paige struck out six in the first three innings of the final, but Bud Easter, in the fifth, caught one of his slants for a triple to the flagpole, and Bruce brought him home with a Texas leaguer. Walker, Grays' moundsman, won his own game, by sending a hot liner into left field, scoring Bruce.

Milton, Laurel Starter, Quits

Baltimore, Aug. 10 (AP).—A familiar figure to jockeys around the country for 37 years, Jim Milton, yesterday announced his retirement as starter at the Laurel and Pimlico race tracks.

The native of Waco, Tex., sent off 27 Preakness fields since he first climed into the starter's box at Pimlico.

Milton's retirement at Old Hilltop and Laurel does not mean the end of his connections with racing.

"I feel I would now like to devote my talents and experience to the stewards' stand," he said.

His experience in getting away the high-strung thoroughbreds is not limited to Maryland. He has started horses at Belmont Park, Suffolk Downs, Rockingham Park, Hawthorne, at all eight tracks comprising the Canadian Racing Association, Havana, and numerous half-mile tracks.

At Harve de Grace he has the unique record of having failed to start only one race since the track was opened in 1912.

From all the thoroughbreds he has seen break from the barrier, Milton liked Exterminator, who died at the age of 30 in 1945, the best. He pointed out "Old Bones" one year won the Harford handicap, a sprint, in the spring and the Pimlico cup, at 2¼ miles, in the fall.

Youel, Wilde Look Good at Quarterback

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 10.—Washington's Redskins are days ahead of the 1946 practice schedule as they continued their hot pace at Occidental College today.

Coach Turk Edwards and his staff in one week have set up the 'Skins' complete routine of basic plays and the squad is now ready for the rough going of scrimmage sessions in addition to continued brushing up and smoothing out of the rough spots in the offensive formations ladled out so far.

Naturally, Sammy Baugh is the center of all offensive activities but Coach Wilbur Moore of the backs and Clark Shaughnessy, team adviser, are happy over the way Jimmy Youel is taking hold this season after one year under fire in the National League as a T-formation quarterback.

The other quarterback is George Wilde from Texas A. & M. Wilde came to the team as a rookie with a lot of passing ability but no knowledge of the T. To date, however, his ability to assimulate the T assignments and ball handling have outshown his throwing ability.

Coach Edwards intends to shift him to a halfback later when Tommy Mont, the promising "freshman" from Maryland, joins the squad. Mont is getting a lot of T-training at the moment with the College All-Stars at Chicago.

It is interesting that Wilde, like Mont, came recommended by one of the Redskin coaches who had seen him perform. Ki Aldrich, great center and line mentor, saw Wilde go in Texas before the war and recommended the rugged 6-foot 2-inch, 24-year-old oil field worker be signed on, since Wilde did not choose to take his third year of college football after he got back from the service.

The 'Skins had only one drill today to permit the players to attend church.

Foster Wins Gold Cup Speed Race

New York, Aug. 10 (AP).—Danny Foster, plucky Oakland, Calif., speed merchant, drove the Detroit-owned Miss Peps V to victory today in the fortieth running of the International Gold Cup Regatta in Jamaica Bay.

Foster, piloting an Allison-powered 24-foot white streak of lightning, owned by the Dossin Brothers, zipped across the finish line at the end of the third and deciding 30-mile heat a quarter mile ahead of Albin Fallon's Miss Great Lakes, another Detroit craft.

These were the only two of the seven craft that started the first heat to complete the grueling 90-mile grind.

Guy Lombardo's cup defender, winner of the 1946 race at Detroit, dropped out of the race due to engine trouble after taking a momentary lead early in the final heat. Herb Mendelson's Notre Dame, driven by Danny Arena, another Californian and former racing mate of Foster, fell out of the race when motor trouble developed.

A crowd estimated by Police Deputy Chief Inspector Edward C. Moran at 400,000 lined the shores of Rockaway Inlet for the so-called "Subway Regatta." Several thousand more persons were on scores of pleasure crafts anchored along the race course's borders.

Miss Peps, winner of both the second and third heats and runner-up to Notre Dame in the first heat, compiled 1500 points in capturing speedboating's most prized trophy. His average for the last heat was 56.25 MPH, rounding the 10 laps of the 30-mile heat in 31 minutes 58 seconds.

Miss Peps m de the fastest lap of all boats for the 90 miles—51.37 miles per hour for the first lap of the second heat. The winner's average speed for the 90 miles was 54.88 miles per hour.

The winner's 1500 points included a bonus of 400 for the best 90-mile average. Miss Great Lakes collected 750 points; Temp VI, 427; Notre Dame, 400, and Dukie, 169.

Takoma Girls Win Two Double Bills

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 10.—The Takoma Decorators, girls softball champions of the District of Columbia, today won two games from the Roanoke Moose Lodge girls, 8—3 and 4—0.

Jeanne Read of Takoma hit a homerun with two on in the third inning of the first game, and Jean Wood pitched a one-hit game in the nightcap.

The victories were the third and fourth for the Takoma girls over the weekend. At Richmond Saturday night, they defeated Virginia Dairy, 6—5, and the Richmond All Stars, 6—1, before 3000 fans.

Nats Kick Athletics In Nightcap, 5 to 2 man and Grace scored as McBride proceeded to third. Tom became the third run a moment later when Cecil Travis flied out.

Bluege Shakes Up Lineup

Travis, McBride and Grace, who haven't been playing regularly, were called on by Manager Ossie Bluege in an effort to shake the Nat slump in the second game and the first two came through with flying colors.

McBride made a one-handed catch of Flores' wallop which was headed for a triple in the sixth. In the seventh, with the Nats still only a run ahead, Travis and Christman engineered a double play on Majeski's roller which had sd an A's rally at that point.

The Nats wrapped up the decision in the ninth with a legitimate rally. Spence added a double to a sixth-inning triple and scored as Gerry Priddy doubled. Scarborough, after three straight strikeouts, rammed a single to get Priddy home.

Two-Hitter Until Ninth

Coleman was breezing along beautifully, working on a two-hit shutout in the opener. He had retired 13 in a row and fanned nine, including the side in the eighth, before Buddy Lewis broke the spell with a double to center.

Sherry Robertson, hitless in his last 18 times, made it 19 with a weak pop-up to Hank Majeski. Mickey Vernon did little better, lifting to Eddie Joost at short. But Stan Spence doubled Lewis home and scored a moment later as Mark Christman got his second single.

With the tying run on first, Joe Grace was rushed in to hit for Gerry Priddy. With a 3-to-1 count Grace dribbled a roller to second and the Nats had lost again.

Until that last-inning, the Nats were dead pigeons before Coleman. The only other hits they made were third and fourth inning singles, by Lewis and Christman, each coming with two away.

Four Hits in Fifth Did It

The Macks kept threatening Walter Masterson after Joost planted his tenth homer deep into the upper left field stands and got to him for a couple of more run in the fifth, bunching four of the nine hits they made.

McCosky, Joost and Binks singled in succession to fetch one tally and the fourth straight single, this one by Fain, brought in the second.

Masterson, who got his ninth defeat while seeking his tenth win, went out for a pinch-hitter in the eighth and the A's reached Chico Pieretti for their last safety.

The Macks, who drew 650,000 customers last year, have already passed that mark by 100,000 this season . . . Rick Ferrell and Gerry Priddy wore caps with protective helmets today after Elmer Valo of the A's was beaned yesterday by Sid Hudson . . . Army, Navy and Marine Corps veterans of the Nats and A's were presented with victory medals in a between-game ceremony . . . It's Boston tonight for the first of a three-game set. Mickey Haefner, who flipped a five-hit, 1-0 victory over the Red Sox in Washington Wednesday, gets the call.

Lehigh Drills on Campus

Bethlehem, Pa., Aug. 10 (AP).—Unable to obtain a suitable training camp, Lehigh University's coaching staff has invited 45 football candidates to drill on the campus, beginning August 27. This will give coach Bill Leckonby a month in which to whip his squad into shape for the Cornell game September 27.

Schroeder Wins Title

South Orange, N. J., Aug. 10 (AP). Davis Cup star Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Calif., top-seeded, smashed to a 6—1, 7—5, 6—3 victory over second-ranked Gardnar Mulloy of Miami to capture the Eastern Grass Courts tennis championship today at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club.

Earlier Schroeder gained the final bracket when he defeated third-seeded Bill Talbert of New York, 5—7, 6—4, 3—6, 10—8, 6—4, in a match that was halted by rain after the fourteenth game of the fourth set yesterday.

In the women's final, Wimbledon champion Margaret Osborne of San Francisco, rated No. 1, notched a 6—3, 4—6, 9—7 triumph over second-ranked Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif.

The two singles finalists then teamed to defeat Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio and Barbara Krase of San Francisco, in the women's doubles final, 6—1, 6—3.

The Davis Cup duo of Jack Kramer of Los Angeles and Schroeder bested Nationals Doubles Champions Billy Talbot of New York City and Mulloy, 6—4, 19—17, 5—7, 10—8, in the men's doubles final.

Silver Spring, Potomac Tied

Potomac and Silver Spring remained in a tie for the leadership of the second half of the Montgomery County baseball league yesterday by winning games in the 10-team circuit.

Results: Potomac 2, Greenbelt 1; Silver Spring 4, Cissell Saxon 3; Colesville 6, Gaithersburg 5; Morningside 9, Sand Spring 8; Rockville 8, Bethesda 0.

Potomac and Silver Spring have won three, lost none. Colesville won the first half and will meet the second-half winner in a playoff series.

Alexandrian Admits Killing

that he fell in love with Ruby while he was married to his present wife, Mrs. Pearl Mathis, 35. He obtained his first divorce in 1936, he said, in order to marry her, and lived happily with her until he enlisted in the Army in 1942.

He said he served 26 months in the CBI theater as a staff sergeant in the Army Transport Command, part of which time he was on loan as a copilot with Chinese National Airways Association in hauling supplies "over the hump."

He said that upon return to civilian status he lived again with Ruby until he learned she had married Colbert in his absence and was pregnant with his child. He divorced her and remarried his first wife for the sake of their two children, he said.

"I almost went crazy at the thought of losing Ruby," Mathis said yesterday. "They had to put me in an insane asylum (veterans' hospital) at Perry Point, Md., then. There they gave me the shock treatment."

He said that after he got out of the hospital he remarried his first wife and moved his family to Florida, where his oldest child, a 17-year-old married daughter, now lives. The family moved back to Alexandria several months ago so that Mathis could re-enter the contracting business there.

The shooting occurred at 9:30 p. m. Saturday, Mathis said, when he called at the Colbert home in search of Ruby. Colbert, he said, admitted him to the house and identified himself as Ruby's husband.

Mathis said Colbert "jumped" on him, and in the scuffle he fired twice "just to scare him." He told reporters he "couldn't remember" how the gun "got in my hand," but said he normally carried the pistol in his car because he frequently carried large sums of money to meet building crew payrolls.

"I felt him go weak and he lost his hold on me," Mathis said. "Then I saw his blood and heard him scream 'Don't kill me!' I ran out and drove away."

Police said a neighbor heard the shots and saw Mathis drive away. He followed in his car long enough to get the license number. A neighbor's children ran to the tavern and told Ruby of the shooting, police said.

Mrs. Pearl Mathis told police her husband returned home at 3 a. m. yesterday, laid his pistol on the table, told her he had shot Colbert, and left. He was arrested by Fairfax and Alexandria police at the home of his sister, Mrs. Claude Dempsey, in Franconia, Va., three hours later.

Mrs. Mathis told Alexandria police her husband made no secret of his love for Ruby, admitting their remarriage was for "convenience." She said he made frequent trips up here from Florida and she knew that he was meeting Ruby on those trips.

Prince Georges Horse Show Has 29 Events

A total of 20 events has been scheduled for the annual horse and pony show to be held by the Prince Georges Democratic Club, Inc., next Sunday.

The show will start at 10 a. m. at the farm of County Treasurer James B. Bland on Silver Hill rd., Suitland, Md.

Horses and riders from every section of southern Maryland are expected to compete for the Elmer Pumphrey Memorial Trophy and for hunter and jumper championship awards. All entries will be made at time of arrival on the grounds.

The committee, headed by Thomas E. Jones, member of the Maryland Public Service Commission, will meet tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. Edna Creecy, 4819 Silver Hill rd., to make final plans.

Assisting Jones on the general committee are William A. Carson, chairman of the county commissioners; Commissioner Norman Collins; Frank Dyer, George Beltz, Mrs. Creecy, Norris Hartman, Taxicab Inspector Harry G. Mercer, Horace Purdy, Deputy Sheriff R. Earle; Sheriff, Preston Perrie, Mrs. Isabel Purdy, Milton Magill and Roland Hartman. Roy C. Arnold will be ringmaster.

Nine events have been scheduled for children under 16 in two age groups. Both groups will compete for the Del Rio Challenge Cup. Points garnered in these events will determine the pony championship.

Riders under 17 years old will compete in the junior hack and junior hunter class and the junior hunter-hack classes.

The events for adults, to get underway at 12:30 p. m., will include road hacks, open jumpers, working hunters, green hunters, modified Olympic, ladies' hunters, triple bar jumps, open hunters, hunter hacks, knock down and out and Southern Maryland jumpers.

The jumper and hunter championships will be determined by the points in these events, as will the Pumphrey trophy award.

Joblessness Touches 14%

family member who wanted work was unemployed in 16 per cent of Negro families, as compared with 5 per cent of white families.

These findings are based on personal interviews with a representative cross-section of adults living in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Persons interviewed were asked the following series of questions about everyone in the household 16 years of age and older:

"A lot of people in Washington are looking for jobs these days. How many people living in this household are employed part time or full time?"

(If any were unemployed) "How many are at present looking for work?"

Their answers:

	All Groups	White	Negro
At least 1 member unemployed	8%	5%	16%
No one unemployed	92	95	84

They were then asked regarding the chief wage-earner:

"During the next 12 months do you think there is any chance that you (or whoever is chief wage earner) will be unemployed?"

	All Groups	Annual Family Income Under $2000	$2000-$4999	$5000-Over
Chief wage earner expect to be unemployed in 12 months	14%	24%	10%	13%
Uncertain of job prospects	9	14	11	3
No fear of unemployment	77	62	79	84

Fear of unemployment is strongest in the lowest income group, those with the least economic security at the present time.

Those who thought that the chief wage earner in their family would be unemployed within the next 12 months were asked:

"How hard do you think it will be to find a job in Washington—very hard, fairly hard, or pretty easy?"

Replies were as follows:

Very hard	29%
Fairly hard	17
Pretty easy	24
No idea	30

WAA Cuts Sales Red Tape

Cutting a sales-healthy swath through its own red tape, War Assets Administration yesterday announced the discontinuation of presale certification for purchases of war supplies, beginning today.

The move permits former servicemen to buy stock for their small businesses almost at will, without the preliminary maneuvers that discouraged many. WAA said the step was taken to reach 15 million potential customers instead of the 4,500,000 who qualified formerly.

The move permits the agency to close 102 WAA offices with 1702 employes throughout the country engaged exclusively in issuing veterans' certificates. It also immobilizes 50 itinerant certifying offices and their staffs.

The action applies to all war surpluses in WAA inventory except real property and aircraft.

Under the new policy, customers need only show their discharge certificates and sign statements of integrity at the sale sites that their purchases are for use or resale as limited by WAA regulations.

The new rule ends quantity limits to sales to veterans, the WAA announcement said. Another effect, the agency said, is to advance a veteran's position as a possible recipient of RFC financial aid for acquiring surpluses for his small business.

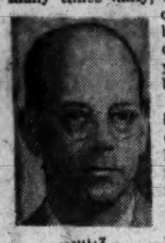
The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz



I have three small boys who run and knock down one another umpteen times each day. And just as many times daily, my wife and I caution the boys: "Walk—don't run and you won't get hurt."

When the boys get a bit older I had hoped they'd take the old man's advice—and walk. But I've been greatly discouraged by a memo to the adult employes of the Veterans' Administration. Some of these older people, it seems, are still running—running to leave their offices at closing time.

Not only are they running, but they are hitting and knocking down others and falling all over themselves in the mad rush to get out of their offices—just like my boys scrambling over a toy.

The memo cites these recent examples of hit-and-run collisions in the Supply and Real Estate Office in the Munitions Building:

1. An employe leaving her office was struck by a hit-and-run worker so forcibly that she was knocked unconscious;

2. A girl who was walking upstairs was brushed by a group of runners and thrown the length of the stairway, and,

3. An elderly woman walking along a corridor was struck by a running girl. The woman was so seriously injured that she required medical attention.

The memo goes on:

"Most of this running occurs within two or three minutes of closing time. Employes dash from their places of work headed for the nearest exit. Frequently, they slip and fall; they catch their heels on stair treads; they bump into others. Injuries result."

The memo, issued by Assistant Administrator Francis Dryden, calls on supervisors to take disciplinary action against the hit-and-runners. The supervisors won't spank violators like I do Jerry, Jackie and Jimmy, but repeat offenders, it's reported, will be ordered on a day or so of payless vacation.

Incidentally, Jackie, my 5-year-old, met me at my office for the first time a few days ago. It was about 5 o'clock as we weaved our way through the crowd to our car near the Commerce Building. Jackie, a country boy, was wild-eyed at the big crowd. Finally, he turned to me and said: "Daddy, what are all those people running for—they ain't going no place."

P.S.: I'll remind him of that if he ever gets a Government job.

CIVIL SERVICE NEWS: About 4500 applicants here for stenographer and typist will be examined the week of August 25. Approximately 1000 applicants a day will be examined at 820 7th st. nw. Applications for the jobs are still being accepted and another exam will be given later in the year. Already this year more than 52,000 have been examined. Out of that number, 2700 stenos and 9800 typists have secured permanent Civil Service status.

Civil Service has ordered the removal of 24 Government employes during the past year on charges of violating the Hatch Antipolitics Act . . . More than 1900 persons filed for the recent Civil Service exam for photographer . . . An exam for general staff nurse and head nurse soon will be announced. The jobs will pay from $2644 to $3397.

NOTES: The office of Naval Research here will abolish its field service branch and its public relations office. . . . The Senate Civil Service Committee has dropped its plans to investigate Federal employes in the Panama Canal Zone, Hawaii and Alaska. It's about broke. However, Senator Chavez (D., N. Mex.) is being sent to Puerto Rico to look over Federal worker problems there. . . . Doctors and dentists at Public Health will have their salaries raised $100 a month each.

FHA: Farmers Home Administration is recalling about 1000 of the 4800 employes it fired the end of June. The House first gave it money to continue only 4800 of its 8600 administrative people. As finally enacted, its budget will provide for 5800 employes.

BLS: The Bureau of Labor Statistics is gradually dropping an additional 125 employes here. The same old trouble—a reduced budget. . . . GAO: The General Accounting Office has asked the Civil Service Commission for authority to put into effect a displacement program of its own. The agency expects to have its hands full in finding jobs for its own career employes and veterans whose names come up for firings and downgradings.

CAPITOL HILL: More than half, or 119, of the 208 arrests made this year by the Capitol Hill police force have been for being drunk or for drinking in public places. Apparently, there are some people who say to themselves, "I'll get drunk and go up and see my Congressman."

FEDERAL PERSONNEL: A committee of this council is at work on what activities should be in a Government personnel office. Members are Oliver Short of Commerce, Heath Onthank of War and William Rehlander of Federal Works. Their report is sure to lead to a general overhauling of personnel offices.

Mother, 20, Hit by Auto, Still Critical

Ice Truck Victim Has Comfortable Day; Passenger Injured in Crash

Mrs. Pauline Forrester of 3829 Kansas ave. nw., 20-year-old expectant mother struck Friday by an automobile, was in critical condition last night at Emergency Hospital.

Mrs. Forrester, police said, was hit by an automobile driven by Louis R. Tippett, 22, Indian Head, Md., as she attempted to cross Georgia ave. nw. at Ingraham st. during a heavy rain.

The impact threw her into the path of a second automobile, operated by Elwood G. Grow, 23, of Lincoln, Va. She has numerous lacerations and head injuries.

Another traffic victim, Louis Brown, 33, 1319 Vermont ave. nw., who fell under the wheels of an ice truck when apparently trying to jump on the running board, was reported to have spent a comfortable day yesterday at Freedmen's Hospital. Brown was a helper on the ice truck.

Ruth Batson, 25, 1444 Fairmont st. nw., passenger in a car driven by Robert A. Kelly, 27, of 28 Channing st. nw., entered Casualty Hospital with fractured left ribs and possible back injuries after Kelly's car crashed into a parked vehicle.

Police said the parked car belonged to Mary Juliano, 2708 Minnesota ave. se. It was parked in front of her home, police said.

Play Areas List Full Schedules For This Week

There will be fun aplenty on District play areas this week.

Heat to Stay, But Most of U. S. Is Hotter

Residents and neighbors of Washington suffered heat and high humidity yesterday, but to a lesser degree than the greater part of the Nation.

The weatherman last night predicted a similar dosage today, with morning overcast clearing to sunny this afternoon.

Today's forecast high temperature of 85 degrees will duplicate yesterday's maximum, reached at 5:28 p. m. The relative humidity range is expected to be the same as yesterday's, which was high at 88 per cent at 5 a. m.

Abnormal heat yesterday continued to plague a large section of the Nation. The hot area extended as far east as western Kentucky, New York and Pennsylvania, with the simmering Southwest and Great Plains counting temperatures above the 100-degree mark.

North Dakota, Minnesota and a portion of Wisconsin enjoyed a breathing spell of cool air which was expected to reach the Chicago area sometime today. Its relief, however, was expected to be but temporary.

The weather forecaster said the strong movement of hot air from the South would absorb the only cool air in sight.

Most of the Nation, he said, from the Rocky Mountains east will be in the grip of heat during the first part of this week.

Cities reporting 100-degree readings or higher included: Pierre, S. Dak., 106; Kansas City and Omaha, 100; Lincoln, Nebr., 104; St. Cloud, Minn., 100; Minneapolis and St. Paul, 100; Watertown, S. Dak., 105; Waco, Tex., 107; Dallas, 106; Fort Worth and Wichita Falls, 105; San Antonio and Austin, 104; La Junta, Colo., 100.

Eggs Peeve White House Lawn Tender

ROBERT M. REDMOND

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Most of the headaches which go with the job of head gardener at the White House are due to invaders.

These troubles, enumerated yesterday by Robert M. Redmond, who has charge of the President's grounds, include crab grass and Japanese beetles, which are wafted in from foreign soil, as well as trampled lawns sometimes produced by official lawn parties.

But Redmond, who has worked on the White House grounds 24 years and became what might be termed "First Gardener of the Land" in 1945 when William Reeves retired, declared the current seven or eight outdoor parties given annually by the President are nothing compared to the prewar Easter egg rolling routs.

Those Egg Rolls!

"They were murder," he shuddered, referring to the assassination of the bluegrass of the South Lawn by eager youngsters and the shells from the eggs. The last such party, held by the Roosevelts in 1941, brought 55,000 people to the Presidential grounds and it took practically the rest of the season to restore the greensward. Although not inhospitable, Redmond hopes the egg revels will not be resumed.

At present, he rates the difficulty of growing grass under the great trees which dot the lawns as his toughest problem. Some of the 325 specimens of 90 tree varieties in the 18-acre property are so old and big that they cast a lethal shade. Then the trees have to be cared for "just like old people," as Redmond says.

Elm is Oldest Around

The oldest recorded wood giant is an elm planted by John Quincy Adams in 1825 on the east knoll of the South Grounds, while the handsome magnolia at the South Portico began life in 1829 at the hands of Andrew Jackson.

Redmond, who used his horticultural knowledge in the Army in handling the flowers at the Fort Myer, Va., Chapel, has the job of making up the daily fresh bouquets for the White House living quarters. He does this with the aid of two of 11 assistants in his office, which is appropriately called the Bouquet Room. Cut from the grounds during the growing season, the flowers he uses for the house are mostly roses (talismans are Mrs. Truman's favorites), zinnias, phloxes and gladioli.

Fights Crab Grass

The beds where these and many other species are grown are more or less traditional and are continued from year to year, the First Gardner said, though the preferences of First Ladies make for some changes in planting. Mrs. Roosevelt, for instance, liked yellow roses best, so more of these were grown.

In his attempt to grow only a mixture of bluegrass, fescue and red top, on the 12 acres of lawn, Redmond, along with numerous amateur lawn growers of the area, has tried various chemicals against the crab and Bermuda (or Agustine) grass interlopers. The latest one seems to destroy the ranker grasses, but also has a tendency to turn the lawn brown, at least temporarily. This completes a vicious circle, Redmond explains, because he's trying to get rid of the crab grass so it won't form patches of brown on the handsome green.

As for the Jap beetles, the garden expert declares it isn't hard to get rid of them—for 10 to 15 minutes, that is, after which they are back as strong as ever.

The First Gardener has exactly the same troubles at his home—except for the lawn parties—at W. Maple st., Alexandria, Va.

Lines Drawn In Arlington School Vote

Old Group Revives, 3 Factions Enter Battle for Board Election on Nov. 5

A heated battle for membership on Arlington's first popularly elected school board appeared in the making yesterday with at least three distinct factions entering the fray.

Battle lines were already visible between:

1. A slate of five candidates nominated at a convention Saturday of 107 Arlington citizens representing 40 citizens groups.
2. Several incumbent members of the school board.
3. Candidates backed by the Greater Arlington Association, a revived old line civic group which opposed popular school board elections.

Only positive contenders so far for election to the five-man board November 5 were the five candidates chosen Saturday from a field of 22 aspirants.

But tonight at 8, at 2818 N. Washington blvd., the GAA executive committee will decide whether to put up its own candidates.

Hagan Predicts a Fight

J. Foster Hagan, association president, predicted "We'll put up a fight."

Although county Democratic and Republican leaders have vowed to keep the vote non-partisan, Hagan deemed this unlikely.

"I don't see how they can put their heads in the sand like a bunch of ostriches and say there will be no politics," he declared.

While current school board members have not announced themselves as candidates, only one, Harry W. Porter, stated flatly he would not run. Ernest C. Betts, jr., frankly acknowledged "my services are available," while others were non-committal.

Meantime, avowed candidates began to line up their platforms.

Sees More Teachers Needed

Dr. O. Glenn Stahl, 626 S. Stafford st., deputy director of personnel for the Federal Security Agency, recommended a reduction in the pupil loads per teacher, improved recreation facilities, a "good, modern" merit system and a "continuing" census.

"The whole school system needs a new philosophy and re-orientation," he declared. "We need to do some planning instead of running the schools on a shoe-string basis."

Colin C. MacPherson, 6201 N. 18th rd., home builder and Arlington resident since 1910, declared: "I think we should have a school board more responsive to the will of the people."

Suggests Uniform Salaries

He suggested a uniform salary scale to eliminate "bargaining" and a "sound, forward-looking expansion program."

C. E. Tuthill, 2310 N. 9th st., assistant professor of psychology at George Washington University, urged that the whole school system be overhauled.

"Arlington County has quadrupled in size," he said. "We should have the type of leadership which takes into account the fact the county is growing so rapidly and will continue to expand."

Mrs. Edmund D. Campbell, 2912 N. Glebe rd., and Barnard Joy, 1718 N. Hartford st., the other two candidates, could not be reached for comment.

Mrs. Campbell is a teacher and mother of four children; Joy is assistant deputy director of the Agriculture Department's extension service.

Reardon Heads C. of C. Group Seeking Tax Cut

O. A. Reardon, 1504 Russell rd., Alexandria, Va., has been appointed head of a Virginia State Chamber of Commerce committee to campaign for reduction of Federal income taxes as an aid to small business.

Reardon, a vice president of the State chamber, will represent the organization in promoting the tax reduction program before Congress. He has previously presented the chamber's general program before the House Ways and Means Committee.

A native and lifelong resident of Alexandria, Reardon is secretory of the Mitchell Ice Co. there. He is also a director of the National Association of Ice Industries and first vice president of the Virginia Ice Manufacturers Association.

The Virginia group is acting with 21 other State chambers, he said, toward objectives that include 50 per cent reduction in personal income tax and a 16 to 32 per cent lowering of corporate income tax rates.

500 Take Part In Church Reunion

Leonardtown, Md., Aug. 10 (Spl.).—About 500 persons attended the annual homecoming service today at the Poplar Hill Protestant Episcopal Church, 15 miles from here.

A thanksgiving service at the church, one of Maryland's oldest, was followed at noon by a box luncheon under the poplar trees. In the afternoon, dedication of the memorial gates to the church was held, directed by the Rev. Nelson Maconomy, pastor of Poplar Hill Church and Trinity Church, St. Marys City.

Variation on the Proud Father Theme . . .

The Washington Post

IT'S A BOY!—Happy new fathers at the Montgomery County General Hospital, near Olney, Md., have a method of expressing their exuberance. A tiny crib has been placed on the desk in the office and the new father can make a donation toward the $75,000 maternity wing to be erected as soon as funds are available. Nurses Phyllis Lee and Dorothy Hett are checking the crib's contents

Legion Boosts Paper's Fund, Votes Inquiry

Md. Department Acts After Charges of Waste Are Hurled

Baltimore, Aug. 10 (AP).—Delegates to the twenty-ninth annual convention of the Maryland Department of the American Legion voted today to raise dues for its monthly newspaper, but directed newly elected Commander Harry S. Allen of Laurel to investigate its operation.

The decision to raise the dues for the Maryland Legionnaire 25 cents to $1.25 was carried over to the last day of the convention after a stormy debate yesterday when charges of waste were hurled.

Allen, a 51-year-old retired businessman, becomes president of the monthly paper by virtue of his election as commander.

Allen won a three-way race for commander, polling 615 votes. Samuel J. Cohen of Hagerstown, received 391 votes and H. Winship Wheatley, jr., of Hyattsville, received 46 on the first ballot.

Mrs. T. Frank Lynch of Hagerstown became president of the Legion's auxiliary without opposition. She succeeds Mrs. Earle R. Poorbaugh of Baltimore.

Other department officers elected included: William H. Myer, Hamilton Post No. 20, Baltimore, treasurer; Morris Lieberman, MacCabean No. 32, Baltimore, chaplain; John L. Buckley, jr., C. Markland Kelly No. 174, Baltimore, historian; William H. Adams, Dundalk No. 28, sergeant at arms and Edward J. Ryan, Farraday No. 24, Frostburg, judge advocate.

Andrew Hodsden of Baltimore was named vice commander at large, and the following were elected vice commanders for the Legion's seven Maryland districts:

Baltimore City, Owne K. Bender; Southern, Albert L. Hilliard of Odenton; Mountain, James E. Kenney of Westernport; Eastern Shore, Hamilton L. Bashiell of Cambridge; Northern Central, Norman C. Stilles of Catonsville; Northeastern Shore, J. Lewin Burris of Chestertown; Western, Ernest Lipps, Frederick.

Other Legion auxiliary officers chosen were Mrs. Margaret Gilchrist, vice president of the Baltimore district; Mrs. E. Giles Lewis of Odenton, treasurer; Mrs. Orville Roberts of Devon, historian; Mrs. Thomas Freeman of Greenbelt, chaplain; and Mrs. Adolph Decker of Glenn Burnie, sergeant at arms.

Mrs. Poorbaugh, the retiring president, was indorsed as national vice president for the Eastern district, which includes the New England States, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Virginia 40 and 8 Elects

Richmond, Va., Aug. 10 (AP).—James H. Putman of Richmond was elected grand conducteur of the Forty and Eight, American Legion, here this afternoon as that group assembled prior to the convening of the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the American Legion, Department of Virginia, tonight.

First session on the general Legion convention was the commanders' club dinner, at which Admiral William F. Halsey spoke.

The Forty and Eight today also named Otis Hankin of Radford, sous grand conducteur; Robert Hardin of Richmond and T. L. Bogart of Charlottesville, grand garde de la port; Lynn Johnson and William Moses, both of Norfolk, grand drapeau, and William L. Fastabend of Petersburg, grand historian.

Dr. J. B. Fisher of Newport News was elected grand medicin; the Rev. David C. George, Norfolk, grand aumonier; Frank Owens, Danville, grand lampiste; Bernard Kayton, Norfolk, cheminot nationale; Ernest H. East, Waynesboro, alternate cheminit; John E. Burton, Newport News, grand chef de gare; Ernest A. Hileman, Vienna, grand chef de train; Edwin M. Imlay, Roanoke, grand comisa commissaire intendant; William McCollum, Danville, grand comis voyage, and Garland E. Calhoun, Roanoke, grand correspondent.

'Girl's Nation' Gets Start at American U.

"Girl's Nation," mythical Government, operated by the so-called weaker sex, was doing all right at American University last night.

Eighty-two girls from 41 States convened under sponsorship of the American Legion Auxiliary for the feminine counterpart of the recently-concluded, Legion sponsored "Boy's Forum" of simulated government.

Preliminary to patterning their organization after the United States Government, the girls, from 15 to 17 years of age, elected two committees of five members each to draft platforms for the two political parties that will serve as bases for action.

Before going into the first caucus session last night, the youthful participants toured the city and at 2:30 p. m. placed a wreath on the Unknown Soldier's Tomb, in Arlington Cemetery.

The two parties will go into mock convention sessions beginning today, to be followed by the holding of "Electoral College" and Senate sessions. Principal speaker at today's activities will be Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

Mrs. E. A. Campbell of Homer, La., chairman of the girls' State committee of the Legion Auxiliary, is in charge.

Housing Aid For Returning Agencies Set

'Displaced' Veterans To Get Priority in Naylor Cooperative

The Veterans' Cooperative Housing Agency, which is in the process of buying Naylor Gardens, has established a housing priority for Government-employed veterans who are being transferred to Washington after October 1.

Veterans among the 4500 out-of-town Federal employes who will soon invade Washington are being offered the opportunity to become members of the cooperative on the same terms as charter members.

Mail applications will be accepted and "processed immediately," John A. Densford, cooperative membership chairman, announced. The cooperative now has 135 members living in the 748-unit apartment project at 30th st. and Naylor rd. se., with 35 members waiting for vacancies.

The cooperative association has an option to buy the Gardens from Defense Homes Corporation for $5,125,000. Under terms of the sales contract, the cooperative must acquire at least 300 member occupants of the apartments by January 9 and grant a 90-day option to present occupants to join the association.

The cooperative announced at the same time that the controversy over whether the cooperative would be required to register with the Securities and Exchange Commission had been settled by an opinion from Edward H. Cashion, chief counsel of SEC's corporation finance division, who declared that "the activities of the association do not involve the sale of a security within the meaning of the Securities Act and the registration requirements of that act are not applicable."

The SEC, with offices in Philadelphia, is one of the Government agencies which will be transferred to Washington. Others are four Interior Department agencies from Chicago, Civil Service's Fourth Regional Office from Winston-Salem, N. C., Immigration and Naturalization Service from Philadelphia, Veteran's Administration actuarial insurance office and Bureau of Employes Compensation, both from New York.

U. S. Attorney to Hear Details Of Case of Mixed-Up Buicks

Case of the mixed up automobiles, in which the wrong Buick was driven from here to New York and put aboard a boat for Brazil, will come before Assistant United States Attorney John B. Diamond, 3d, at 11 a. m. today.

"It's routine for District police to refer such cases to our office to see if we care to prosecute," Diamond said yesterday.

He added he had no opinion as to possible Attorney General's office action "since I have not heard the facts."

The mixup occurred when Mrs. Othella Pompier, a clerk in the Brazilian Aeronautical Commission, was told to drive a car belonging to her boss, Lieut. Col. Jose Vincente de Faria Lima, chief of the Brazilian commission, to New York and ship it to him in Brazil.

The pretty, 24-year-old clerk mistook a car belonging to John Costianes, restaurant owner, for her boss's and drove it off instead.

Detective Sergt. Jacob Wolf, who investigated, was convinced it was all a mistake but said the principals would be brought before the Assistant United States Attorney.

Thieves Get $1037 From Two Asleep; Safe Stolen

Hotel Room Looted Of $340 and Watch; Woman's Purse Snatched From Auto

Weekend burglars took cash from trousers of sleeping Washingtonians, rolled a safe from a filling station, and entered a room at Wardman Park Hotel.

Biggest loser was Isaiah Sharperson, 1234 Linden st. ne., Catholic University laborer, who told police his wallet, containing $902 in cash, was taken from the pocket of his trousers lying on a bed at his home.

Col. Harry L. Berno, Wardman Park Hotel, reported his billfold, containing $300 in travelers checks and $40 in bills, and a $75 watch were taken some time Saturday from a dresser in his hotel room.

A safe, containing $100 in cash and $200 worth of charge tickets, was taken from a service station at 340 Florida ave. ne., Carl S. Tuggle, station manager, reported. Tuggle said the burglars broke the lock of the front door of the station.

Alfred J. Johnson, 49, of 2819 Dumbarton ave. nw., a Montgomery School employe, told police $135 in cash was taken from his pants pocket while he slept in a room in the 2700 block of O st. nw.

Margaruite Kerr, 22, of 1806 C st. ne., reported that while she sat in a friend's car parked near the National Guard Armory, 19th and East Capitol sts. ne., a youth reached inside the car and snatched her pocketbook, containing $6 in cash and a cigarette lighter.

Lions to Back Chevy Chase Harvest Show

Bethesda-Chevy Chase Lions Club will underwrite financially this year's Bethesda-Chevy Chase Harvest Show, Lions President Albert E. Brault announced yesterday.

The fifth annual event is planned for September 14 at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School. Each year a different civic club assumes any financial loss the show incurs.

Brault named Earle S. Carlin, 7004 Hampden lane, a fuel and building materials salesman, as the Lions representative on the show committee.

Mrs. George A. Smith is general show chairman and E. K. Bender assistant chairman.

Judges for the event, appointed by Capt. J. A. Guard, chairman of judges, will include:

Dr. Howard R. Watkins, Dr. Earl B. White, and W. H. Youngman, annual and perennial flowers; Mrs. Dion S. Birney, Mrs. Herbert H. Grether and Mrs. Lomax Taylor, artistic arrangements; Miss Gladys Gilpin, Mrs. Ola Powell Malcolm and Miss Edythe Turner, canned fruits and vegetables; Louis G. Mitchell, Val C. Sherman and Miss Dorothy O. Young, crafts and hobbies; Henry W. Reiner, junior crafts and hobbies; Percy F. Fulton, Frank H. Goetzger and James G. Gray, jr., dahlias.

Also, Albert F. Vierheller, garden club educational exhibits; Dr. Edwin C. Powell, fruits; Dr. Robert E. Gibbs and Dr. Louis A. Sordo, pec.; Col. William H. England and Winn T. Simmons, roses, and Dr. Victor R. Boswell and Robert E. Wester, vegetables.

Virginia Board Licenses 160 to Practice Medicine

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 9.—The State Board of Medical Examiners announced today the licensing of 105 doctors by examination and 55 by reciprocity to practice medicine in Virginia.

Nearby Virginians licensed to practice were Robert C. Green, jr., John McL. Adams and Anastasia Kraf, Winchester; Douglas O. Hill, Waynesboro; James Maurice Knopp, Staunton; George J. Oliver, jr., and Hugh G. Stokes, jr., Williamsburg, and John H. McClung, Lexington, and Lewis K. Madison, Warrenton.

Also Charles E. Horton, Vienna; Joseph A. Solomon, Harold J. Gordon, John O. Nester, Ralph L. Nicholson and Athur I. Sims, Arlington; Landon G. Gant, Eugene h. Grether and Persis M. Kroutil, Alexandria; Amod E. Johns, Remington; Harold Walter Bischoff, William L. Harris, Clarence R. Hartman and Jack L. Levine, Falls Church.

Correction

In Sunday's issue of The Washington Post, it was reported that Charles W. Brooks is to be honored today for 40 years of service in the Navy Department. In the headline of the story, the implication was made that Mr. Brooks is retiring from service in the Navy. This is not the case. The Post regrets the error.

Christ's Hope Stressed as Ideal for Man

The Rev. Robert B. Campbell, guest minister at the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, yesterday called upon men to wake up to the eternal hopeful optimism of Jesus.

He pointed out the need for good will among peoples, rather than despair. Where there is good will, there is hope, he stated.

He asked for faith in man's possibilities and God's help in all problems and failures, whether they are personal, national or international.

"Let us hope and pray," he urged, "that all men may wake up to this knowledge of eternal truth which gave Jesus the optimistic hopeful spirit and should give us that same spirit—that our hope is from God and is revealed and eternal, because God is eternal."

Campbell, rector of the Church of the Incarnation in Cleveland, Ohio, will be at Epiphany until August 22.

'Does God Care?'

At First Congregational Church, 10th and G nw., Dr. Robert Blyth, also a guest minister, emphasized the sustaining qualities of God as an answer to the oft-raised question "Does God Care?"

As examples of the sustaining power, he cited the ability of the body to adjust itself to external conditions without conscious supervision. This same sustaining power, he added, is experienced by the man who forgets himself in a ministry to others.

Lastly, he said, "we find him a sustaining God when, amid difficulties too heavy for us to bear, we turn to Him for strength."

In Bethesda, the Rev. James Albertson, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, pointed out the parallel between Mephibosheth and mankind. This lame prince of the Old Testament, he said, was treated with kindness by David because of David's love for Jonathan. He enjoyed freedoms seldom seen in the Near East, and was placed in a position of security.

Although we may sometimes wonder how God can love man with all his weaknesses, frailties and indifferences, he said, it is because He frankly pardons us for the sake of His Son, Jesus Christ.

At the National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle, the Rev. J. Warren Hastings emphasized the need for faith in human beings and for bonds of friendship.

"How can we have a great new crusade in the world unless men believe in others?" he asked.

"There cannot be anything like world brotherhood or friendship without Christian relationships," he said. Using the Biblical story of the friendship of Barnabas and Paul which broke up over giving Mark a second trial, he declared, "The gaspel of the second chance is the gospel of Jesus Christ."

Advice to Veterans

The Rev. Penn H. Howard spoke on "Winning Out Against a Handicap," in a sermon especially addressed to veterans at Annandale (Va.) Methodist Church. In speaking of the handicaps which the veteran faces, he said, "Many who have given the greatest service to the world have done so only by overcoming the severest handicaps."

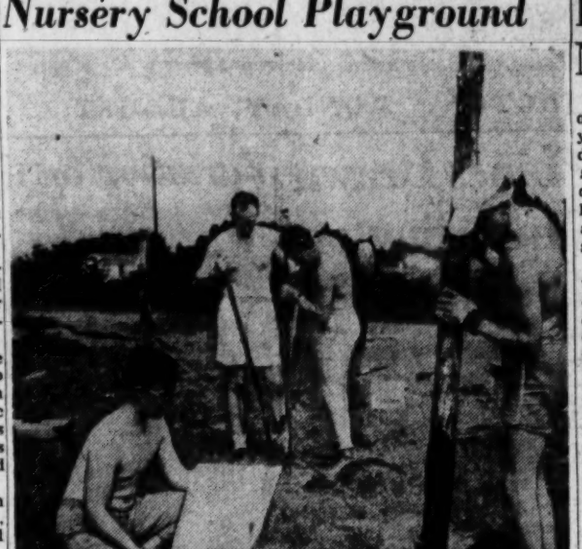
The composer Beethoven, he pointed out, won out against his deafness, and all through his music we hear "the peols of triumph which reveal the heroic, immortal soul of a man who overcame the suffering, the hardness and bitterness of fate, himself and the world."

FWA Offers Surpluses To Disaster-Hit Areas

Complying with a recent act of Congress, the Federal Works Agency last night offered surplus Government trucks, bulldozers, bridge machinery and other construction equipment to three hard-hit disaster areas.

Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works administrator, made the Federal property available to the flood districts of Vermont and the Mississippi-Missouri Basin, and to explosion-shattered Texas City, Tex.

Fathers of Annandale Build Nursery School Playground



The Washington Post

By James Graham
Post Reporter

One way to provide a playground for a nursery school is to build it yourself.

This is what a group of Annandale, Va., fathers decided when the Annandale Pre-School Association was formed last March to care for nursery and kindergarten children in the area.

With the school set up and ready to begin operations at the Annandale Methodist Church on September 15, a group of shorts-clad fathers Saturday began setting up posts for the playground fence.

By sundown the posts were all in place, ready for the wire fence. Also by sundown, the volunteer laborers had collected numerous varieties of sunburns and tired muscles.

But, as one sweating post-hole digger, Everett A. Golway, put it, "The best way to build the playground was to do it ourselves."

The nursery school idea was born last spring when parents of 28 preschool age children banded together to provide such a school for their children. Use of the church was obtained through the cooperation of the pastor, the Rev. Clark Wood.

Classes will be held in church school rooms. The playground is being built in the rear of the church grounds.

Incorporation papers for the nonprofit-making institution are being drawn and will be filed within a week. Tentative tuition fees have been set at $15 a month for each pupil.

Miss Sarah Baker Thomas of Martinsburg, W. Va., a graduate of Wheelock College Nursery School of Boston, has been engaged to teach. A maximum of 20 children in each of the nursery and kindergarten classes has been set.

At present, 11 children are registered for the kindergarten classes for 5-year-olds and 17 3-to-5-year-old children are entered in the nursery. Mrs. Donald Gray, chairman of the enrollment committee, is accepting registrations at Alexandria 5667.

Other officers of the association are Mrs. Everett A. Golway, president; Mrs. David Scull, vice president; Mrs. Edwin Lynch, secretary; Everett A. Golway, treasurer, and Comdr. Arthur Melhuse, chairman of the supplies committee.

Tobacco Season To Close Aug. 28

The 1947 tobacco season in southern Maryland will close after the sale on August 28, the Marlboro Tobacco Board of Trade announced yesterday.

At a board meeting last week, a majority of packers and buyers went on record as opposing any attempt to open the 1948 season before June 1.

After operating 73 selling days, the board announced, a total of $8,553,253.99 had been paid out, an average of $47.07 per sale.

1000 Russian Exiles Quit China for Soviet

Shanghai, Aug. 10 (AP).—More than 1000 Russians, most of whom had been exiles since the revolution or were born abroad, sailed for Vladivostok today aboard the 2200-ton steamer Ilyitch in the first mass repatriation of Soviet citizens from China.

Many other Russians who are scheduled to sail later went to see what the accommodations were like, but were not allowed aboard.

Cat Has Kittens In 75-Foot Tree And Jumps Down

Los Angeles, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Smokey, a small gray cat, limped today as a reminder of a 75-foot leap that ended a week-long stay in a palm tree where she gave birth to kittens.

Her three kittens were killed when they fell from the tree.

Two tree climbers from the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals scaled the palm late yesterday and had just reached her perch atop the tree when Smokey jumped.

Smokey lay on the street a few moments after the leap, then ran under the home of her owner, Mrs. Gilbert Waters. Some meat lured her out. Smokey's left paw was injured slightly and her nose and mouth were skinned by the fall.

Glad to see her down from her week-long perch was her friend, Duchess, a dog. But Smokey was too tired to play with Duchess today.

POISON IVY

A U. S. GOVERNMENT BUREAU REPORT announces the discovery of a new tannic acid treatment for ivy poisoning*. National Weather Summary

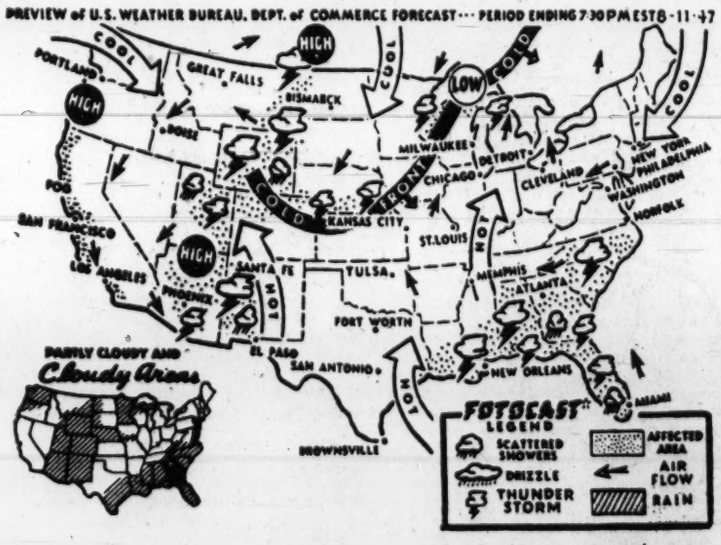
Copyr., 1947, Edw. L. A. Wagner



TWENTY-FOUR-HOUR SUMMARY: No important amount of rainfall is foreseen in the Corn Belt during the period of this forecast, though there will be scattered thundershowers along the Kansas-Nebraska and the Iowa-Missouri borders.

Temperatures will be a bit lower, however, in the North-Central States where cool air from Canada is advancing south and eastward. The cold front on the fotocast shows the boundary line of this air mass. Sections north and west of the front will be relatively cooler, but 100-degree temperatures will again be recorded ahead of the front at Des Moines, Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis and Indianapolis.

The Southeast and Rockies will have the rain that is needed in the scorched Midwestern and Plains areas, according to the Weather Bureau experts. The forecasters expect air flowing inland from the Gulf and South Atlantic to drop its moisture via showers and thunderstorms over an area extending from southeastern Texas to the Carolinas. This air flow will be mostly responsible for the partial cloudiness pictured for the Southeast and Gulf States on the insert chart also. Overcast skies along the Atlantic Coast from New York to Virginia will be caused by winds from the northeast carrying ocean air inland.

Fair weather is predicted from western Texas northeastward to Canada's maritime provinces. Cooling winds off the Atlantic will keep the Northeast comfortable Monday, but hot southerly air currents will continue 100-degree maximums from Texas to Chicago.

The West Coast will have considerable fog from Mexico to Oregon and the high-pressure cell in the Northwest will circulate cooling winds over sections west of the Rockies.

Funeral services have been tentatively set for tomorrow at the Covenant First Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Cora M. Kiplinger

Mrs. Cora Miller Kiplinger, 83, widow of one of America's last carriage makers and mother of W. M. Kiplinger, editor of Kiplinger Letters, died at 3:30 a. m. yesterday at her home, 2237 N. Vermont st., Arlington.

Mrs. Kiplinger, a resident of Arlington County for more than 25 years, suffered a broken hip in a fall at her home three years ago and had been in failing health since that time.

Born at Bellefontaine, Ohio, Mrs. Kiplinger came to Arlington County in the early 1920s after her husband, Clarence E. Kiplinger, retired from his carriage-making business in Bellefontaine. Her husband died in 1929.

She was active in Rock Spring Congressional Church, Arlington County WCTU, and numerous civic and women's clubs of that county.

A grandson, Austin H. Kiplinger, is editor of the Kiplinger Magazine.

Beside the Kiplinger Letters editor and the grandson, she is survived by two other sons, Herman M. Kiplinger, St. Petersburg, Fla., real estate man, and C. Gale Kiplinger, a mechanical engineer at Buffalo, N. Y. A brother, Huber Miller, of Toledo, Ohio, also survives.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. today at Rock Spring Congressional Church, Rock Spring and Little Falls rds. in Arlington. Burial will take place Tuesday at Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Mrs. Eleanor C. Berkey

Funeral services for Mrs. Eleanor Campbell Berkey, wife of Rear Admiral Russell S. Berkey, commander of the Naval Base at New York, will be held at noon today at the Congregational Church, Hamburg, Conn. Burial will be in Joshuatown, Conn.

Mrs. Berkey, who died Saturday, lived in Washington from July 1945 to November 1946 while her husband was stationed here as director of the office of civil relations for the Navy.

Admiral Berkey's official address is 1620 Elwood ave., Tulsa, Okla. He also maintains a home at Joshuatown rd., Lyme, Conn.

W. P. Webb, NLRB Aide, Dies in Hospital

William P. Webb, 66, a senior trial examiner for the National Labor Relations Board since 1943, died Saturday night at Emergency Hospital.

Mr. Webb, known to friends as "Colonel," an honorary title stemming from his early career as a lieutenant in the Philippine Constabulary from 1911 to 1916, led a diversified life highlighted by a legal career in Washington, and military and civilian services overseas.

After five years in the Philippines, he was employed by the Standard Oil Co. of New York as an attorney and executive officer at Penang, the Straits Settlements, as well as in Borneo and Siam. While in Penang from 1921 to 1922 he also doubled as American vice consul.

He returned to the United States in 1931 to practice law in Washington, and in 1934 went to the Home Owners Loan Corporation as an attorney. He remained there until 1943 when he joined the NLRB.

Mr. Webb was born in Boydton, Va., attending local schools before entering Davidson College in 1894 at the age of 14. In 1897 he transferred to Wake Forest College for a year, graduating with an A. B. degree. In 1905 he graduated with an LL.B. from George Washington Law School.

He was a member of the Indian Springs Golf Club in Washington. He made his home at 1016 16th st. nw.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. W. Graham Martin, Spartanburg, S. C., a son, William P. Webb, jr., New York City, and four sisters all living in North Carolina, Mrs. J. J. Davis and Mrs. S. A. Martin, Stovall, and Mrs. W. P. Neal, and Mrs. J. B. Yarborough, Louisburg. His wife, the former Dorothy Ransome of England, died in 1936.

Funeral services will be held today at 3 p. m. at the First Presbyterian Church, Boydton, Va. Burial will follow in the church graveyard.

Richmond Man Elected to Head Veterans Group

Portsmouth, Va., Aug. 10 (AP).—Robert F. Bowden of Richmond was elected State commander of the American Veterans of World War I at the closing session of the anuual convention at Hotel Portsmouth today.

The elections followed adoption of a resolution asking that all railroad crossings in Virginia be overpassed, underpassed or attended.

State vice commanders chosen today enclude: Harry E. Summerer of Portsmouth for the southeastern district; C. M. Firey of Roanoke, southwestern district, and Carl F. Muse of Charlottesville, northern district.

Others named were Gravely Dyer of Highland Springs, adjutant; M. Phillip Katz, Alexandria, judge advocate; W. B. Lathan, Richmond, finance officer, and Walter M. Smith, Portsmouth, provost marshal.

Rites Are Set Tomorrow for J. W. Calvert

Funeral services for John Wentworth Calvert, 62, author of the first District income tax law, who died Saturday at Emergency Hospital, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at Gawler's funeral home, 1750 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Calvert, a direct descendant of the fifth Lord Baltimore, was formerly assistant treasurer of the National Savings & Trust Co. His family owned the Riversdale Mansion, the 2000-acre Calvert estate in Riverdale, Md., which was built by his great grandfather, George Calvert, with bricks imported from England.

A native of Washington, he was a son of the late George H. and Frances Seybolt Calvert. Mr. Calvert had resided at the Stoneleigh Court Apartments since his mother's death in 1934.

He entered George Washington Law School in 1907, graduating in 1911. He passed the District Bar examination in February, 1911.

For years he was a member of the District Bar Association and was for 20 years an usher at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church. He was a member of the Chevy Chase Country Club for 37 years.

His favorite charity was the Thrift Shop, an organization of which he was treasurer for many years. He was a member of the Temple Noyes Lodge of Masons.

Funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. Oscar Randolph, assistant rector of St. John's Episcopal Church.

Mr. Calvert leaves a sister, Miss Julia S. Calvert of 1705 P st. nw.

Clubwomen's Meeting Manners Are Found 'Too Talky' by Men

By Genevieve Reynolds

What's wrong with America's ibwomen? How can they im- ove their meeting manners? Do embers talk and resolute too uch?

Oh wad some power the giftie gie us, o see oursels as ithers see us!
t wad frae monie a blunder free us
An' foolish notion."

Taking Robert Burns' immortal ines to heart, Mrs. Helen Mont- ort Moodie, chairman, Women's Conference on International Af- fairs, cornered a group of educa- tors at a recent Institute of Com- munity Leadership in Manlius, N. Y., and bluntly told them to turn on the verbal spotlight.

Forty-nine out of 50 men queried opined that the males generally suspect the gentler sex of presenting a subject from the emotional standpoint. All insisted that the fairer sex talk too much and waste too much time at club functions, according to Mrs. Moodie.

Throught the conference, which was sponsored by the New York Citizens' Council of the State Department of Education, the educators suggested that women's organizations should take the initiative in sponsoring training courses to improve techniques for conducting formal discussions, forums, panels and symposiums.

"Men claim they want to hear the practical side of questions, such as the financial aspect of a program," said Mrs. Moodie. "They insisted that women should concentrate on the logical approach to a problem and avoid windy details.

"The men reported that women usually talk too much and too fast at club meetings," she continued.

And thus speaketh the male. No doubt, the Capital's clubwomen, never at a loss for words, have a ready retort.

BPW Members Leaving for Conference

Eight members of the D. C. Business and Professional Women's Club are leaving during the coming week for the Southeast Regional Conference of Business and Professional Women's Clubs to be held in Gulfport, Miss., August 15-17.

The theme of the conference will be that of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs for the 1947-1948 program: "We Face Tomorrow."

Three features of the conference program will be a panel "Our Legislative Program;" a forum "Leadership," led by Judge Lucy Somerville Howorth, legal adviser of the D. C. club and national candidate data chairman; and an international luncheon. There will be a symposium on "Stabilization and Expansion of Membership" and a discussion on "Practical Program Planning."

Guest at the conference and the banquet speaker will be the Hon. Esther Calkin Brunauer of Washington, Minister of the UNESCO.

Members of the District of Columbia Club attending the conference will be Judge Lucy Howorth, Miss Mae Murray, contact chairman for the conferene; Miss Marguerite Rawalt, Miss Genevieve Rogers, vice president; Mrs. Lucy Rumley, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Bessie Sharpe, Miss Louisa Crow, and Miss June Britton.

Don't Fret If Little Tot Is Filcher

Chicago, Aug. 10 (AP).—If your six-year-old youngster filches something that doesn't belong to him, don't conclude he is on the road to ruin, an expert on child behavior has cautioned.

Dr. Arnold Gesell, director of the Clinic of Child Development, said that a child usually does not acquire a sense of fairness and honesty until he is seven or eight years old.

"We do all we can to divert his behavior into desirable channels, but we must recognize the nature of his immaturity.

"We must not lose faith if at the age of two-and-and-a-half years the child grabs toys from his playmates; if at four he calls names and brags and boasts and tell tales; if at six years he suddenly becomes aggressive in word and action.

"But at seven and eight years of age he rapidly develops a sense of fairness, of honesty. He begins to think in terms of right and wrong as well as of good and bad. At 10 years he becomes interested in social problems and develops an embryonic civic as well as personal conscience. It is a golden period for planting liberalizing ideas and attitudes."

He said that "physically, the child inherits nothing fully formed" and that each and every part of his nature has to grow, including his sense of self, fears, affections, curiosities, judgments and ideas. He added:

"This civilization will come to ruin if many cannot preserve his mental and spiritual health. We need a more profound knowledge of child development to teach us the limitations of the human nervous system under the impacts of a technological culture."

Your Questions On Homemaking

An overloaded vaporizer sprayed tincture of benzoin (80% alcohol) on a white sheet, the maple bars of a crib, and a green and white upholstered vanity bench. The sheet and upholstery both have brown stains. On the crib bars are grayish-white stains that seem to be a sort of coating. Can you tell me how to clean these articles? P. J. S.

Rub lard into the spots on the sheet and let it remain for several hours. Then sponge well with cleaning fluid. Repeat treatment several times if necessary, then wash sheet in soap and water, using laundry bleach to remove any remaining trace of stain.

Wash the stains on the crib bars with warm water and soap. Then rub with a mixture of powdered pumice stone and linseed oil in the direction of the grain of the wood. Dry with a soft clean cloth and polish.

You may be able to remove—or at least lighten—the spot on the upholstery by sponging with cleaning fluid. (Use a brushing motion so as not to rub the stain into the padding.) It would probably be more satisfactory, however, to send the stool to a professional upholstery cleaner.

Will you print a recipe for half-sour kosher cucumbers? I know they are made with water, garlic and salt, but am not sure of the seasoning. Is it allspice, and how much should be used? Also, can you tell me how to remove paint that has become embedded in the porcelain door of our cook stove? E. H.

I wonder if you have in mind the sour-sweet "midwinter pickle," which is sometimes called "kosher" pickle? A recipe for them follows:

Cut into 1-inch slices 12 large, sour cucumber pickles. Cover with 3 cups brown or white sugar, 3 tablespoons mustard seed and 3 tablespoons celery seed (or 6 tablespoons mixed whole spices). Permit this mixture to stand in an earthen receptacle until the sugar is dissolved; about 3 days. The crock may be rubbed with garlic or 3 or 4 garlic cloves may be sliced fine and added to the pickle. Stir pickles daily. When taken from crock, put them in jars, leaving out the garlic.

The paint spot on your stove can be softened with commercial paint remover or turpentine. Then scrape off as much as possible with a dull knife, being careful not to injure the enamel. Sponge the rest away with the remover or turpentine. As both are inflammable, do this job when the stove is cold.

A brown and white checked dress became streaked with red when accidentally washed with a red dress. Can you tell me how to remove these stains? G. L.

If your dress is cotton, try bleaching out the stains in the sunshine. Soak the dress for 10 to 12 hours first, wash in heavy soapsuds, then spread dress in sun to dry and bleach. (Do this only if the brown dye seems to be sunfast.)

Since some dyes are unaffected by chlorine, it might be practical to use laundry bleach in removing the red stains. Test by soaking a sample of the brown and white material (snipped from the inside of a seam or some other hidden place) in a light solution of the bleach. If the dye is unaffected, rinse the whole dress in the solution. (Use laundry bleach only if the dress is cotton. It injures silk, wool and rayon.)

(1) Will you tell me how I can remove grass stain from a white shirt? (2) What is the best way to prepare a baby carriage for storage? F. R.

1. Sponging the grass stian with alcohol or benzene should be effective in removing it. If not, use one of the hydrosulfite bleaches sold in drug stores as dye removers. Follow directions on package.

2. Brush the carriage and its cushions well. If the body is painted wood, wash with a cloth and mild soapsuds. If it's wicker, wash with a brush and a solution of one quart warm water and one tablespoon household ammonia. The top, if it's leather or leatherette, should also be washed with a cloth and mild soapsuds. Rinse the carriage after washing by wiping with a cloth wrung out in clear water. Dry the carriage thoroughly in the sun. Then wax painted wooden surfaces and any metal parts. Apply special leather dressing if the top is real leather. Spray upholstery with a residual spray of 5 per cent DDT solution, or sift moth crystals liberally over it. If the paper can be sealed about it tightly, it will not be necessary to make fresh applications of moth killer occasionally to preserve the upholstery.

Yes, Indeed! Used Fats Are Still Needed!

says DOROTHY KIRK, Food Editor of Woman's Home Companion

If you've stopped saving used fats, please read this message from Secretary of Commerce W. A. Harriman. "Not only the United States but the whole world still lacks adequate supplies of fats and oils. And we in America are particularly short of industrial fats." Remember, many things we all use require industrial fats or their products. The used fats housewives turn in represent a good part of our American supply. So keep saving . . . keep turning in your used fats, won't you?

Dances, Songs, Celebrate Ecuador's 'Fourth of July'

Ecuador's Independence Day yesterday was celebrated at the embassy with the Ambassador and Senora de Ponce entertaining at their first large party since Dr. Ponce, former Minister-Councelor was elevated to the rank of Ambassador.

Guests included those who are primarily interested in Inter-American cooperation from many government departments as well as private and educational institutions.

The Ecuadorian national anthem was sung by Senorita Rosario Leon, Ecuadorian student at the Juilliard School of Music, who came from New York and the Ambassador gave a few words of welcome. Stanley Grand of the State Department had also been asked to talk.

Capt. Gustavo Izurieta, Assistant Air Attache of the embassy, was one of those taking part in a program of dances which included the San Juanito, folk dance of the Andean Indians of Ecuador. Also dancing the spirited number were Senorita Beatri Izurieta, Senorita Rosario Leon, Senora Rebeca Albornoz, Mrs. Wesley Adams, Oswaldo Garcia, Dr. Miguel Albornoz and Col. Bayardo Tobar.

Brown-Tolley Bridals to Be At Berkeley

The marriage of Miss Margaret E. Brown of Berkeley, Calif., and Howard E. Tolley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. Tolley of Alexandria, Va., will take place Saturday, August 16, in St. John's Church, Berkeley.

Miss Brown is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Brown of the University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo. She is a graduate of the University of California at Los Angeles and a member of Chi Omega. During the war she served as a captain in the Women's Army Corps, Army Air Forces.

Mr. Tolley was a student at the University of California at Berkeley after graduating from Western High School in Washington. He enlisted in the Army Air Forces in 1942 and served as a captain navigator with the Ninth Air Force in the European Theater.

After his discharge from the service in 1945, Mr. Tolley returned to the University of California, graduating in 1946 with a major in economics. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega. He is now with the Veterans Administration Hospital in Livermore, Calif.

George Tolley of Washington, will be present at his brother's wedding but Mr. and Mrs. Tolley, parents of the prospective bridegroom, will be en route to Switzerland where Mr. Tolley will attend the annual Food and Agriculture Organization conference in Geneva.

Miss Holecek Plans October Wedding

Miss Irene Ann Holecek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Holecek, has selected October 10 as the date of her marriage to Sergt. Talmage Eugene Simpkins, USMC, son of Mrs. Leve Simpkins of River Forest, Ill. The ceremony will take place in Trinity Lutheran Church, Washington.

The bride-elect is secretary to S. J. Hogan, president of the National Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association. Sergeant Simpkins is stationed at the Naval Gun Factory, Washington.

Visitors From 'Down Under'

Visitors from "down under" have beaten a path to the Australian Embassy in the last week or so and due in a few days is the Australian Minister of Information and Immigration, Arthur Calwell, accompanied by Mrs. Calwell.

A recent visitor was the Apostolic Delegate of Australia, Dr. Panico, who was a guest of the Ambassador and Mrs. Norman Makin at dinner.

Other prominent churchmen expected to call on the Ambassador are Dr. Harry Holmes, Australian born, a special minister at a Methodist church in Washington, and the Angelican Archbishop of Sydney, Dr. Mowll.

Overnight guests of the Ambassador and Mrs. Makin last week were the Hon. Percy Spender and Mrs. Spender and Fred Daly, member of the House of Representatives at Canberra.

Australia's Minister of Transport and External Territories, E. J. Ward, was another visitor for a brief stay at the embassy. A few days ago the Ambassador entertained at luncheon two prominent Australian journalists—Alan Burbury, associate editor of the Sun Pictorial of Melbourne, and Frank Daly, editor of the Sunday Mail of Brisbane.

In Orange Blossom Parade

Sures—Pike

Miss Sara Bernice Pike, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Pike, and Allan H. Sures, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sures, were married yesterday at 4 o'clock, the ceremony taking place at the Shoreham Hotel with Rabbi Hugo Schiff officiating. A musical program was given by Julian Altman, violinist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white net gown the voluminous tiered skirt ending in a long train. A Juliet cape of seed pearls held the long tulle veil and white orchids and lilies of the valley formed the bridal bouquet.

The bride attended George Washington University. Mr. Sures also attended George Washington and the University of Michigan.

Jenkins—Nyman

St. Alban's Church was the setting for the wedding on Saturday of Miss Eleanor Jane Nyman, daughter of Mrs. Arthur M. Nyman of Chevy Chase, Md., and the late Mr. Nyman, who became the bride of Clarence Raymond Jenkins. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Jenkins of Zacata, Va. Following the ceremony at 4:30 a reception was held in the Burgundy room at Wardman Park.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Albert E. Landvoight of Washington and Virginia. She wore a white French organdy gown made with fitted basque and double skirt over taffeta. The shorter top skirt trimmed with embroidered organdy wheels, was caught at the back to form a bustle from which fell a long train. Her veil of French illusion was fingertip length and was held by a coronet trimmed with white organdy and caught with orange blossoms.

Maid of honor was Miss Ruth Meyers of Benton Harbor, Mich., and bridesmaids were Miss Allison Mills of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Miss Mary Cook, and Miss Betty Doane, both of Washington. The attendants all wore Teal blue taffeta frocks with matching bandeaux trimmed with American Beauty roses to match their bouquets.

Clayton B. Jenkins, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and ushers included Albert Barber, Samuel Powell, jr., and Lloyd Robertson.

Own Money Is Incentive For Junior

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Once your 5-year-old begins to go to school he is certain to discover the virtues of having a pocketbook and some spending money. He sees other children buying at the drugstore or grocery store and he wants to do likewise.

That pocketbook is important. It makes this money easier to carry and it develops in the child a sense of ownership.

This is "his" pocketbook and what goes in it belongs to him. When he feels that way about his own possessions he will come to feel the same about those of others. And this is a right feeling, one which prevents him from misusing another's property.

The parent must not make the mistake of denying him his allowance or taking it from him if he misbehaves. This money, however small it may be, is his allowance and it should be given him week after week, no matter what his behavior. If he misbehaves and needs punishment, punish him, but not by appropriating his allowance.

His first consideration of money should be to learn to manage it. No one can manage a fluctuating sum. It must be the same each week or else the child cannot plan for it.

At first, there will be nothing but spending. That is why it is desirable to begin allowances when the child is old enough to understand the meaning of five cents and get the spending out of his system before the sum grows too large. If the parent has entire supervision of the allowance, the management is taken out of the child's hands and has little value. It is then only a matter of digital dexterity for a child to put one cent in this place and another someplace else because the mother has some idea that part of the allowance must be saved, part spent, etc. It can't be done with five cents and it needn't be done. It is the child who must learn the limitations of five cents and if he wants to save to have more purchasing power, he must do it of his own accord.

Until the allowance is of a size which allows for division, the Sunday School money, the money for appreciable sized purchases should be furnished by the parents. The first allowances are capable of giving the child exercise in handling money, seeing what it will do.

Miss Betty Simony, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Simony, announce her engagement to Jack Rosenthal, son of Mrs. Ida Rosenthal, also of Washington. The wedding will take place in November

Ruth N. Maddox Is Engaged to Lieut. Peyton

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Morgan Maddox of Anchorage, Ky., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Newman Maddox, to Lieut. Tom Peyton, jr., USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Peyton of Bethesda, Md.

The bride-elect attended Miami University at Oxford, O and was graduated from Norton School of Nursing Louisville, Ky. Lieutenant Peyton is a graduate of Virginia Military Institute. He is now stationed at Fort Belvoir, Va.

The wedding will take place August 22 in St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Anchorage.

Mrs. Lillian M. Judd Heads Auxiliary Delegates

Mrs. Lillian M. Judd, District of Columbia National Executive Committeewoman-elect, American Legion Auxiliary, is chairman of the District's delegation to the national convention at the Commodore Hotel, New York City, August 28 to 31.

Many of the delegates are planning to leave Washington on August 26 in order to attend preconvention committee meetings. They include: Mrs. Pearl M. Heagerty, the present national executive committeewoman; Mrs. May Hilleary, department president; Mrs. Margaret E. Carroll, Mrs. J. Florence Dietsche, Miss Mabel F. Staub, Mrs. Katie Gross, Mrs. Georgiana Dudley and Mrs. Fairfax Lomack. Alternates—Mrs. Catherine Crompton, Mrs. Bertha Fitchthorn, Mrs. Ethel Wilt, Mrs. Laura Lipscomb, Miss Allie Belle Wright, Mrs. Ina Ruth Baldwin, Mrs. Edna Wright and Mrs. Fannie Linder.

Candidacy of Mrs. Lee William Hutton of Excelsior, Minn., for national president of the American Legion Auxiliary has been announced by the auxiliary's Minnesota department. No other candidate for the leadership of the auxiliary's 915,000 women has been named.

Mrs. Hutton is known to many members of the District Department of the auxiliary through her years of leadership of national activities, according to Mrs. May Hilleary, department president. At present she is chairman of the National Rehabilitation Committee in charge of the auxiliary's vast program for the benefit of disabled veterans.

A former national vice president and former president of the Minnesota Department, Mrs. Hutton has devoted 25 years to auxiliary work. She served as chairman of the National Finance Committee and for three years as chairman of the National Child Welfare Committee. Her husband, who served in the Army Air Corps in World War I, is active in the work of the American Legion.

Mrs. Heagerty Indorsed for Post

Mrs. Pearl Heagerty, District National Executive Committeewoman of the auxiliary, has been indorsed as a candidate for the office of national Eastern vice president, at the District convention this year. Life With 'Oklahoma!'

Its Sunny Spirit Infects Its Cast

By Richard L. Coe

THAT SUNNY SPIRIT of the Rodgers-Hammerstein musical also seems sprinkled over the cast offstage. We've been spending quite a spell of time with the girls and boys during our unoccupied moments (too few). Could be they're putting on an act for our benefit, but there seems to be less vitriol and temperament in this show than in others we've known. So it's our hunch that the bright, happy musical has something to do with it. Utopians would like the way principals and youngsters pal together.

SEPTEMBER 1 sees the departure of several principals and for some time the youngsters have been moving up into understudy posts to take over. Too, the Guild has a policy of shifting folks around in each of the triplicate companies—the National's, New York and London, which means new faces—and rehearsals—are continuously cropping up. And some folks simply decide to quit, just as the rest of us get a yen to shift jobs.

F'RINSTANCE, Orville Sherman, now playing Will Parker, the chap who's been to Kansas City on a Friday, is being tapped to take over the part in London. He's reluctant to leave his fiancee, Marcella Dodge, who plays Armina, but late September will see him on the Drury Lane stage for a six-month stay—the limit on both sides of the Atlantic for actors to avoid paying double taxes. Orville's a native Oklahoman, with more straight experience than musical. His first dancing teacher will be along in the National's next—Charles Collins, dancing with his wife, Dorothy Stone, in "The Red Mill."

ALSO LEAVING, but for other ventures, are James Alexander, "Curly" and Patricia Shay, "Ado Annie." Jim will be off for Hollywood, where he's played in horse operas after real life on a ranch. He's got a healthy Indiana appetite, but he'll be doing less eating after the cameras heave in sight. Pat is another legit actress who was having her first fling in a musical last summer, "The Best of Friends," when Theresa Helburn saw her and asked if she'd like to play "Ado Annie." "What's that?" asked Pat. She was the only actress in New York who'd never seen "Oklahoma!" Terry Helburn was so shaken she hired her on the spot.

STAYING ON is Peggy Engel, "Laurey," which pleases the kids, for Peggy's well liked, takes her demanding role seriously and sleeps a lot for those tough matinee days. Edith Gresham, "Aunt Eller," is remembered by a lot of Washingtonians as "second woman" of the National Players, that summer stock season Steve Cochran managed back in the early '30s. She's the granddaughter of John T. Ford, who owned the famed Ford theaters here and in Baltimore. The kids think she's the best Aunt Eller of the assorted companies.

HARDEST WORKERS are the dancing kids (ballet is too arty). They've been keeping in trim studying mornings with Marion Venable up at her N st. studio. They go in for this extra-curricular limbering every town they hit. They swim, walk and eat a lot and are wary of the bottle. Toughest dancing role is handled by George Lawrence, the "dancing Curly." Sooner or later every lad who does this part seems to wind up with a sprained or broken back. His trickiest moment comes in the dream sequence when Jud throws him up in the air. If he doesn't land on his feet, he falls on his spine. Which is not good for spines. George went right from the Army to the show and finally graduated into the spot.

BEST-LOOKING couple must be Betty Philipp, one of Jud's postcards, and Lawrence. Both are tall, blond and photogenic. In her little off-stage set, Betty is "Mother," named for Ma Kettle of "The Egg and I." Lawrence is "Bunny," because of his pointed ears, and Dancer Nancy Hachenberg is "Bear" because in rehearsal tights she looks like a teddy bear and prefers to sleep, not in a bed, but on the floor. The other day a storekeeper asked Lawrence and Betty if they were twins. "No," said Lawrence, "she's my mother," and the storekeeper is still wondering.

CUTE, HUH? This artificial sunbather is Penny Edwards, who'll be coming along in "Two Guys From Texas."

Spread of Food Dollar Shown

John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Out of every dollar spent for food at the corner grocery, 56 cents goes to the farmer producing it, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics says in its first report on price spreads since September 1945.

The portion of the consumer's dollar that the farmer gets, however, varies widely between different products.

For instance, out of every dollar spent for meat, the farmer gets 73 cents. The report breaks this down to show the farmer's share of the beef dollar is 75 cents, pork 74 cents and lamb 65 cents.

Conpetition and efficient processing, the bureau indicates, is responsible for the short spread between meat on the hoof and meat on the butcher's counter.

In a recent livestock market report, the BAE said a composite of retail meat prices in New York City for two weeks ending July 12 showed consumers paying 66.17 cents a pound for beef. That compared with 51.43 a year ago.

Figuring the cost of 100 pounds of beef, or any other meat, is a complicated process.

On its face, it looks like the packer is losing money. For instance, in the week ending July 12, BAE shows the packer paid an average of $27.73 for 100 pounds of live animals. Yet the same table shows he sold the carcass meat from those animals for $25.84.

When it comes to other farm products the farmer gets a far smaller part of the consumer's dollar than is the case with meats.

The report shows that in dairy products the farmer gets 60 cents out of each retail dollar. This is divided as: milk, 68 cents; butter, 75; cheese, 58, and evaporated milk, 50.

For poultry and eggs he gets 67 cents out of each dollar, or 60 cents for chicken and 74 cents for eggs.

For bakery and cereal products he gets only 36 cents out of each consumer dollar, due to processing and labor costs. This is broken down as follows: bakery products, 29 cents; bread, 25; whole wheat bread, 19; soda crackers, 20, and other cereals, 48.

The farmer gets about 56 cents out of every dollar spent for flour for household use. He gets 41 cents for each dollar for corn meal, 25 cents for macaroni, 19 cents for cornflakes, 38 cents for oatmeal, 28 cents out of each dollar spent for wheat cereals, and 47 cents out of each dollar spent for rice.

Out of each dollar spent for fruits and vegetables, the grower's "take" is only 50 cents. For fresh fruits and vegetables it is 58 cents spread as follows: Apples, 52; grapefruit, 30; oranges, 41.

For fresh vegetables he averages 62 cents out of each consumer dollar. Broken down this is: Beets, 23 cents; beans, 64 cents; cabbage, 22 cents; carrots, 34 cents; lettuce, 36 cents; onions, 42 cents; potatoes, 55 cents; spinach, 50 cents; sweet potatoes, 54 cents.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Hannegan Will Resign Both Posts November 1

By Drew Pearson

Postmaster General Bob Hannegan, who had more to do with putting Harry Truman in the White House than any other one man, has now decided to yield to his doctors—and to Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder. He will resign effective November 1.

Hannegan

Replacing him as chairman of the Democratic National Committee will be Clinton Anderson, now Secretary of Agriculture. There has been no decision as to who will become Postmaster General, but former Senator James M. Mead of New York, former chairman of the Postoffice Committee, is under consideration.

With Hannegan will also step out Democratic Executive Director Gael Sullivan, who though stepping on some Democratic toes, has done more to pep up the Democratic National Committee than anyone since 1944.

Hannegan has made repeated efforts to improve his health, and last winter underwent an operation for high blood pressure at the Leahy Clinic in Boston. The operation was made more difficult by a gall bladder complication and was not entirely successful.

Meanwhile, and though absent most of the time, Hannegan has been the last remaining vigorous pro-Roosevelt man in the Cabinet. He has consistently fought for Roosevelt's New Deal policies, has argued that if the Democratic party swung to the right it would only become an echo of Republicanism. In this, he has been vigorously opposed inside the Cabinet by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, representative of the conservative right. The two have been bitter opponents, with their enmity not confined to politics.

Of late, thanks to Hannegan's absence, it is reported that Snyder has the inside track, and that needling from some of the anti-Hannegan clique around the White House is partly responsible for his proposed exit November 1.

Economy Backfires

One Congressman who voted for Government economy is W. Kingsland Macy of New York. But he didn't know it was going to cut close to home.

Macy, long famous as the Republican leader of Long Island, and as former chairman of the Republican State Committee, was elected to Congress last year.

He had served as president of the Union Pacific Tea Co., as a partner in the stock-brokerage firm of Abbott, Hoppin and Co., and in almost every phase of New York politics. In his new role of Congressman he voted consistently to prune Mr. Truman's budget.

Result: Mr. Truman, faced with reduced appropriations, fired Congressman Macy's brother, T. Ridgeway Macy, out of the State Department.

Whereupon, Congressman Macy hurriedly instructed House Clerk John Andrews to find his brother a new job—on a different Government payroll. Economy had cut too close to home.

New War Secretary

It is probably unique in American history that a man should be picked as Secretary of War partly because of his defense of Nazi saboteurs who landed off Long Island by submarine. However, if it had not been for his brilliant, though unsuccessful defense of the Nazi saboteurs, Kenneth Royall today would not be Secretary of War.

What happened was that Henry L. Stimson, then Secretary of War, felt that the United States should lean over backward to give the Nazis the benefit of a fair trial. He wanted to show Europe and the world that a democracy was the exact opposite of Hitler, that every man, no matter what the crime, had the benefit of a trial. So at the recommendation of Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, Royall was made chief defense counsel.

No civilian lawyer wanted to defend the Nazis, but Royall, then a colonel, had to obey orders. His brilliant argument attracted widespread attention. The Nazi saboteurs got the death sentence, but few criminals have been more ably defended, and the man who defended them was marked for advancement to bigger things inside the War Department.

Though Royall is a product of the Harvard Law School, where he graduated at the top of his class and became a protege of Felix Frankfurter, it was in North Carolina that he really learned his courtroom technique. In Goldsboro, N. C., they tell how, returning to the drugstore after arguing a case, Royall was complimented on his speech.

"I didn't see you in court," replied the future Secretary of War.

"No," replied the friend. "I was here in the drugstore but I heard you."

Moslem States And Pakistan Still Apart

New Delhi, Aug. 10 (AP).—While the bulk of India's princely states have agreed to surrender certain of their sovereign powers to the Indian union, negotiations between Pakistan and the Moslem states are still in progress, and no cession of powers to Pakistan has been made final, a high spokesman said today.

This surrender of princely powers represents the fruits of Viceroy Louis Mountbatten's salesmanship. He warned the nearly 600 rulers that most of them were in danger of falling into a void where the world would forget their inconspicuous lands unless they tied up with one dominion or the other.

The Indian Constituent Assembly announced tonight that the rich princely state of Kolhapur had decided to come into the Indian union. It is a noted center of education, culture and manufacturing.

The most notable holdouts are Hyderabad, which maintains its own army; Kashmir, whose government a little more than a year ago barred Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, interim government vice president from its soil; Indore and Bhopal, all so well known their rulers fear no void, although India and Pakistan still expect accessions of at least some of them.

The spokesman said a mapmaker could well sketch those holdouts doubtful, and block in the rest of the states as having acceded or being about to acede.

Although no state is yet officially linked with Pakistan, the spokesman said Bahawalpur, whicr is just northeast of Sind, no doubt would join the Pakistan union.

Moslem Rule Drafted

Karachi, India, Aug. 10 (AP).—The Pakistan constituent assembly began its work today on drafting a constitution for the Moslem state which will take its place as a new dominion of the British Empire.

In its initial session in the new Moslem capital the assembly elected as chairman Jogendranath Mandal, a leader of the scheduled castes (untouchables) and a former law member in the India interim government who praised Mahomed Ali Jinnah, Moslem League leader and governor general-designate for Pakistan, as "one of the world's greatest statesmen."

700 Killed in Rioting

Lahore, India, Aug. 10 (AP).—A correspondent for the Hindustan Times said tonight after a tour of the Amritsar district that 700 Hindu, Sikh and Moslem adults and children had been killed during the eight days of communal riotings there.

Demonstrate Against French

Pondicherry, India, Aug. 10 (INS). Thousands of Indians defied a French order today and took part in new demonstrations demanding that the French withdraw from their colony on southeast India before August 15, when British India will become two dominions. More than 200 were arrested yesterday during a parade.

400 Attend Field Mass at Institute

Leonardtown, Md., Aug. 10—More than 400 persons attended a field mass of the Cardinal Gibbons Institute at Ridge, Md., near here, the first outdoor meeting since 1933.

Included in the audience were 100 members of the Knights of St. John of Washington and the Auxiliary and 100 persons from the Martin de Porres League. Father Horace McKenna conducted the mass on the portico of the institute.

The school, founded in 1924, is for the training of Negro children and includes a community center.

Fund Drive Opens

The Fairfax County Committee of the Animal Welfare League of Arlington has announced a drive for funds for the care of lost, homeless and injured animals. Membership dues are $50 for life, $5 annual supporting, $1 annual active, and 25 cents for annual junior memberships. They should be mailed to Mrs. Henry Ludwig, treasurer, Fairfax, Va.

The Fairfax committee is seeking sufficient funds to enable it to participate with similar leagues in Alexandria and Arlington in the operation of a joint animal shelter.

Hospital Meeting Set

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 10 (AP).—The Virginia Hospital Association will meet in Roanoke at Hotel Roanoke on August 29, W. P. Earngey, jr., superintendent of Norfolk General Hospital, announced today.

A. G. Howell, president of the association and director of the State hospital survey, will discuss the hospital planning survey now being made under his direction.

A panel discussion on current hospital problems, with audience participation, will be held. Karl York, administrator of the Arlington Hospital, is chairman of the panel discussion.

Mill Exhibit Planned

Waterford, Va., Aug. 10.—The Waterford Foundation today announced plans for the annual exhibit to be held in the Old Mill September 4-7. Featured, in addition to the usual tours of houses and exhibits in the Mill, will be a program presented on Saturday and Sunday by the Waterford A Capella Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Thomas M. Cooley, 2d.

Educators to Meet

Richmond, Va., Aug. 10 (AP).—The Virginia Education Association planning conference for improvement of teaching will be held at Farmville State Teachers College Friday and Saturday, Robert F. Williams, executive secretary of the VEA, announced today.

Attending the conference, Williams said, will be representatives from Virginia colleges, school superintendents, principals, teachers and members of the State Department of Education and the VEA.

Laundry Users Bamboozled By Radio Moscow 'Hucksters'

Moscow, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—The local laundry trust, according to its advertisements on Radio Moscow, specializes in courteous service, washes clothes clean and returns them in a hurry.

The customers, according to a batch of complaints printed today by Vechernaya Moskva, the newspaper of the Moscow Soviet, don't agree. The complaints charged that the laundries workers were not courteous, they did not get clothes clean and laundry promised in five days "comes back in a month."

The laundry trust was one of the first businesses to buy time when Radio Moscow started accepting advertising. It even put up placards in buses and streetcars.

The paper reported that customers' disllusionment came about in two ways. Under the first system, customers are politely received, their laundry taken and an exact date given for its return.

They return on the assigned day. No laundry. After several more visits and personal calls on the men running the laundries they get their clothes back.

"The second method is opposed to the first and consists of refusing to accept laundry under various pretexts," the newspaper said. "The commonest excuse is the absence of marking tape. Sometimes there is no marking ink for identifying laundry.

"The client vainly refers to the broadcast advertisement . . ."

Vechernaya Moskva said it couldn't very well accept the explanation of Comrade Volkhov, head of the laundry trust, that laundries did a bad job because of their poor materials. It said Comrade Volkhov was in charge of manufacturing and supplying cleaning materials to laundries.

Man Cashes Check After 2-Year Fight

By the United Press

E. R. Landsborough, an honest and persistent Park River, N. Dak., general store and bowling alley proprietor, finally has cashed a $37 check after a two-year battle with Government red-tape.

He had to appeal to Comptroller General Lindsay Warren, the War Department, his Senator and the press and then wait around for an act of Congress—before he won out.

It all started back on October 13, 1946, when Mrs. Eva Johnson, whose son was overseas, gave Landsborough a Government family allowance check for $37 to pay her grocery bill. She forgot to indorse it.

When Landsborough got around to taking the check to be cashed, Mrs. Johnson had left town. He couldn't trace her.

Appeal to Senator

Although some persons would have forged Mrs. Johnson's signature in such a predicament, Johnson sent the check to Warren with a request for payment.

Nothing doing, said Warren, it hasn't been indorsed. To make matters worse, Warren wouldn't send the check back.

Landsborough tried the War Department. Still no help.

Then he wrote to Senator Milton R. Young (R., N. Dak.), detailing all his troubles.

Young gave the story to the newspapers, hoping that Mrs. Johnson might hear about it and get things straightened out.

Finds Mrs. Johnson

In May, a friend of Mrs. Johnson's wrote Landsborough that he thought she might be living at Dun Seat, N. Dak. She was.

Landsborough then sent another letter to Warren, who replied that an affidavit from Mrs. Johnson would be necessary and that it was up to Landsborough to get it.

The grocer got it and sent it to Washington. Then he received a letter from Warren advising that the check was dead unless Congress passed a bill extending the life of all Government checks for 10 years.

The bill was finally approved and signed by President Truman. Landsborough then got the check back with permission to cash it. He wasted no time.

'Flying Disc' Blast Solved In New Orleans

New Orleans, Aug. 10 (AP).—Police officers and FBI agents have solved a "flying disc" mystery which arose late last night.

Two patrolmen told of seeing an object flying through the air. As they approached it, they said, there were two explosions similar to pistol shots. The flying object burst into flames eight to ten feet high.

A small metal disc, about an inch in diameter, was found on the ground.

An intensive investigation by police officers and the FBI, called in to help, disclosed that youngsters had filled a box with firecrackers, attached a crude parachute to it and dropped it from atop a building.

Trucker Faces 2 Death Charges

Woodstock, Va., Aug. 10.—John LeRoy Brown, 34, of Roanoke, driver of the trailer-truck which figured in the deaths of two persons Tuesday night, has been charged with two counts of manslaughter by State Trooper B. E. Williams of Woodstock. Brown was released on $2500 bond pending a hearing.

Miss Madeline Seward, 44, and John Raymond Young, 39, both of Brooklyn, N. Y., occupants of a car which collided with the truck, were killed instantly.

Vatican to Coordinate All Catholic Relief

Vatican City, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—The Vatican News Agency reported today that Vatican authorities were planning to organize an international institute for charity to coordinate Catholic relief work in all countries.

All Catholic bishops have already been consulted and delegates from 28 nations approved the plan at a meeting in Paris, the agency said. The agency pointed out that relief work within countries would not be affected. The new body will represent Catholic charities on the international level.

Atom Experts Exclude Russia From Parley

Copenhagen, Denmark, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Russia was not invited to the first international meeting of atomic scientists to be held here in September because the conference will be limited to those who worked on research leading to invention of the bomb, a spokesman for the Prof. Niels Bohrs Institute, which called the congress, said today.

The United States will be represented by Prof. Charles Wehler. Other scientists will include Nobel prize winners Paolo Rossi of Italy and Wolfgang Pauli of Switzerland, Prof. R. Kramers of Holland and Leon Rosenfeldt of Belgium.

Deputy Reappointed

Winchester, Va., Aug. 10.—Sheriff Robert DeHaven of Frederick County, recently named to complete the term of the late John B. Bywaters, has reappointed J. Henry Renner of Kernstown, deputy sheriff and jailer. Renner, a World War II veteran, has been a deputy since March, 1945.

Ram Sale Wednesday

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 10 (AP).—Selected animals from seven counties will be offered at a purebred ram sale to be held near Staunton Wednesday under auspices of the Virginia Purebred Sheep Breeders Association.

Secretary George W. Litton announced here that 32 Hampshires, 16 Shropshires, two Corriedales, and two Dorsets would be offered for sale by breeders from Augusta, Highland, Clarke, Loudoun, Albemarle, Amherst and Rockingham Counties. The morning show and afternoon sale will be held at Verona pavilion, 4 miles from Staunton.

Camp Meeting Listed

Catonsville, Md., Aug. 10 (AP).—The Chesapeake Conference of the Seventh Day Adventist Church will hold a 10-day annual camp meeting here beginning the evening of August 14.

Approximately 2500 members of 31 different churches are expected to attend.

Fossils Found in Southwest May Be of Man's Ancestor

New York, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—An expedition in New Mexico has discovered more than 40 kinds of prehistoric animal fossils, including the remains of one creature that may have been a forerunner of man, it was announced tonight.

Some week ago, the expedition, sponsored by the American Museum of Natural History, turned up he fossils of the first dinosaurs believed to have roamed the country 50 million years ago.

Tonight's announcement, made by Wayne M. Faunce, vice director of the museum, was even "bigger news" for paleontologists.

"These new discoveries in New Mexico," Faunce said, "may throw new light on the beginning of animal life as we know it today and will provide invaluable data on what may prove to be man's earliest remote ancestors, tiny monkey-like lemurs."

The lemur resembles the monkey, but nearly all have a sharp,fox-like muzzle. Some species are alive today.

The new finds were made near Lindrith, N. Mex., Faunce said, in the same vicinity where the complete skeletons of the earliest dinosaurs were dug up. He said the new discoveries include fossils of extinct species of snails, fishes, lizards, snakes, turtles, alligators and a great array of the earliest mammals. These mammals include squirrel-like rodents, the ancients flesh-eating creodents, and thefour-toed horse, called eohippus.

Dr. George Simpson, head of the expedition, reported from the field that the small lemurs uncovered were "relatives and forerunners of monkeys and perhaps of man himself."

Another important discovery was the unearthing of the first complete skeleton of the meniscotherium, often described as a "mysterious animal" by paleontologists.

The meniscotherium, previously known only through small bone fragments, can now be definitely identified as a small mammal, the expedition reported to the museum. The creature had a head of only four or five inches long. It stood about a foot high. It was hoofed, but had five toes on each foot, each with a separate hoof. It was a vegetarian. This animal, the scientists said, didn't last long. It soon became extinct, and is believed not to have any descendants or near relatives living today.

Dr. Smpson said that subsequent investigations will remove the meniscotherium from the "mystery" category. He reported that the new deposit of fossils unearthed "proved to be the richest single deposit of early mammal bones ever found in the Southwest and perhaps the richest of this age in the world."

Paleontologists are deeply interested in the age of the mammals. Man belongs to that age.

Gen. Halder Calls Hitler's Orders Stupid

Nuernberg, Germany, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Col. Gen. Franz Halder, the staff chief who planned all the Nazi armies' major victories, wrote in his shorthand diary that the "amateurish stupid" orders of Strategist Adolf Hitler ruptured the general staff and spoiled its campaigns.

The diary was brought to light today by Brig. Gen. Telford Taylor, chief United States war crimes prosecutor, who might use it in future hearings. Halder was chief of staff from 1938 to 1942, during the flush of German triumphs.

Hitler Refused Risks

On May 17, 1940, when the invasion of the Lowlands and France was in full swing, Halder wrote:

"It has been a very disagreeable day. The Fuehrer is terribly nervous. He is afraid of his own success, does not want to risk anything and therefore is likely to stop where he is."

The next day, Halder noted: "The Fuehrer is raving and bellowing. According to him, we are on the way to spoiling the whole campaign and to exposing ourselves to the danger of defeat."

After a tense argument between Halder and Hitler—which Halder won—the staff chief commented: "The right thing is finally done, but under the stamp of bitterness and in a form which is supposed to make it look like the measure was originated by the armed forces high command."

Just as Paris was falling, Hitler and Halder tangled again. Halder once again won but he wrote: "If it weren't too regrettable that we are hindered in our work, one might laugh."

Unpleasant Day

On May 25, he stated: "The day starts with an unpleasant argument between Field Marshal Walther Von Brauchitsch and the Fuehrer about the conduct of encirclements in battle. This tug of war is weakening our nerves more than our whole task of leadership. We will win in spite of it."

During the early crisis in the Russian campaign, Halder said that "the usual loud noises were coming once more from the Fuehrer's headquarters . . . Faith in the men in charge of operations, one of the strongest assets of our system of leadership, is unknown in the highest quarters."

Finally, on September 24, 1942, his "nerves used up," Halder departed from the general staff. This was his final entry:

"The Fuehrer bids me farewell. My nerves are used up and his nerves are not too strong any more, either. We have to separate. It is necessary to educate the general staff to fanatic faith in the idea. He is determined to enforce his will in the army as elsewhere."

Jews to Hold Constitution Hall Services

High Holy Day services of the Washington Hebrew Congregation will be held this year in Constitution Hall, 18th and D nw., Dr. Bernard A. Baer, acting president of the congregation, announced yesterday.

The holidays begin with Rosh Hashonoh, the Jewish New Year of 5708. Services will take place at 8 p. m., September 14 and at 10:30 a. m. September 15. Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, which is observed as a fast day, begins with the Kol Nidre services at 8 p. m. September 23.

This is the first time Jewish religious services will take place in Constitution Hall. An Ark, especially constructed for the occasion, will contain Scrolls of the Temple, and give religious sanction to the hall as a place of worship.

In the last few years, members of the Washington Hebrew Congregation have had to attend "overflow" services elsewhere because of the large membership of the Temple. Those desiring seats for the services may obtain them at the Washington Hebrew Congregation, 822 8th st. nw., Monday through Friday, from 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Church Delegates To Study Change In Faith Avowal

Boston, Aug. 10 (AP).—A controversial proposal to eliminate certain words in the "avowal of faith" of the Universalist Church of America will be considered at the denomination's general assembly at St. Lawrence University September 9-14, church headquarters in Boston reported today.

Ohio Universalist churches have protested that the church's liberty clause stating "neither this nor any other statement shall be imposed as a creedal test" was violated by other words following the "avowal of faith." These words are "provided that the faith thus indicated be professed."

In a proposal described in the headquarters announcement as "of controversial nature," the Ohio churches are calling for deletion of the second clause.

Glenn Martin Co. Scored by UAW

Baltimore, Aug. 10 (AP).—The United Auto Workers (CIO) charged today in a prepared statement that cancellation of its contract by the Glenn L. Martin Co. was an attempt to influence a collective bargaining election August 21.

The company on Friday gave the union a 10-day notice of contract termination. The contract, which expired March 11, had been extended by mutual agreement.

The bargaining election at the airplane manufacturing plant will give approximately 10,000 employes a choice of the UAW, the International Association of Machinists or no union. The machinists petitioned for the election.

League Scores Clean Sweep At Rehoboth

Rehoboth Beach, Del., Aug. 10 (Spl.).—The Rehoboth Taxpayers League scored a 100 per cent victory yesterday in this resort's municipal election, its first leg in a race for many government reforms proposed in the past year.

All the league-sponsored candidates, a mayor and three commissioners, were swept into office at the largest voting turnout in Rehoboth's history.

Col. Carlton Shaffer won the mayoralty contest by defeating Col. Edgar S. Stayer, incumbent, by a 58-vote majority. Shaffer polled 462 votes to Stayer's 404. The greatest number of ballots was cast for Howard P. Sullivan for resident commissioner, who got 640.

The other two commissioner victors were William H. Rice, 505, and Frank D. Wright, 383. They go in as nonresident commissioners, as required by a recent charter amendment, which calls for three board members from out-of-town. The third nonresident member is the holdover woman commissioner, Mrs. W. Wallace Chiswell of Washington.

Dr. Carl Henning of Washington, candidate for nonresident commissioner, lost by a scant 10 votes under Wright, polling 373. Turned down for re-election after many years on the board was David C. Aspril of Wilmington, while Col. E. Granville Minson of Washington trailed the ballot with only 63 votes. Lieut. Comdr. James M. Pierce of the Navy, lost with 204.

The Rehoboth Taxpayers League was organized last year with many anti-administration objectives, and even the three holdover commissioners, Mrs. Chiswell, W. L. Rickards and James Travis, were league members when they ran for office last summer.

Total Vetoes For Truman Stand at 92

By the United Press

President Truman is rapidly moving into the front ranks of Presidential "vetoers." But he still has a long way to go before he can even approach the records of two other Democrats—Franklin D. Roosevelt and Grover Cleveland.

By "killing" 19 bills since Congress adjourned, Mr. Truman brought to 92 his total number of vetoes since becoming President—more than double the total from President Washington to President Lincoln.

Oddly enough, the President turned thumbs down on more bills in 1945 and 1946—when the Democrats controlled Congress—than he did in the last seven months. In 1945 and 1946, he said "no" 60 times; in 1947 only 32 times.

Major Veto Overridden

The Constitution specifically gives the President the power to prevent a congressional measure from becoming law merely by officially registering his disapproval. It provides that no bill shall become law without his signature—unless two-thirds of both the House and Senate vote it into law over his objections.

In the 171 years since the Declaration of Independence, Presidents have voted 2115 bills. Congress has overridden only 60 times.

The late President Roosevelt holds the No. 1 spot on the list of presidential vetoers. In his 12 years in office, he sent back 631 bills and was overridden nine times.

Cleveland Vetoed 475 Bills

Runner up is President Cleveland. He vetoed 475 bills and was overridden seven times. Other prolific vetoers were President Grant, 92; Theodore Roosevelt, 82; Coolidge 49; Wilson, 44; McKinley, 42, and Benjamin Harrison, 41.

Eight Chief Executives never vetoed a bill. They were Presidents John Adams, Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, Van Buren, William Harrison, Taylor, Fillmore and Garfield.

President Monroe officially disapproved of only one bill in his eight years in office. President Washington vetoed only two. There is some controversy about President Lincoln. Some old records say he vetoed six bills, while others claim he turned down only one.

New Soviet Film To Take Crack At Turk Premier

Moscow, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—A new Russian historical motion picture on the Crimean campaign in the last war will have Sukru Saracoglu, then Turkey's premier, telling the Germans that "every Turk passionately desires the destruction of Russia," the Soviet army newspaper Red Star disclosed today.

Red Star printed part of the dialogue from the scenario of the picture, "The Third Blow." The Russion film industry will start making the picture soon.

In one scene, two Turkish writers—Mustapha Gib Fagel and Edige Kemal—visit German General Enneke at Simferopol. Fagel tells Enneke: "We are neutral, of course, but we have a heart. As yet Turkey cannot fight but the heart of the Turks is with you."

Frederick County Needs 14 Teachers

Winchester, Va., Aug. 10 (AP).—Frederick County School Superintendent Leslie D. Kline said today 14 teaching vacancies exist in the school system and he has no prospects of filling them before school opens in September.

Kline listed four vacancies at Gore High School, two at Middletown High, four at Stephens City High, two at Stonewall High, one at Bryarly graded school and one at a suburban school near here.

Anti-Soviet Lend-Lease Call Predicted

By International News Service

Senator Capper (R., Kans.) predicted yesterday that western Europe, including Great Britain, would call on the United States for a postwar lend-lease program to stop Russia.

Capper, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and at 82 the dean of the upper chamber, said that the request might come as an answer to the Marshall Plan for European rehabilitation.

He said that he expected western Europe would argue that lend-lease worked so well against Germany that it should be used as the bases for a political-economic program against Russia.

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) said that if a lend-lease program were proposed to stabilize the economy of "this one world," he would approve it. However, he said he would not favor using American wealth as a weapon to divide the world.

First to Broach Idea

The prewar lend-lease proposal raised a storm on Congress. The bill was passed only after furious battles. Capper is the first to broach the idea of a possible postwar lend-lease.

The Kansan, in a radio transcription prepared for broadcast in his home State, declared also that he "distinctly regarded" a fall or early winter special session of Congress a possibility.

He argued that if the United States is to help Europe and is going to do so before midwinter, then a decision on the nature of the help should be made before winter begins.

He differed with the widely-expressed viewpoint that Foreign Relations committees could work out an aid program and have it ready for floor action at the scheduled return of Congress in January.

Doubts Willingness

Capper said he doubted that Congress would be willing to leave the issue to its committees "working with the State Department."

Of a postwar lend-lease program, the Senator said:

"Western European nations, including Britain, in my opinion would like to see the United States work out a postwar lend-lease program.

"I look for them to check it to us, perhaps in answer to the Marshall proposal, that lend-lease worked so well against Germany, that we ought to be willing to use it as the basis of a political-economic program against Russia—if we really mean to stop Russian advances across Europe."

Not Going Well, He Says

He said that the Marshall Plan "is not going to well" in Europe, and continued:

"Not that Europe doesn't want dollars. Europe does, and the more the better.

"But there are not many signs that Europe is in a position, or even is desirous, of getting down to work to become self-supporting. Perhaps it is unfair to say that Europe is not desirious of becoming self-supporting. Let's say that Europeans just do not see how they can become self-supporting."

He said that the Marshall Plan had Congress—"and for all I know the White House itself—about as much up in the air as it has the governments of Europe."

Boy, 9, Dives Into Channel And Drowns

A 9-year-old boy out for an afternoon of fun and fishing with his 13-year-old playmate drowned yesterday in the Georgetown Channel as the result of an adventurous whim.

Because he couldn't catch any fish, Paul Stanley Wilson of 1033 Cecil pl. nw. decided to have some fun djving off a pier opposite the Super Concrete Corp. yard at 31st st. below K st. nw.

His playmate, Lloyd Martin of the same address, said that he told Paul he didn't think it was such a good idea. But Paul dived anyway.

When he failed to come up, Lloyd ran for help. Carl Talley, 21, of 2007 L st. nw., who was near by, plunged into the channel but failed to locate the body. About an hour later it was recovered 10 feet from shore by Pvt. Leonard G. Porter of No. 1 Rescue Squad.

Paul, a student at Briggs-Montgomery School, was pronounced dead at Emergency Hospital at 6:20 p. m. by Dr. William Horn, staff physician.

Tomato Packers Expect Short Crop

Easton, Md., Aug. 10 (AP).—Declaring tomato blight to be "more serious" than official reports indicate, the Tri-State Packers Association, Inc., yesterday forecast a Maryland pack far short of earlier expectations.

"Official reports are based solely upon infestations which have been reported to authorities," a spokesman said. "Many farmers," he added, "do not bother to send samples of damaged tomatoes for confirmation of infestation."

The association said that this season's pack would be disappointing in spite of greater acreage and more abundant labor than were available in recent years.

Barrio to Leave Paris for Mexico

Paris, Aug. 10.—Martinez Barrio, president of the exiled Spanish republican government, will leave shortly for Mexico City to prepare for active collaboration with the Spanish monarchists, it was reliably reported tonight.

Exiled government circles said that Barrio's mission would be twofold: (1) To reduce the "unwieldy number" of government ministers and (2) to dissolve the Cortes, the Spanish republican parliament, as an opposition voice.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Golf Novice Invents New Way To Keep Score

Addison V. Brandon, of 1721 Que st. nw., says this may be another of those oldies, but a friend of his swears he witnessed the incident in person.

Like so many others on the course, the very attractive young lady at Rock Creek was just learning the game of golf.

Thirty feet at a crack, she whaled and belabored the ball toward her objective, the fourth green. After 16 mighty blows, the elevated green was immediately above her.

Our heroine wound up and conked the ball one more time, and it took off straight for the pin.

Scrambling up to the green, the young lady found her ball nestled in the cup. Flinging her arms over her head in triumph, she bellowed the news to her companions below:

"Eeeeyow! I made a hole in one!"

CALLING ALL CARS

Were you ever in a radio cab during a rainstorm? It sounds like the Chicago wheat pit during a bear raid. Everybody talks at once.

I asked my driver how come, and he replied: "When it rains, lots of people call cabs. When lots of people call cabs, the air is full of messages."

"But," I remonstrated, "what about all those different voices? There's even a woman's voice mixed up in there."

"Sure," explained the hacker, "everybody is on the same wavelength — Yellow, Combined, Veterans, and Arlington. And some nights I even get the Baltimore dispatcher."

"How do you manage to distinguish one from the other?" I asked incredulously.

"I don't," sighed the driver, switching off his receiver. "I just cruise the streets and ignore the radio until the rain lets up—and I'll continue until they give us separate wavelengths. After all, a man can stand just so much of this modern science without going nutty."

EXCUSE ME FOR LIVING DEPT.

Joe Livingston chides me for picking on the guy who said there isn't any housing shortage.

"Of course there's no housing shortage," says Joe. "There's just a surplus of population."

THANKS, J. L. M., BUT . . .

I marvel that a sap like me
Should send you so much poetry
When all the answer that I get Consists of "Thanks, but we regret . . ." J. L. M.

YOO HOO, SMITTY

If your name is Schmidt and you're a photographer, this is to inform you that you're being hunted by a District Liner from 'way over in Front Royal, Va. She's Mrs. J. T. Skyles, who lives at 540 E. Main st. in that city.

Here's the story: While Schmidt was stationed at Front Royal during the war, he offered to make some copies of a Skyles wedding picture.

But he was transferred to Washington before he could do the job — and apparently the original picture went with him.

So now Mrs. Skyles is searching for Photographer Schmidt, and for that precious wedding picture. If Smitty is a District Liner, too, this should be a short search.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

The funniest phone call we've gotten in several weeks came to the Sports Department yesterday. The caller asked:

"Can you tell me how many times Joe Louis has been defeated since he won the heavyweight championship?"

Progress Report on Runyon Fund

Hollywood.—Damon Runyon died half a year ago. Shortly after his death the Runyon Memorial Fund for Cancer Research was organized. Dan Parker was named president, Walter Winchell treasurer and I vice president. The other directors are Leo Lindy and Paul Small, who was at Runyon's bedside when he died. In six months the fund has raised one million dollars. We presented our first check, for $250,000, to the American Cancer Society. The second check, for $150,000, went to the University of Chicago. We've brought $250,000 more to California to distribute to universities and cancer research laboratories in this State. Next week we will give $100,000 to the American Cancer Society, earmarked for distribution to Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and Negro cancer research clinics.

The money has been contributed by people in all strata and from all over the world, from Cabinet members, an elderly statesman, a five-star general and even from the late Bugsy Siegel, who sent $8000 shortly before he was shot to death. A soldier stationed in Balboa wrote that he had waited a full year for his disability check for $1500. He sent us 10 money orders, each for $100, with a note expressing the hope that this might be of some help in finding a cure for the dread disease which took his wife from him. Another contribution is expected from a certain President.

There are 38 major race tracks in the country and more than half of them have designated Damon Runyon Memorial Fund races to be run annually, with the fund collecting the receipts. A race track is contributing $300,000. The Frank Sinatra-Dinah Shore recording of "Tea for Two" and "My Romance" already has sold more than half a million copies. The fund receives the gross receipts, without any deductions even for manufacturing costs. This will give us $250,000. The Motion Picture Charities just voted us a contribution of $25,000.

The slogan contest for the furnished Celotex House, together with a plot of ground, brought $238,000 to the fund.. Mrs. Randolph Kvetan of Mont Clare, Pa., who won the contest by submitting "Arrest Cancer. It's Wanted for Murder," is the wife of an Army veteran who works in the Valley Forge Hospital in Phoenixville. They live with their three children in a rented walk-up flat. Under the terms of the contest Mrs. Kvetan had the right to designate any place in America where she wanted the house placed. She selected a site near the Valley Forge Hospital so that her husband will be near his place of employment. They'll have a housewarming for two weeks and charge admission for the fund.

A group of Bronx children between the ages of 7 and 10 had a show in the cellar of a house and charged 2 cents admission. They announced that the proceeds would go to the Runyon Fund. The neighbors heard of this and contributed their pennies. The youngsters brought 9000 pennies to us. In Warrenton, Va., the children of the blue-blooded townsfolk decided to allow other children to ride their ponies. They charged 5 cents for each ride and sent us the proceeds. Major and minor league baseball games for the benefit of the fund will bring at least $75,000.

The mendicants at the Bowery Mission set one day aside for the Runyon Fund. They pooled the alms they had begged for and delivered the money to us in a canvas bag which bore the stamp "Federal Reserve Bank." Their representative was a Bowery Mission convert who once had been a member of the notorious Monk Eastman gang. On the same day came a contribution from an officer who probably is the most renowned soldier in the world. He asked that his contribution be kept anonymous and his note read: "Don't look at the amount, but it's the most I can afford on a humble soldier's pay."

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

WHICH WAY DID THE TRAITOR BOR GO? IN THIS CONFOUNDED DARKNESS WE'LL LOSE HIM YET.
HE'LL NOT ESCAPE! ORDER OUR PEOPLE TO DIVIDE INTO SMALL GROUPS. TELL THEM TO SEARCH EVERY BUSH AND EVERY ROCK.
BRR! LISTEN TO MY LATE LOYAL FOLLOWERS! THEY BAY LIKE HOUNDS ON THE SCENT. IT WAS CLEVER OF LEE TO PLAY UPON THEIR AVARICE AND TURN THEM AGAINST ME. I UNDERESTIMATED THAT YOUNG MAN, BADLY — BUT IF WE EVER MEET AGAIN, I'LL SETTLE OUR ACCOUNT. RIGHT NOW, THOUGH, BETTER CONCENTRATE ON PRESERVING MY OWN SKIN.
MEANWHILE, BACK AT THE OIL FIELD.
NOT A SOUND! MAYBE OUR IMAGINATIONS ARE PLAYING TRICKS, BUT I'D SWEAR WE HEARD SOME CLUMSY OAF TRIP OVER AN IRON PIPE SOMEWHERE AROUND HERE.
I THOUGHT ALL OF THE FAT BOY'S HILL BILLIES HAD CLEARED OUT, BUT I COULD BE WRONG. LET'S PROWL.

WAHOO AND STEVE ROPER

THERE THEY ARE, STEVE! --- WEDDING INVITATIONS ALL ADDRESSED! SONNY AND CUPCAKE HAD A LIST AS LONG AS RIP VAN WINKLE'S DREAM! --- SPORT WRITERS, MAYORS, COLUMNISTS, RADIO STARS, PROMOTERS, POLICE, WRESTLERS, COLLEGE PROFESSORS, FOOTBALL COACHES, BARBERS AND RELATIVES WITH NAMES THAT WOULD THROW A TRAIN-CALLER'S JAWS OUT OF JOINT!
8-11-47
YOU'RE A NICE LITTLE GIRL, KIT! IT TAKES A MIGHTY GOOD LOSER TO HELP CROWN THE WINNER!
WANT TO HEAR A CONFESSION? --- I COULD NEVER HAVE DONE IT WITHOUT MY NEW BALL-POINTED PEN!

DIXIE DUGAN

I'LL BET YOU'RE WONDERING WHY I'VE BEEN GOING OUT WITH KEN SO MUCH —
WELL — NOW THAT YOU MENTION IT — I SAW AN AWFUL LOT OF KEN UNTIL YOU CAME ALONG KNOWING HOW MUCH YOU CARE FOR KEN, I SHOULD'VE TOLD YOU SOONER — — I'M GOING TO BE MARRIED

DONALD DUCK

NOW Y' GOT T' BLOW OUT THE CANDLES, UNCA DONALD!

MARK TRAIL

I HAVE TO WIN THIS RIDE BEN, ..I HAVE TO..!
I GET THE IDEA, CHERRY
THAT HOSS AIN'T NAMED LEO FOR NOTHIN, MISS MALONE... YOU'LL WIN....
I HAVE TO WIN, DART!
AS TIME FOR THE CROSS COUNTRY APPROACHES, MERIDY AND CHERRY TRAIN FOR THE BACK-BREAKING RIDE.
NO, DOC... IT'S TOO LATE TO TELL MERIDY ABOUT DART... SHE CAN'T GET ANOTHER GUIDE NOW.
MAYBE YOU'RE RIGHT, MARK ...BUT I JUST DON'T TRUST THAT MAN!
ED DODD 8-11

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

ELUDING THE STRANGE OCCUPANTS OF THE MYSTERIOUS CHATEAU, FOOTLOOSE WATCHES THEM PREPARE TO MURDER KING.
GO AHEAD, IVAN... KILL HIM!
WE'LL FIND THE KID LATER!
I JUS' GOTTA STOP THET! BUT IFFEN I MISS, IT'LL BE CURTAINS FOR BOTH KING AN ME!
SHOOT HIM.... OH! TH' LIGHT!
SING

In All I Do

If ever I attain a goal . . .
To find a dream come true . . .
Or if I gather happiness . . .
It is because of you . . .
It is because in you I see . . .
My inspiration deep . . .
Throughout the hours of the day . . .
And when I go to sleep
Your loving smile imbues me with . . .
The urge to nobler deeds . . .
And helps my heart to understand . . .
My neighbor's daily needs . . .
Each word you whisper is a song . . .
That echoes in my soul . . .
And when I gaze into your eyes . . .
This life is sweet and whole . . .
Your gentleness is guiding me . . .
In everything I do . . .
And just for having faith in me . . .
I owe the world to you.

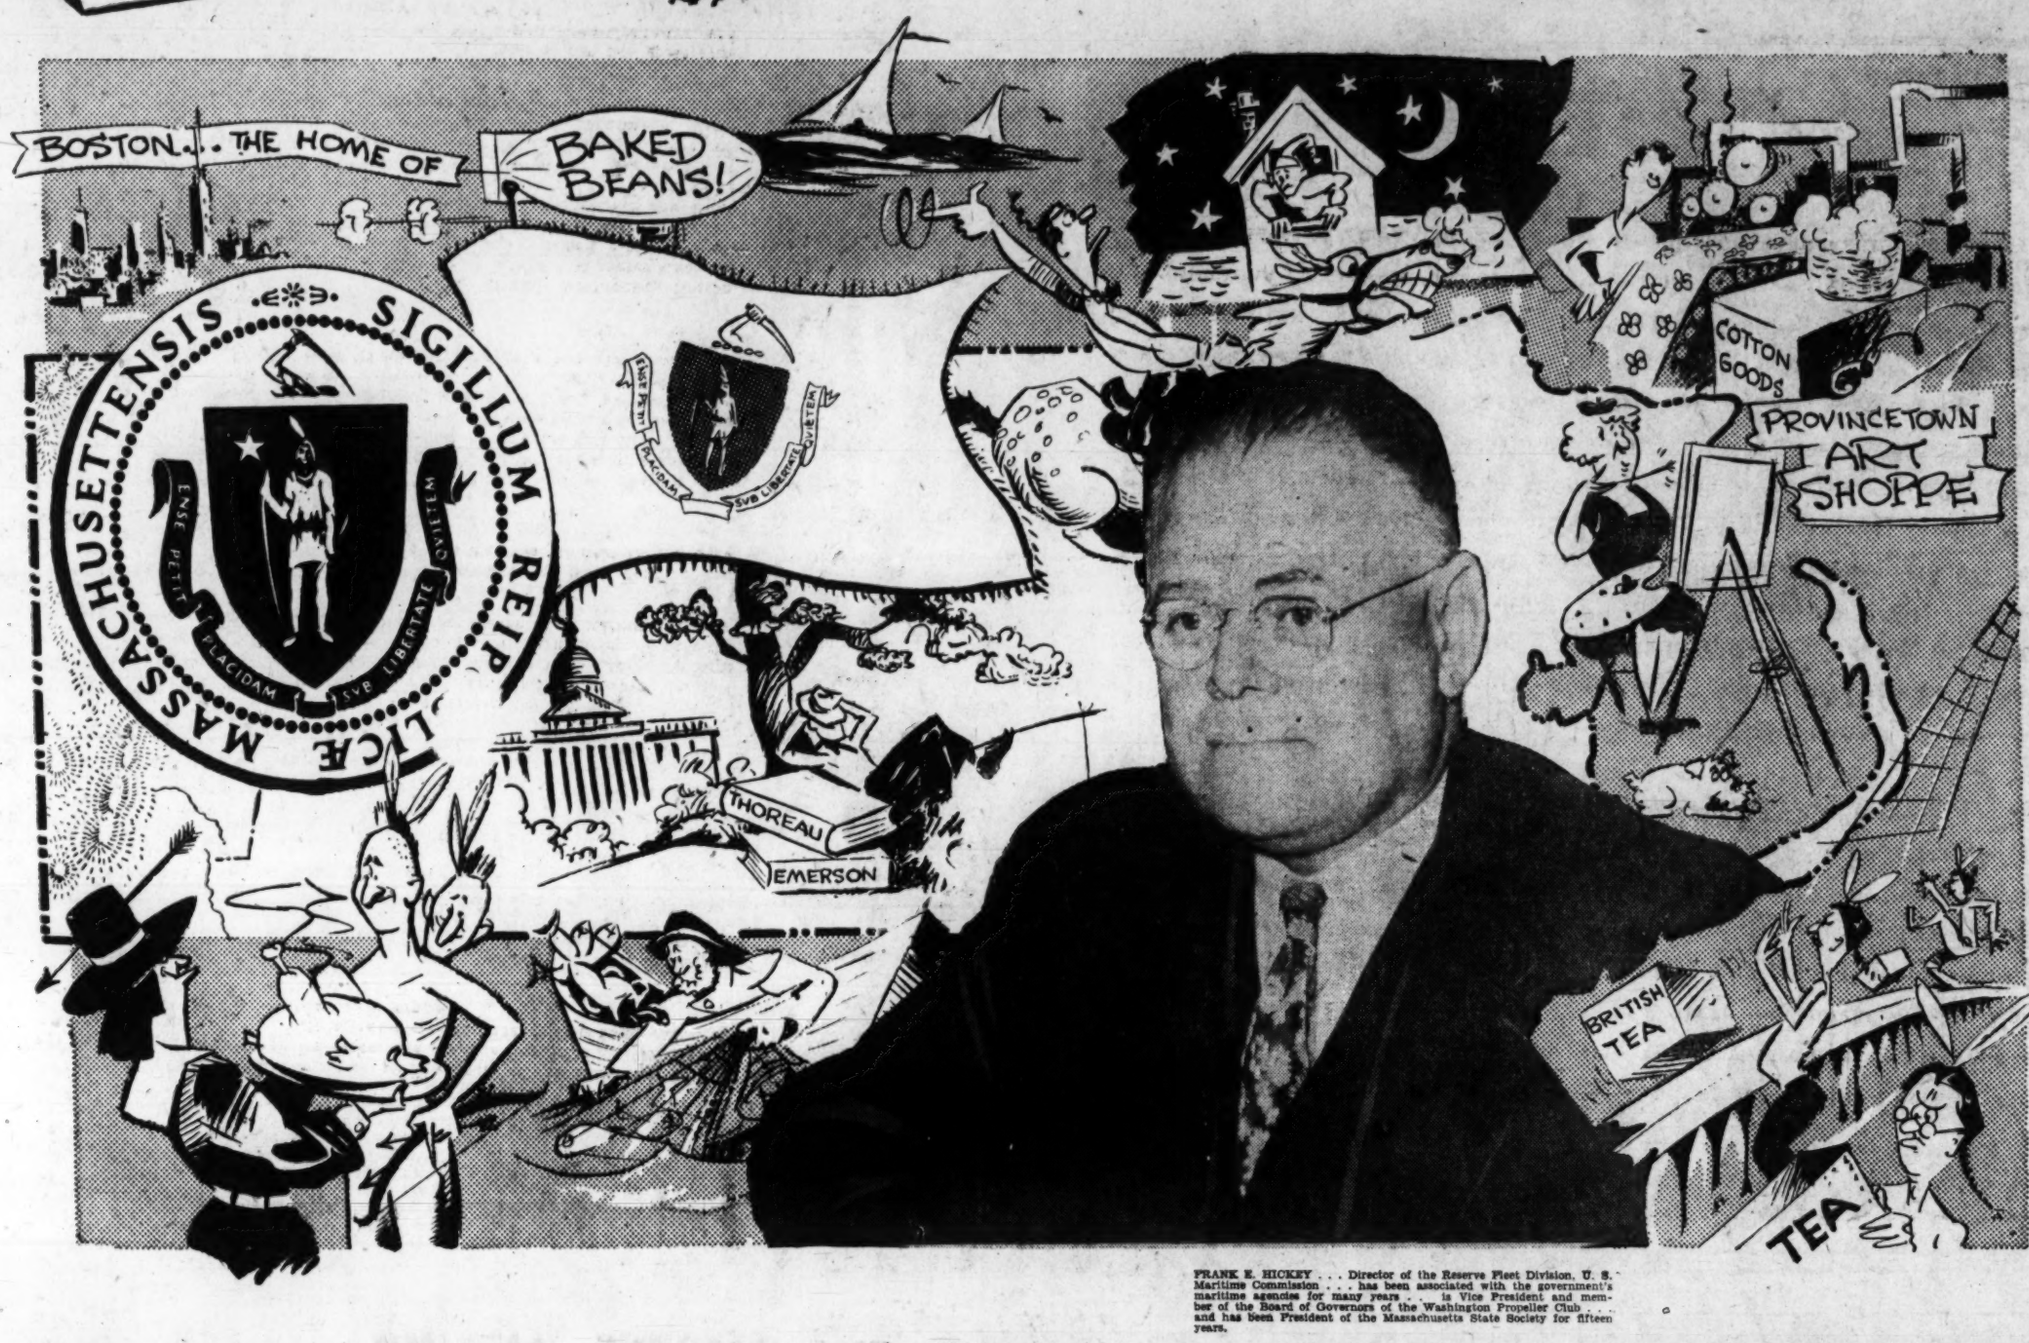
A GREAT STORE IN THE NATION'S CAPITAL



FRANK E. HICKEY . . . Director of the Reserve Fleet Division, U. S. Maritime Commission . . . has been associated with the government's maritime agencies for many years . . . is Vice President and member of the Board of Governors of the Washington Propeller Club . . . and has been President of the Massachusetts State Society for fifteen years.

THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE CITIZENS OF WASHINGTON WHOSE HOMES ARE IN

MASSACHUSETTS . . . the bay state

MASSACHUSETTS . . . The home of the bean and the cod . . . known by many well-applied nicknames . . . The Bay State . . . Old Colony and the Puritan State . . . and more jokingly— The Baked Bean State, commemorating Boston's famous Saturday night supper.

MASSACHUSETTS . . . Land of promise for the Pilgrims and the Puritans who sought religious freedom . . . 150 years later, the descendants of these intrepid pioneers were leaders in the Revolutionary War, fighting for political freedom . . . touched off by the Boston Tea Party in 1773 . . . From the tower of Christ Church in Boston were flashed the lanterns that began Paul Revere's historic ride to warn the "embattled farmers" at Lexington and Concord . . . and the Battle of Bunker Hill was fought in Boston.

MASSACHUSETTS . . . An industrial leader in the Nation since the days of the spinning wheel . . . The State has ranked first in textile manufacture, centered around Lawrence, Lowell, Fall River and New Bedford, since the first power loom was installed at Waltham in 1814 . . . Boston has always been the biggest U. S. wool market . . . and Lawrence is the Nation's largest wool center. Lynn started the manufacture of boots and shoes in 1636. In addition, Massachusetts makes such diversified products as soap, candy, machine tools, wire products . . . and, of course, small arms, at Springfield. Within the borders of the State are four of the biggest twenty-seven U. S. industrial centers.

MASSACHUSETTS . . . Whose cities of New Bedford and Nantucket were top fishing ports in the old whaling days . . . held an unbroken lead in commercial fishing for many years.

MASSACHUSETTS . . . With 2,200 miles of coastline . . . bordered by hundreds of verdant islands, favorite vacation spots for generations . . . Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket, Governor's, Hangman's, Little Hog and Minot's Islands. The first harbor defenses in America were built on the Boston Harbor Islands . . . and the first lighthouse, Boston Light, was erected on Brewster Island at the entrance to the harbor. Cape Cod Light, one of the 240 lights safe-guarding Massachusetts' rocky harbors, has a strength of 4,000,000 candlepower.

MASSACHUSETTS . . . Whose largest metropolis, Boston, often called the hub of the Universe, has been an intellectual center since the 19th Century . . . with Emerson, Thoreau, Longfellow, Holmes, Whittier, Hawthorne, and Louisa May Alcott the nucleus of a progressive literary colony . . . while at the same time Horace Mann campaigned for universal education. Today Massachusetts has many fine schools . . . Andover, and the Boston Latin School, oldest high school in America; Harvard, one of the "Big Three" of American universities; Tufts; Williams; Amherst; Holy Cross; women's colleges: Wellesley, Radcliffe and Smith; and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, one of the country's leading engineering schools.

MASSACHUSETTS . . . is also proud of her two great symphony orchestras, the Boston Symphony and the Boston Pops Orchestra, and her popular artists colony at Provincetown on Cape Cod.

MASSACHUSETTS . . . In the words of Daniel Webster . . . "There she stands."

Our ancestors who colonized Massachusetts, the Puritans and the Pilgrims, were an intensely religious people . . . who courageously set forth from the comfort and safety of their homes in Europe to an unknown land where they might worship God according to their own deep convictions. They were by nature practical and industrious, and so resumed the trades and arts they had learned in the Old World as soon as they had cleared away the forests for their settlements. The handicraft they practiced in their homes and small shops was the foundation for some of the greatest manufacturing activities in the Nation . . . built up through undaunted effort and Yankee ingenuity. Massachusetts seacoast people are born and bred in the tradition of the sea . . . fishermen off the banks of Massachusetts bring in heavy catches of the "sacred cod" to grace the dinner tables all over America. Boston early became a busy seaport, with the world its market place . . . It was from Boston, hot bed of patriotism in the Revolution, that the good ship "Columbia" set sail in the 1780's . . . the first sailing vessel to carry the new American flag all the way around the world. Bostonians, true to the spirit of adventure bequeathed them by their pioneering forebears. look to the future of commerce through air transportation . . . and are expanding their airport facilities as a center of international air travel. At Plymouth, only a year after their arrival in America, the Pilgrims observed the first Thanksgiving day as an expression of their gratitude for the blessings of their new home. Today, as other Americans all over the country, we still celebrate this great festival, with heartfelt thanks for the continuing blessings of democracy. The State Society of Massachusetts appreciates the kindness of The Hecht Company which allows us to make this statement.
